Ford Adds $1 To Oil Import Tariff

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford Tuesday night ordered a second $1-a-barrel tariff placed on imported oil in a move expected to cost consumers more at the gasoline pumps just as the summer vacation season is starting.

"I will not stand here idly while the United States of America runs out of gas," Ford told a national radio and television audience.

He also said he will submit to Congress next month a plan to remove price controls gradually from domestic crude oil. The administration says it hopes to increase prices and revenues to produces so they will increase production and seek new sources of petroleum.

Administration officials said the increased tariff, effective June 1, would raise the cost of a gallon of gasoline by 1.5 cents.

But the proposal to remove the price controls, affecting about 42% of the nation's oil supply, might eventually add about six cents to the price of a gallon a petroleum product.

Congressional approval is needed to carry out the decontrol proposal, and a simple majority of the Senate or House could block it.

Although it is unlikely oil state senators would permit a resolution blocking the proposal to get past a filibuster, the House could muster the votes within the five legislative days permitted for such a resolution.

Early congressional reaction to Ford's remarks appeared to split along party lines.

The President was clearly impatient with Congress' attempts to deal with energy legislation.

Congress has "done nothing," he said six times in the address. "The Congress cannot drift, dawdle and debate forever with America's future."

A fact sheet distributed to reporters also revealed that Ford will impose a 60 cents-per-barrel fee on imported refined petroleum.

The new fee, not mentioned in the speech text, will affect principally Florida, Hawaii and states in the Northeast that buy foreign oil that has already been refined. Opposition from these states forced Ford not to place an additional tariff on refined oil when he introduced his first $1-a-barrel fee on crude oil Feb. 1.

In his address, Ford said he also will urge Congress to pass a windfall profits tax to prevent unfair gains by oil companies.

Appealing to his audience he said, "I need your help to energize this Congress into comprehensive action," he said. "I will continue to press for my January program — which is still the only total energy program there is."

The President referred to a comprehensive energy program he submitted to Congress on Jan. 15.

The House has postponed action until after it returns from the Memorial Day recess on a bill designed as a substitute for Ford's oil import control proposals. Ford had said he would go ahead with the tax imposition unless Congress acted on a substitute this month.

Ford's energy program is based on the theory that higher costs will reduce consumption and that price decontrol on domestic oil will encourage more production.

"My program was designed to conserve the energy we now have, while at the same time speeding up development and production of new domestic energy," Ford said.

"Although this would increase the cost of energy until new supplies were fully tapped, those dollars would remain in this country and would be returned to our own economy through tax cuts and rebates."

"Congress did nothing," the President stated.

The President said his program was "long overdue" if America is to become independent of foreign sources of energy by his goal of 1985.

"We have become increasingly at the mercy of others for the fuel on which our entire economy runs."

He said the United States is now dependent on foreign sources for about 37% of its present petroleum needs and the nation is paying $25 billion a year for that oil.

Neighborhood Unites; Worried About Prison

By WES ALBERS
Star Staff Writer

If all goes as planned, work on a $1.8 million, maximum-security prison diagnostic center in southwest Lincoln will begin in August.

Residents in that neighborhood are attempting to see that it doesn't.

"Common sense doesn't dictate putting a maximum-security prison in a residential area, especially when it would be only two blocks from a grade school (Yankee Hill School)," said Bill Patterson of 1200 W. Burnham.

A letter circulated in the neighborhood announced a meeting at Yankee Hill School at 7 30 p.m. Thursday to discuss the project, which was described as "an extremely involved construction project . . . which will vitally involve our life style, the safety of our families, our property valuation and the ecology of our neighborhood."

The center, authorized by the 1974 Nebraska legislature, is designed for evaluation of prisoners sentenced but not yet committed to a state correctional institution. Previously, such evaluations were made at the Men's Reformatory or the Nebraska State Penitentiary in Lincoln.

Area residents met with State Corrections Director Joseph Vitak and his staff May 13 to express their concern, particularly about a planned recreation yard bordering Folsom, a street used by school children.

"You get some pretty hard guys who'll be standing along that fence," Patterson said. "A lady told me she's worried about what might be said to her 12-year-old daughter when she walks by.

"And with the current kick for hostages, what if some guy escaped, went two blocks and picked up a shool full of kids?"

Vitek said Tuesday night he would meet today with architects and his staff to discuss repositioning the fence line and moving the recreation area away from Folsom.

The neighborhood letter indicated that the prison center would house 185 inmates. According to the letter, it would be surrounded by 12- to 15-foot high double steel-barbed wire fences, four "machine gun nest" guard towers, 40 floodlights for illumination of the building and fences and an escape siren system.

Vitek said the center would have four guard towers but there would be no machine gun nests.

"We're not going to have machine gun nests up there, but we are going to look out for the people's safety," he said.

Attempts are being made to shield the building and fence with trees and shrubs, Vitek said, and lights for the building and fence have been designed so they will not shine into the neighborhood.

"They say they're going to put in shrubbery now. Ten years from now, it might do some good," Patterson said.

Mrs. Clayton (Joyce) Champoux, of 840 W. Stockwell, said she is not reassured by Vitek's promises of security.

"It doesn't reassure us at all," she said. "Why even give them the opportunity for a 'low escape record'?" she said.

The center will be located in a building at the former Lincoln Regional Center and will handle "short-term residents" (90-day stay or less), Vitek said.

Police Oppose Citizen Review

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

Police officials told the City Council Tuesday night they don't think there's a need to create a citizens advisory board to review police procedures.

Acting Police Chief Dale Adams said police review boards "have been tried many times and have been found wanting."

The police review board controversy, ressurected by Councilman John Robinson, gained public attention in 1972 following the Human Rights Commission investigation into alleged police brutality.

At that time the commission proposed the creation of a police review board to air citizen complaints lodged against police. The concept was watered down. Instead, then-Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf set up a procedure which included a three-man Police Board of Examiners.

3 Complaints In 3 Years

In that past three-year period, there have been three official complaints lodged against police. The board heard and dismissed one case, the second was dropped and the third complaint is pending.

Adams contended the lack of complaints proves there's no demonstrated need to set up Robinson's panel.

Robinson drew the opposite conclusions from the statistics. He said many people feel uncomfortable "lodging a complaint against the police with the police."

His proposed nine-member committee would serve as a sounding board for citizen complaints and would annually review police procedures

The committee would be appointed by the council not the mayor. Members would include six citizens, an attorney, a minister and a police officer.

Advisory Role Liked

Adams said he didn't object to the committee if its only purpose was to advise law enforcement officials on procedures.

But, he did object to any committee which would take testimony and investigate complaints lodged against individual police officers.

"It's so easy to make an allegation," Adams said.

While one city official opposed the committee, another supported it.

Equal Opportunity Officer Gerry Henderson said he and the Human Rights Commission believe there needs to be somebody accountable for police actions other than the police department.

Mayor Helen Boosalis, who hasn't yet taken a position on the issue, encouraged Adams and Henderson to present their opposing views to the council.

Timing Said Right

While police officials reported that other cities' police board ventures have floundered, Councilwoman Sue Bailey speculated their failure resulted from their creation during a crisis situation. Since Lincoln doesn't have a crisis, she said it's the right time to set up the panel to fend off anticipated problems.

Mrs. Bailey theorized that since the city has extended greater powers to police than to other city departments, the public sees the police in a different light. A police review board, therefore, would "help improve citizens' attitude toward police," she said.

Jack Siegman, a professor of sociology, said the panel would "play an active role in socializing the community to know how to deal with the police," Siegman said the panel would serve as an intermediary between Lincolnites and the police and let them know what the police are doing and why.

Advice Welcomed

While Adams and police legal adviser Jerry Fisher said the department would welcome citizens' advice, they believe the review board isn't the vehicle to provide it.

The department doesn't want to have a board "looking over our shoulder to see what's going on," Fisher said.

Adams explained that the public has several avenues through which to lodge a complaint — with the department, mayor's office, city or county attorney for prosecution or the courts.

Robinson says that's not enough.

FDA Backs Off On Vitamin Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration officially backed off Tuesday from its controversial 1973 position that super-potent vitamin and mineral preparations should be classified as drugs.

Instead, the agency proposed new regulations which would treat such products as foods when they are generally recognized as safe and marketed as dietary supplements.

High-potency vitamin A and D preparations would continue to be regulated as prescription drugs, however, because of their demonstrated toxicity.

"We believe that the revised regulations are a substantial improvement over the original approach because they will be less subject to misinterpretation and misrepresentation," FDA Commissioner Alexander M. Schmidt said.

He said the new rules, open to public comment the next 45 days, would still meet the FDA's goal of giving consumers more and better information about vitamin-mineral products, deter fraudulent and misleading claims, and eliminate nutritionally useless ingredients from dietary supplements.

The 1973 order was attacked in 15 lawsuits and legislation by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., designed to prevent the FDA from barring any vitamin-mineral compound until proven unsafe.

The lawsuits were consolidated in the U.S. Court of Appeals in New York City which ruled last August that the FDA would have to reconsider certain parts of its previous rules.

"The FDA does not argue with, nor will it interfere with, the consumer's right to use vitamins and minerals as 'nutritional insurance' against improper eating habits," Schmidt said Tuesday.

"We do seek to insure that consumers who elect to use vitamins and minerals will be able to buy products which are rationally formulated and honestly labeled," he said.

The now-abandoned regulation would have required that all preparations containing more than 150 per cent of the Recommended Daily Allowance for any vitamin or mineral be regulated as nonprescription drugs, subject to review for safety and efficacy sometime in the future.

The appellate court said those preparations could not be defined as drugs solely on the basis of potency.

One of the most vocal critics of the previous regulations was Nobel Prize-winning scientist Linus Pauling, an advocate of the often-disputed theory that massive dosages of Vitamin C ward off and cure the common cold.

Pauling followers would have been forced to take several pills to reach the levels he recommends.

Economy Speeding Tickets Go On Sale

Guy Robarge got a pleasant surprise when he went to city traffic court Tuesday morning.

Robarge was the first person in Lincoln to go through court under a new state speeding law which reduces the penalties for speeding above 55 m.p.h. and less than 65 m.p.h. on the Interstate.

The law — which was passed by the Nebraska Unicameral over the veto of Gov. J. J. Exon — provides, in part, that any speeder clocked at 10 m.p.h. or less over the 55 m.p.h. limit shall be fined no more than $10.

No Court Costs

In addition, the law says no court costs may be collected and no points can be taken off the offender's driver's license.

State Court Administrator James Dunlevey has issued a memo to all county judges to begin enforcing the law. The memo said the provisions apply beginning Tuesday with any case that comes before a judge for a decision.

Robarge said he knew nothing about the new law until he went into the Municipal Court clerk's office to pay his $10 fine and the woman behind the counter told him there would be no court costs and no loss of points.

'Sure Was Surprised'

"I sure was surprised," said Robarge later. "I'd heard something about the law on the radio one day when I was waking up. But I didn't know anything about it or when it started."

Robarge, 40, of 2036 Randolph St., was ticketed March 30 on Interstate 80 near the Waverly exchange for traveling 75 m.p.h. in a 55 m.p.h. zone. He originally pleaded not guilty and the charges were amended to 65 m.p.h. in a 56 m.p.h. zone.

In addition to the aforementioned provisions, the new state law says that any person going between 10 and 15 m.p.h. over the speed limit on the Interstate will lose two driver's license points. Any speed 15 m.p.h. over the limit will mean the loss of three points.

The previous point assessment table remains in effect for all other highways.

Other Changes

Other changes the law makes in the assessment of driver's license points include:

—A third offense of reckless driving no longer means an automatic loss of license, as was previously the case.

—The number of points lost for leaving the scene of an accident has been reduced from 12 to six.

—A previous provision, under which 12 points would be lost for the use of a motor vehicle in the commission of a felony crime, has been changed. Now, conviction of motor vehicle homicide would mean the loss of 12 points, but no points would be lost for using a motor vehicle in the commission of another crime of a felony nature.

Requested By Chambers

These changes were written into the bill at the request of Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha.

Exon, who threatened to call an emergency session of the legislature to deal with the law, now wants to take the law to court to see if it is valid.

The state attorney general's office said the process of getting the challenge machinery in operation is already underway.

Attorney General Paul Douglas plans to try to persuade the Nebraska Supreme Court to accept the challenge as an original action to avoid going through the normal trial and appeal process.

Strict Enforcement

Meanwhile, a spokesman for the State Patrol said the 55 m.p.h. speed limit is being strictly enforced despite the easing of the penalty provisions.

In Buffalo County, County Court Judge J. Karr Taylor and Associate Judge Kenneth Gotobed have set up a new fine schedule for persons caught speeding on Interstate 80 in Buffalo County.

The judges' schedule calls for a fine of $9 for persons caught speeding from 56 to 60 m.p.h. From 60 to 65 m.p.h., the fine goes up to $10.

Speeders clocked faster than 65 m.p.h. will pay a fine (beginning at $3 for 66 or 67 m.p.h.) plus $8 in costs.

The over 65 m.p.h. fine schedule rises gradually until, at 76 m.p.h., the assessment will be $60 plus costs; and the fine will rise $10 for every speedometer notch tallied above 76 m.p.h.

Filming Grant Causes Uproar

Copenhagen, Denmark (AP) — The semiofficial Danish Film Institute sparked a new uproar by making a cash grant to a planned movie on the "love life" of Jesus Christ.

Pope Paul VI has condemned the project and its Danish critics call it blasphemous.

The producer-director, Jens Joergen Thorsen, 42, when he heard of the award, commented, "so Jesus will finally have his love life."

Economic Pact Considered

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Leaders from 15 West African nations opened a summit meeting Tuesday to form their own common market. Nigerian head of state Gen. Yakabu Gowon said the market had the potential to bring "progress, prosperity and well-being to all our peoples."

All the leaders, including 14 heads of state and government, are expected Wednesday to sign the Treaty of Lagos giving birth to the Economic Community of West African States — ECOWAS — which will link nine French, five English and one Portuguese speaking states.

Opening the summit, Gowon recalled that many previous attempts to form similar unions in the region had failed. But the trend toward greater regional economic cooperation throughout the world demonstrated the need for ECOWAS.

"It will allow us to deal from a position of strength with organizations of more developed countries of the world . . . it is self-evident that whatever the initial difficulties we must be united in our determination to succeed" he said.

He charged industrial nations with creating restrictions against imports from developing nations. To counter this, West African states must make sure their own products have an advantage against foreign imports while also promoting inter-African trade to "create more jobs and benefits for our own people," he said.

He said he hoped ECOWAS would eventually spread out beyond West Africa.

The president of the tiny French-speaking state of Togo, Gnasinbe Eyadema, who with Gowon spearheaded the move to form ECOWAS, said the major obstacle in the way of its creation had been suspicion existing between French and English speaking West African states, a legacy of colonialism.

He said he hoped ECOWAS would eventually lead to not only economic union but also political union.

Liberian President William Tolbert said it was the responsibility of ECOWAS states to give "substantial moral and material support to the various African liberation movements and so occasion the complete political independence of all Africa."

Ford Adds $1 To Oil Import Tariff

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford Tuesday night ordered a second $1-a-barrel tariff placed on imported oil in a move expected to cost consumers more at the gasoline pumps just as the summer vacation season is starting.

"I will not stand here idly while the United States of America runs out of gas," Ford told a national radio and television audience.

He also said he will submit to Congress next month a plan to remove price controls gradually from domestic crude oil. The administration says it hopes to increase prices and revenues to produces so they will increase production and seek new sources of petroleum.

Administration officials said the increased tariff, effective June 1, would raise the cost of a gallon of gasoline by 1.5 cents.

Neighborhood Unites; Worried About Prison

Police Oppose Citizen Review

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

Police officials told the City Council Tuesday night they don't think there's a need to create a citizens advisory board to review police procedures.

Acting Police Chief Dale Adams said police review boards "have been tried many times and have been found wanting."

The police review board controversy, ressurected by Councilman John Robinson, gained public attention in 1972 following the Human Rights Commission investigation into alleged police brutality.

At that time the commission proposed the creation of a police review board to air citizen complaints lodged against police. The concept was watered down. Instead, then-Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf set up a procedure which included a three-man Police Board of Examiners.

3 Complaints In 3 Years

In that past three-year period, there have been three official complaints lodged against police. The board heard and dismissed one case, the second was dropped and the third complaint is pending.

Adams contended the lack of complaints proves there's no demonstrated need to set up Robinson's panel.

Robinson drew the opposite conclusions from the statistics. He said many people feel uncomfortable "lodging a complaint against the police with the police."

His proposed nine-member committee would serve as a sounding board for citizen complaints and would annually review police procedures.

The committee would be appointed by the council not the mayor. Members would include six citizens, an attorney, a minister and a police officer.

Advisory Role Liked

Adams said he didn't object to the committee if its only purpose was to advise law enforcement officials on procedures.

But, he did object to any committee which would take testimony and investigate complaints lodged against individual police officers.

"It's so easy to make an allegation," Adams said.

While one city official opposed the committee, another supported it.

Equal Opportunity Officer Gerry Henderson said he and the Human Rights Commission believe there needs to be somebody accountable for police actions other than the police department.

Mayor Helen Boosalis, who hasn't yet taken a position on the issue, encouraged Adams and Henderson to present their opposing views to the council.

Timing Said Right

While police officials reported that other cities' police board ventures have floundered, Councilwoman Sue Bailey speculated their failure resulted from their creation during a crisis situation. Since Lincoln doesn't have a crisis, she said it's the right time to set up the panel to fend off anticipated problems.

Mrs. Bailey theorized that since the city has extended greater powers to police than to other city departments, the public sees the police in a different light. A police review board, therefore, would "help improve citizens' attitude toward police," she said.

Jack Siegman, a professor of sociology, said the panel would "play an active role in socializing the community to know how to deal with the police," Siegman said the panel would serve as an intermediary between Lincolnites and the police and let them know what the police are doing and why.

Advice Welcomed

While Adams and police legal adviser Jerry Fisher said the department would welcome citizens' advice, they believe the review board isn't the vehicle to provide it.

The department doesn't want to have a board "looking over our shoulder to see what's going on," Fisher said.

Adams explained that the public has several avenues through which to lodge a complaint — with the department, mayor's office, city or county attorney for prosecution or the courts.

Robinson says that's not enough.

FDA Backs Off On Vitamin Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration officially backed off Tuesday from its controversial 1973 position that super-potent vitamin and mineral preparations should be classified as drugs.

Instead, the agency proposed new regulations which would treat such products as foods when they are generally recognized as safe and marketed as dietary supplements.

High-potency vitamin A and D preparations would continue to be regulated as prescription drugs, however, because of their demonstrated toxicity.

"We believe that the revised regulations are a substantial improvement over the original approach because they will be less subject to misinterpretation and misrepresentation," FDA Commissioner Alexander M. Schmidt said.

He said the new rules, open to public comment the next 45 days, would still meet the FDA's goal of giving consumers more and better information about vitamin-mineral products, deter fraudulent and misleading claims, and eliminate nutritionally useless ingredients from dietary supplements.

The 1973 order was attacked in 15 lawsuits and legislation by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., designed to prevent the FDA from barring any vitamin-mineral compound until proven unsafe.

The lawsuits were consolidated in the U.S. Court of Appeals in New York City which ruled last August that the FDA would have to reconsider certain parts of its previous rules.

"The FDA does not argue with, nor will it interfere with, the consumer's right to use vitamins and minerals as 'nutritional insurance' against improper eating habits," Schmidt said Tuesday.

"We do seek to insure that consumers who elect to use vitamins and minerals will be able to buy products which are rationally formulated and honestly labeled," he said.

The now-abandoned regulation would have required that all preparations containing more than 150 per cent of the Recommended Daily Allowance for any vitamin or mineral be regulated as nonprescription drugs, subject to review for safety and efficacy sometime in the future.

The appellate court said those preparations could not be defined as drugs solely on the basis of potency.

One of the most vocal critics of the previous regulations was Nobel Prize-winning scientist Linus Pauling, an advocate of the often-disputed theory that massive dosages of Vitamin C ward off and cure the common cold.

Pauling followers would have been forced to take several pills to reach the levels he recommends.

Economy Speeding Tickets Go On Sale

Guy Robarge got a pleasant surprise when he went to city traffic court Tuesday morning.

Robarge was the first person in Lincoln to go through court under a new state speeding law which reduces the penalties for speeding above 55 m.p.h. and less than 65 m.p.h. on the Interstate.

The law — which was passed by the Nebraska Unicameral over the veto of Gov. J. J. Exon — provides, in part, that any speeder clocked at 10 m.p.h. or less over the 55 m.p.h. limit shall be fined no more than $10.

No Court Costs

In addition, the law says no court costs may be collected and no points can be taken off the offender's driver's license.

State Court Administrator James Dunlevey has issued a memo to all county judges to begin enforcing the law. The memo said the provisions apply beginning Tuesday with any case that comes before a judge for a decision.

Robarge said he knew nothing about the new law until he went into the Municipal Court clerk's office to pay his $10 fine and the woman behind the counter told him there would be no court costs and no loss of points.

'Sure Was Surprised'

"I sure was surprised," said Robarge later. "I'd heard something about the law on the radio one day when I was waking up. But I didn't know anything about it or when it started."

Robarge, 40, of 2036 Randolph St., was ticketed March 30 on Interstate 80 near the Waverly exchange for traveling 75 m.p.h. in a 55 m.p.h. zone. He originally pleaded not guilty and the charges were amended to 65 m.p.h. in a 55 m.p.h. zone.

In addition to the aforementioned provisions, the new state law says that any person going between 10 and 15 m.p.h. over the speed limit on the Interstate will lose two driver's license points. Any speed 15 m.p.h. over the limit will mean the loss of three points.

The previous point assessment table remains in effect for all other highways.

Other Changes

Other changes the law makes in the assessment of driver's license points include:

—A third offense of reckless driving no longer means an automatic loss of license, as was previously the case.

—The number of points lost for leaving the scene of an accident has been reduced from 12 to six.

—A previous provision, under which 12 points would be lost for the use of a motor vehicle in the commission of a felony crime, has been changed. Now, conviction of motor vehicle homicide would mean the loss of 12 points, but no points would be lost for using a motor vehicle in the commission of another crime of a felony nature.

Requested By Chambers

These changes were written into the bill at the request of Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha.

Exon, who threatened to call an emergency session of the legislature to deal with the law, now wants to take the law to court to see if it is valid.

The state attorney general's office said the process of getting the challenge machinery in operation is already underway.

Attorney General Paul Douglas plans to try to persuade the Nebraska Supreme Court to accept the challenge as an original action to avoid going through the normal trial and appeal process.

Strict Enforcement

Meanwhile, a spokesman for the State Patrol said the 55 m.p.h. speed limit is being strictly enforced despite the easing of the penalty provisions.

In Buffalo County, County Court Judge J. Karr Taylor and Associate Judge Kenneth Gotobed have set up a new fine schedule for persons caught speeding on Interstate 80 in Buffalo County.

The judges' schedule calls for a fine of $9 for persons caught speeding from 56 to 60 m.p.h. From 60 to 65 m.p.h., the fine goes up to $10.

Speeders clocked faster than 65 m.p.h. will pay a fine (beginning at $3 for 66 or 67 m.p.h.) plus $8 in costs.

The over 65 m.p.h. fine schedule rises gradually until, at 76 m.p.h., the assessment will be $60 plus costs; and the fine will rise $10 for every speedometer notch tallied above 76 m.p.h.

Filming Grant Causes Uproar

Copenhagen, Denmark (AP) — The semiofficial Danish Film Institute sparked a new uproar by making a cash grant to a planned movie on the "love life" of Jesus Christ.

Pope Paul VI has condemned the project and its Danish critics call it blasphemous.

The producer-director, Jens Joergen Thorsen, 42, when he heard of the award, commented, "so Jesus will finally have his love life."

Economic Pact Considered

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Leaders from 15 West African nations opened a summit meeting Tuesday to form their own common market. Nigerian head of state Gen. Yakabu Gowon said the market had the potential to bring "progress, prosperity and well-being to all our peoples."

All the leaders, including 14 heads of state and government, are expected Wednesday to sign the Treaty of Lagos giving birth to the Economic Community of West African States — ECOWAS — which will link nine French, five English and one Portuguese speaking states.

Opening the summit, Gowon recalled that many previous attempts to form similar unions in the region had failed. But the trend toward greater regional economic cooperation throughout the world demonstrated the need for ECOWAS.

"It will allow us to deal from a position of strength with organizations of more developed countries of the world . . . it is self-evident that whatever the initial difficulties we must be united in our determination to succeed" he said.

He charged industrial nations with creating restrictions against imports from developing nations. To counter this, West African states must make sure their own products have an advantage against foreign imports while also promoting inter-African trade to "create more jobs and benefits for our own people," he said.

He said he hoped ECOWAS would eventually spread out beyond West Africa.

The president of the tiny French-speaking state of Togo, Gnasinbe Eyadema, who with Gowon spearheaded the move to form ECOWAS, said the major obstacle in the way of its creation had been suspicion existing between French and English speaking West African states, a legacy of colonialism.

He said he hoped ECOWAS would eventually lead to not only economic union but also political union.

Liberian President William Tolbert said it was the responsibility of ECOWAS states to give "substantial moral and material support to the various African liberation movements and so occasion the complete political independence of all Africa."

Students OK End Of Siege

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Student radicals agreed Tuesday to end their week-long occupation of the U.S AID compound here after the United States formally agreed to withdrawal its entire Agency for International Development (AID) program by June 30.

An agreement signed by U.S., Pathet Lao and student representatives said the AID compound, which also houses U S. Embassy and defense attache office facilities, was to be returned to the Americans Wednesday morning.

Two U S. Marines and an American civilian have been holding out in the compound since the students took over last Wednesday.

The agreement ended a week of harrassment, humiliation and rising tensions during which the official U S presence in Laos shrank by two-thirds and police stood by while students and others looted the AID compound and an American housing area on the outskirts of the capital.

Cheers and some profanity from a student audience of about 200 greeted the signing at the Economics Ministry building U.S Charge d'Affaires Christian A Chapman signed for the United States, Pathet Lao Economics Minister Soth Pethrasy for the government and Visay Snaksone, identified as a former U S. AID employe, for the protesters.

Chapman told newsmen formal signing of the agreement had been held up by disagreements over wording of the Lao, French and English texts

Student departure from the compound was expected to mean freedom for the two U S. Marines and the American civilian barricaded in separate buildings since the students took over last Wednesday

An advance text of the agreement as read by student leaders said local employees of the AID agency would watch over the compound to see how property inside is disposed

Youths and others helped themselves freely to government and private property over the last week, justifying their actions by claiming U.S. government employees took most of the AID funds to maintain themselves and Americans should have paid taxes on commissary purchases.

RESTING EASY . . . Pathet Lao trooper rests outside U.S. AID compound AP

They looted the commissary and commandeered U.S. AID mission vehicles as robbers broke into the nearly deserted residential compound and carted away household goods belonging to Americans who were evacuated without time to ship out their possessions.

An unspecified amount of other AID mission property, commodities and funds are to be turned over to the Laotian coalition government when the mission folds, according to the agreement text read by students.

The agreement also calls for police of the joint Pathet Lao and Vientiane side to be stationed outside the AID compound. The agreement said the government would take no action against the student occupiers.

Kissinger Offers U.S. Compromise

Paris (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger urged oil-consuming nations Tuesday to adopt a trillion-dollar program for energy independence and offered oil-producing countries a compromise to restart world cooperation talks.

The world's nations face a choice between "common progress or common disaster," Kissinger told a conference of the 18-nation International Energy Agency. "Our interdependence will make us thrive together or decline together."

He told the IEA's oil-consuming industrialized countries their first priority is to free themselves from dictation by oil-producing nations — dictation that begins as economic but leads to political vulnerability.

His recipe for independence included: cutting oil imports by four million barrels a day by the end of 1977 with the United States doing half the saving; spending as much as a trillion (thousand billion) dollars in 10 years to develop their own fuel supplies, and pushing nuclear power and finding new power sources.

To the oil-producing nations, Kissinger said the United States had reversed itself and now as willing to study proposals for regulating the production and marketing of raw materials and commodities to benefit less and under-developed nations. Refusal by the United States and its European allies to discuss this led to the collapse in April of the first attempt at cooperation talks between oil importing and oil exporting nations.

Diplomats said Kissinger's compromise could lead to fresh talks opening within a month.

British Foreign Secretary James Callaghan led a parade of speakers to the platform to endorse Kissinger's program

"There's a general trend building in favor of what Mr. Kissinger proposed," a conference spokesman told newsmen.

The U.S. chief diplomat said America and its sister oil-importing states can expect a sixth price hike from oil-exporting nations this year, as the Arabs and their fellow producers make up for a recession-caused slump in business with higher prices for the fuel to heat nations this winter.

Kissinger said the hike will be "economically unjustified." It is a matter of security for the industrialized world to act now, he said.

Kissinger said President Ford was acting, announcing in a Washington news conference "additional measures to discourage the consumption of imported oil."

Kissinger said that if Congress refuses to go along with Ford's new measures, Ford "is prepared to use the powers available to him to assure that the United States does its part in the common conservation effort."

Demos: Tariff On Oil Imports Will Add To Inflation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional Democrats said Tuesday night the increased tariff imposed by President Ford on imported oil would add to the nation s inflation problems, but Republicans defended it, saying Congress had failed to act in the energy arena.

Rep. Jim Wright, D-Tex. who directed a House Democratic task force on energy problems, said Ford's $1-per-barrel tariff would add $7 6 billion to the cost of living But he said it will not "have any effect whatever in reducing the amount of imports."

House Republican Leader John J Rhodes of Arizona said Ford's proposal, announced in a nationwide broadcast, "was the only action open to him."

"The Democratic Congress didn't give him any choice," he said "He gave the Congress plenty of time to come up with a program or agree with his."

Sen Carl T. Curtis, the ranking Republican on the Senate Finance Committee, which has jurisdiction over energy and taxes, said Congress "hasn't done anything to discourage the importation of foreign oil" and Ford therefore had no alternative.

The Nebraskan said the Democrats, who control Congress, "do not seem to recognize the danger to our economy in permitting domestic production to go down and increasing our dependence on foreign sources."

"It jeopardizes our economy and our national defense," Curtis said.

But Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., also a member of the Finance Committee, echoed Wright's comments, predicting that the higher tariff will raise the cost of food "and literally every product that is moved or manufactured."

House Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., refused, through a spokesman, to comment. House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. of Massachusetts was in Europe on a congressional trip to North Atlantic Treaty Organization installations.

Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., a candidate for the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination, said that although Congress was deadlocked on energy action, "the present muddled situation is far better than the new round of energy inflation which the President's action will surely trigger."

"The net effect of Mr. Ford's action is to cancel out the tax cuts which are just beginning to take effect on a sagging economy," Udall said.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Interior Committee and a congressional specialist on energy matters, predicted that Ford's proposals would cost the average family $600.

"It simply takes money out of the pockets of people who can ill afford it and puts it in the pockets of those who don't need it," said Jackson, a candidate for the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination.

Marijuana Possession 'Right' — Alaskan Court

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — The Alaska Supreme Court ruled Tuesday that citizens have a constitutional right to possess marijuana for personal use in their own homes.

However, the court said the state has a "legitimate concern" with outlawing the use of marijuana in public

With four concurring opinions and no dissent, the five-member court said the right of individuals to privacy in their homes "would encompass the possession and ingestion of substances such as marijuana in a purely personal, noncommercial context in the home "

The legislature this month adopted a bill to reduce penalties for possession of the drug. At the same time, it imposed only civil penalties for personal possession of marijuana in the home

Those provisions for fines would apparently be called into question by the high court ruling.

Harlem Pays Tribute To Black Comedienne

New York (UPI) — Laughter and tears filled the Aybssinian Baptist Church Tuesday as Harlem paid tribute to comedienne Jackie "Moms" Mabley.

Some 500 persons attended the 90-minute service for the gravel-voiced, toothless performer who died Friday night at age 77. Hundreds more gathered on the street outside the church

"She means everything to us; I don't know anybody who didn't love her," said Mrs Rosalie Shelton as she stood hunched in the crowd that formed in front of the cathedral steps. "She called us her children."

The mourners inside silently filed past the silver coffin, some laying violets by her head, others simply pausing to share a last moment with the woman whose earthy humor tickled millions for decades.

Among the mourners were several generations of black entertainers from comedian Dick Gregory to old time vaudevilleans Pigmeat Markham, Slappy White and Hal Cromer of the dance team Stump and Stumpy.

Terry L Davis, 25, of Hope, the driver of the second car, suffered a fractured leg and was listed in satisfactory condition at a hospital in Hutchinson.

Ford Begins Trip Today

Washington — President Ford leaves Wednesday on a week-long trip to Europe and talks that his White House aides describe as the real beginning of the Ford era in foreign policy. The President plans to meet with other Atlantic Alliance heads of government in Brussels, Spain's leaders in Madrid, Egypt's President Anwar el-Sadat in Austria and Italy's President Giovanni Leone and Pope Paul VI in Rome. The trip is not expected by U.S. officials to produce any major agreements or new international arrangements, with the possible exception of the meeting with Sadat.

Kissinger Relied On Less

Washington — On the eve of President Ford's week-long trip to Europe, White House advisers are saying the President is reducing his reliance on Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and assuming increasing command over his own foreign policy. The advisers said Ford retains full confidence in Kissinger and generally shares his views on diplomacy. Recent interviews with White House and other administration officials indicate that Ford is determined to put his own stamp on foreign policy and has substantially broadened his circle of foreign policy advisors.

Libya Base Deal Denied

Moscow — The Soviet Union denied Tuesday that it had signed an agreement providing for Soviet naval and air bases in Libya during Premier Aleksei A. Kosygin's official visit to Libya earlier this month.

Homebuying In Crawl

Los Angeles — The traditional spring home-buying rush is almost over and despite the lure of a tax rebate of up to $2,000 it has been more a crawl than a rush. According to the nation's builders the long-sought turnaround for the depressed housing industry — considered a necessary step for national economic recovery — has not yet arrived. High interest rates and the price tags on many homes have lifted them out of the reach of many middle-income Americans.

Italy Seeks U.S. Help

Rome — Italy has asked the United States for assistance in a vast nuclear power program aimed at reducing her dependence on imported oil, a foreign ministry spokesman said Tuesday.

Lebanese Crisis Eases

Beirut — Lebanon's government crisis eased Tuesday as President Suleiman Franjieh consulted political leaders on the appointment of a new premier suitable to the country's Moslems.

Workers Urged To Boycott Melon Fields

HIDALGO, Tex. (AP) — Hundreds of farm union sympathizers urged workers to boycott Rio Grande Valley melon fields after a mass march Tuesday to the ranch where 11 persons were wounded the day before.

Few workers left the fields to join the marchers, but at least one grower admitted that the trouble has made it harder to find laborers.

About 300 United Farm Workers union sympathizers who are demanding a labor contract joined UFW organizer Tony Orendain in a march from the International Bridge spanning the Rio Grande to the El Texano Ranch Tuesday morning. The crowd of men, women and children stationed themselves across the road from the ranch and flung jeers and taunts at rancher Bill Pate and one of his employes, C. L. Miller Jr.

Neither Pate nor Miller appeared.

Miller used an automatic shotgun Monday to "open season" on demonstrators who he said came onto the ranch and began stomping field canteloupes. Ten of the intruders were wounded along with one ranch employe, authorities said.

The 10 demonstrators who were wounded filed a complaint alleging aggravated assault and Miller was freed under $15,000 bond.

After Tuesday's demonstration at the ranch, the laborers — most of them Mexicans who cross the Rio Grande each day — returned to the bridge where they broke into groups and began driving to various farms to continue the protests.

Some of them used public address systems as they stopped alongside canteloupe fields and urged stoop laborers to join them in boycotting their jobs. Only a handful left with the demonstrators.

Deputies and constables kept up intense patrols of the county but reported no violence associated with the demonstrations.

Work continued in the 200-acre canteloupe patch at the El Texano as did work in other area fields

'Dog' Title To Woman

NEW YORK (AP) — Sharlene Smith is the new "hot dog queen" at Coney Island.

And it was the extra half-frankfurter that she ate that led to the title.

The 30-year-old market researcher from Manhattan ate 8½ hot dogs, with rolls, in 3½ minutes to win the crown.

Supreme Court Defines Immunity

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressmen and their aides have absolute immunity from lawsuits designed to impede legitimate investigations, the Supreme Court ruled Tuesday.

With only Justice William O. Douglas dissenting, the court voted 8 to 1 to reverse a decision barring Senate investigators from subpoenaing bank records of the United States Servicemen's Fund.

Douglas two-paragraph dissent was the first opinion he has filed since March 25. He is in a New York hospital recuperating from a stroke.

In other actions, the court:

—Ruled unanimously that a youth who has been adjudged a delinquent in juvenile court may not subsequently be tried in adult court for the same offense.

—Held that Congress has the power to freeze the wages of state and local employes, but put off until next term a decision on whether the lawmakers can adopt overtime and other work regulations governing such employes.

—Refused to interfere with controversial new standards limiting the use of vinyl chloride, a potential cancer-causing agent, in the plastics industry.

—Left undisturbed a lower-court decision upholding deletions made on national security grounds by the Central Intelligence Agency in a book co-authored by a former CIA employe, Victor L. Marchetti.

—Agreed to rule on the constitutionality of a police department regulation governing hair length and on whether private employers may exclude pregnancy from disability insurance programs.

—Disbarred former White House counsel John W. Dean III, who pleaded guilty to conspiracy charges in the Watergate scandal, from Supreme Court law practice.

In the case of the Senate investigators, the court grounded its decision on the Constitution's assurance that senators and representatives "shall not be questioned in any other place" about the deliberations of Congress.

"The power to investigate and to do so through compulsory process plainly falls within that definition," Chief Justice Warren E. Burger said for the court.

Burger said the court has some times in the past held that the individual's right to free expression must be balanced against the grant of immunity to congressmen.

"But those cases did not involve attempts by private parties to impede congressional action," said the chief justice.

"Where we are presented with an attempt to interfere with an ongoing activity by Congress and that activity is found to be within the legitimate legislative sphere, balancing plays no part," Burger said. "The speech or debate protection provides an absolute immunity from judicial interference."

Burger conceded that this creates a potential for abuse but said that is a price which must be paid to assure the independence of Congress.

Douglas argued that Congress may not use its power to deprive people of their free speech or other rights

"It is my view that no official, no matter how high or majestic his or her office, who is within the reach of judicial process, may invoke immunity for his actions for which wrongdoers normally suffer," the ailing justice wrote.

U.S. Has Trade Surplus Despite Oil Imports Rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. oil imports increased 69% last month, but the nation still recorded an over-all trade surplus of $557 million, the third monthly surplus in a row, the Commerce Department reported Tuesday.

A trade surplus is important for the economy because it tends to increase the purchasing value of the dollar in foreign markets. If sustained over a period of time, it can lead to lower prices for imported goods.

The U.S. trade surplus — the difference of exports over imports — was $2.6 billion during the first four months of 1975, compared with a trade deficit of $3.1 billion during all of last year

But Commerce Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton expressed concern over the steep increase in oil imports, saying it is "a compelling argument for immediate action" on President Ford's energy program.

Total U.S. oil imports in April were 201 million barrels, valued at $2.3 billion, compared with the March import figures of 118.7 million barrels valued at nearly $1.4 billion. The increase added nearly another $1 billion to the nation's import bill.

The March oil import figures had been especially low, however, and Morton said the April figures showed the U.S. now was importing approximately the average monthly level of the final six months of 1974.

"In other words, there has been no improvement in the basic problem of dependence on foreign sources of energy," he said. "We cannot afford the luxury of complacency as long as this noose of dependency dangles over our heads," he added.

The over-all April trade surplus of $557 million compared with a surplus of nearly $1.4 billion in March and $917 million in February.

The value of April imports totaled slightly more than $8 billion, up 9.2% from March, while exports totaled nearly $8.6 billion, down 1.7% from March.

Exports for the first four months of the year were at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of nearly $106.5 billion, about 9% higher than the 1974 total, while imports were at an annual rate of $98.5 billion, about 2% below the 1974 figure.

Partially offsetting the increase in petroleum imports in April were declines of $145 million in imports of iron and steel and $141 million in imports of transport equipment.

On the export side, there were declines in civilian aircraft, down $68 million and in agriculture and farm products, down $163 million. Exports of foods and animals during April totaled more than $1.2 billion, and for the first four months of the year they totaled nearly $5.5 billion.

Praise For Whelan, Burbach

Any accurate post-mortem of the legislative session just ended would have to include reference to two men without whose work the Unicameral might have drifted through its 90 working-day schedule.

One is Lt. Governor Gerald Whelan, belonging to the administrative branch, a team-mate of Gov. Jim Exon, whose sparring with senators turned into downright feuding in the closing days of the session. There were those senators who could not be convinced that Whelan's every move was not politically motivated and made on behalf of the governor.

But as presiding officer of the Legislature, he operated with a firm hand and with far, far less bias than he was charged by some. If there was inconsistency between some of his rulings, it was only occasional. The Nebraska Legislature has not seen Whelan's take-charge, knowledgeable, witty style in the presiding officer's chair in years. The lieutenant governor during his first session earns high marks.

As does Speaker Jules Burbach, a creature of the Legislature, and while a member of the same political party not a fast and firm ally of the governor's.

The speakership is the only leadership structure the Legislature as a whole has. There are the executive committee and the committee chairmanships, but those are independent, isolated fiefdoms. The speaker is all there is to hold the 49 senators together on the floor.

Burbach did a fine job in the first year of his two year term in what has been in the past a largely honorary post.

Upon selection, Burbach said he would try to keep to a daily schedule and that he would try to schedule bills of similar content for debate during the same time frame. He did an admirable job of making good on his promise.

Burbach made the senators work especially hard the next to last week, riding herd on them so they passed most of the important bills in time to take action on gubernatorial vetoes.

The Legislature did not accomplish all it might have this session, but it did a good job of winding down to the end and handling legislation of a critical nature.

A generous portion of credit should go to Whelan and Burbach. Their performances illustrate what firm hands can do in keeping lawmakers on course.

Will Congress Act?

President Ford's energy message, if nothing else, is timely. As was noted when the White House announced he would make the address to the nation, Ford was making known his decisions on an energy program "in the absence of any congressional action."

The House Ways and Means Committee has approved an energy bill, but the House has postponed action on it until after Congress returns from its Memorial Day recess. The name of the game the Congress appears to be playing this year is "recess." There isn't too much hope for the Ways and Means package, anyway, observers say.

Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of Ways and Means, said in a Tuesday television interview that members of Congress are aware that an energy program that means anything will likely be unpopular because it will force people to cough up more money or change their lifestyles; thus they are hesitant to pass one. But he says he has confidence they will.

We lack that confidence. We see hesitance to make hard decisions in Congress and we don't think it will act unless pushed — which Ford is doing.

We're reminded of a discussion we had with Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., last December when the Democrats convened at Kansas City. "I expect Congress will act decisively," Reuss said, with regard to energy and economic recovery legislation. "I have never seen a brighter, better-trained and more serious group than this year's class of freshmen. If they can't save this country, nobody can."

That's kind of chilling, isn't it?

We had the feeling then and we do now that Reuss was serious in his estimate of Congress. But we also have the feeling that while Reuss is out there ready to slay the dragons, few of his colleagues are with him.

HERBERT MITGANG

Nixon In The Dock

NEW YORK — To 375,000 lawyers in the United States, just about the most interesting case in the country today appears on no calendar, is conducted with the greatest secrecy, affects the reputation of one of the best known members of the profession and of the profession itself, and can lead to a history-making judgment. It is the disbarment proceeding conducted by the Association of the Bar of the City of New York against Richard M. Nixon, Esq.

A president can leave the White House on the eve of his impeachment; another president can pardon him. But no such procedure exists, under these circumstances, for an attorney at law. He must face the judgment of his peers, and it is coming.

As a partner in Nixon, Mudge, Rose, Guthrie, Alexander & Mitchell and its predecessor firm, Nixon practiced law in New York City from 1963 until his election in 1968. In theory, there is nothing to prevent Nixon from representing a client in any of the New York courts, but in practice, such an eventuality seems wildly improbable.

Under the Appellate Division of the New York State Supreme Court, the Bar Association is empowered to act as a sort of grand jury to handle investigations about the fitness of any lawyer to practice here and to recommend clearance, discipline or disbarment. All during the Watergate revelations, the role of Nixon has been tracked down by both the American Bar Association and local bar associations.

It was almost all over for Nixon as an attorney last year, when the A.B.A. went on record in favor of prosecuting him. The ex-President's name was actually used in one of the original resolutions of its House of Delegates, but the final version was generalized to preserve the A.B.A.'s policy, it was said, of "not becoming embroiled in personal politics."

The California State Bar came close to censure or disbarment, and then permitted Nixon to make a deal. It turned down his first effort to avoid reprimand because his letter of resignation failed to mention that he was the subject of a disciplinary investigation. His second letter — carefully framed to admit no wrongdoing — effectively ended the case:

". . . I, Richard M. Nixon, against whom an investigation is pending, hereby resign as a member of the State Bar of California and relinquish all right to practice law in the State of California and agree and understand that, in the event this resignation is accepted and I thereafter file a petition for reinstatement, the state bar will consider in connection therewith in addition to their appropriate matters all disciplinary proceedings and matters pending against me at the time said resignation is accepted."

This "lawyer's letter" was delivered to the California Supreme Court, before which Nixon had originally practiced. The California Bar and Supreme Court have done nothing with it — and the case appears closed.

☆ ☆ ☆

Now it is the turn of the Bar Association of the City of New York. Those who seek his disbarment point out that Nixon's closest aides — Mitchell, Ehrlichman, Dean, Colson, Kalmbach, Mardian, Liddy, Hunt, Krogh and a dozen other legal spear carriers — have lost their licenses or face disciplinary action for such crimes as obstruction of justice, conspiracy and violations against the rights of citizens. They underscore that Nixon himself was named as an unindicted co-conspirator in the conspiracy to obstruct justice.

Some members of the bar have said that the only way to remove the tarnished image of the profession caused by the Watergate disbarments is to demonstrate that all lawyers including ex-presidents, must be treated equally.

There have been rumors of plea bargaining by Nixon or his attorney with the Bar Association. It is said that an effort has been made to achieve a "California" solution, somewhat strengthened to include either a formal resignation or a promise never to practice law again in New York. However, some members of the Bar Association want Nixon to follow the standard form in such matters — including a recitation of charges against him that would, practically, be an admission of guilt. That would be quite a price for him to pay for resignation.

If the "Esq." were to be removed from the name of Richard M. Nixon — who, ironically, appointed the Chief Justice and three associate justices of the United States Supreme Court — the action would spell more than an end to his professional career. It could come as close as any semi-official body can to defining his Watergate activities in legal terms and thereby recording a quasi-legal judgment on his presidency.

JAMES RESTON

The Dominoes Of Blame

NEW YORK — Once upon a time — this was way back in 1975 — the richest city in the world went broke. The mayor went to the governor of the state, but the governor was broke too. Both of them then appealed to the president of the richest nation in all history, but he was out trying to borrow $80 billion to pay last year's bills.

"This is a pretty pickle," said the President, who was a great phrase-maker, so he issued a proclamation summoning all the wise men and women of all generations to meet at Madison Square Garden to analyze the problem. The Garden was vacant then because the Knicks hadn't made the playoffs.

In his opening speech, the President blamed the Congress for appropriating money it didn't have. Then the governors blamed Washington for not voting enough money for the states, and the Congress blamed the people for living the life of Riley. Riley, who was sitting in the balcony, protested that his life had actually been miserable ever since the government took away his free liquor stamps.

Calvin Coolidge tottered to the podium and said financial deficits were the result of a shortage of money. He added that unemployment would vanish as soon as everybody had a job.

George Meany said Coolidge was entirely right, but insisted that jobs must be better paid and that the government must prime the pump. The President intervened to say that he didn't even have a pump to prime.

Benjamin Franklin, who was back in town for the bicentennial, then delivered the keynote speech:

"Some people seem to think," he said, "that this country can afford to fight wars, feed and police the world, send everybody to college, bring back the nickel subway fare, invade the moon, raise wages, lower prices, expand production, and stamp out inflation, pollution, cancer, and the singing commercial — all at once. But we must choose," he insisted.

"Choose! Choose!" shouted the people.

Senator Buckley of New York, speaking for the trickle-downers, chose growth, business expansion, lower taxes and bigger depletion allowances.

Senator Javits of New York chose Israel and suggested that we should buy it and make it the 51st state, but was ruled out of order on the ground that we had already paid for it.

Ronald Reagan and George Wallace, speaking for themselves, chose a new political party, "The Wallgans," that would represent "the best of the worst" or vice versa.

The conservationists chose clean air, clean water, and clean living, even as they said, if we were clean broke.

☆ ☆ ☆

The Pentagon chose bigger defense budgets, bigger bombers, and bigger contracts, and better retirement jobs in Big Business.

The Feminists suggested equality of opportunity for all women, but George McGovern insisted that equality of opportunity was not enough and should be replaced by equality of results.

On a point of order, Franklin, obviously in exasperation, regained the microphone and asked what the hell was going on around here.

"Is there no unity," he asked, "no common faith, no common body of knowledge of principle, no common moral and intellectual discipline?" But nobody answered.

MORAL: If you're broke, never invite an old man to the celebration.

TOM WICKER

The Three-Way Bind

WASHINGTON — Mayor Abe Beame of New York will take little comfort in it, but he's not the only government leader who's strapped for cash and getting little help from Washington. Gov. Rafael Hernandes Colon of Puerto Rico was here this past week, describing conditions in the island commonwealth that in some ways make New York look well off.

In Puerto Rico, unemployment has risen as it has in most of the United States, but the island had unemployment — about 12% — higher than New York's even before the present recession began. Now the jobless rate is officially 17%; Hernandes Colon thinks it may be as high as 30% unofficially, due to people who have stopped looking for jobs. One Phillips Fibre Plant has closed, taking 5,000 jobs with it; and since food stamps were made available here in 1973, almost 1.7 million Puerto Ricans have started using them — a level it took 10 years to reach in California.

The inflation rate has climbed to 19% in an economy that must import all its oil, coal, natural gas, more than half its food, and most industrial raw materials. Meanwhile, in a direct reflection of the mainland recession, Puerto Rico's ordinarily flourishing tourist industry is off about 15% annually.

The effect of this three-way crunch on commonwealth finances was predictable. Inflation has driven up the cost of government as unemployment and falling tourism have reduced the revenues from excise and income taxes. Excises, usually the major source of revenue, have been doubly hit by unemployment and declining tourism.

Federal government actions taken to combat the mainland recession, moreover, do not directly affect Puerto Rico. There will be no tax rebates or income tax cuts for Puerto Ricans, who do not pay federal income taxes. The effects of such pump-priming will be felt in Puerto Rico only at second hand; as the mainland economy recovers, consumer demand increases for Puerto Rican products and American tourism picks up again.

Hernandes Colon has responded to Puerto Rico's financial squeeze the only way he could — with stringent economies and higher taxes. No purchases of equipment at all have been budgeted for the coming year, many personnel have been laid off, and property, excise and income taxes have had to be increased an average of 17% to keep the budget in balance. Like Beame, the governor also has had to resort to borrowing; he arranged a $600 million line of credit with New York banks to help in the operating expenses of the "public corporations" that run Puerto Rico's power, telephone, water-sewer and port services.

Hernandes Colon told the Washington Press Club last week that he was "confident that as the American economy as a whole recovers, so will that of Puerto Rico." That could be a long time, however, at the projected rates of recovery in both the Ford administration and congressional budget proposals, and Hernandes Colon has been hard on Beame's heels in seeking some additional financial assistance.

Since 1900, Puerto Rico has had a compact with the federal government providing for a rebate to the commonwealth of all taxes imposed here on products produced in Puerto Rico and shipped to the United Sates. In the first half of this century, these rebates — mainly on rum and tobacco — averaged perhaps $10 million annually; in recent decades, the rebates have increased dramatically to about $100 million this year.

Beginning in 1956, Puerto Rico began to import Venezuelan oil, refine it, and ship gasoline to the United States. Despite the tax compact, the United States never has rebated to Puerto Rico the federal taxes imposed on this product. If it did so retroactively to 1956, Hernandes Colon estimates the total at about $352 million. Or if Washington began making annual rebates of taxes imposed here on Puerto Rican gasoline, the sum would be about $30 million a year. Either way would provide substantial assistance in the commonwealth's cost-revenue squeeze.

So far, Secretary of the Treasury William Simon has refused Hernandes Colon's claim for the gasoline tax rebate, on grounds that Puerto Rican gasoline production had not been contemplated when the tax compact was reached. He has, however, let the matter go to the Department of Justice for consideration of the legal claim; Hernandes Colon, for his part, is willing to settle for something less than a full rebate retroactive to 1956.

One other federal action could help Puerto Rico greatly — an effective stimulus to the construction industry. Now virtually at a standstill, construction used to provide 19% of the commonwealth's gross annual product. And more housing could always be used on an island with a population density of 875 per square mile.

JACK ANDERSON

Bipartisan Plea

WASHINGTON — President Ford made an impassioned appeal to congressional leaders the other day for a return to bipartisan foreign policy.

He called them into the Roosevelt Room next to his office, closed the doors and told them frankly: "The situation ain't good, fellows."

Then he added earnestly: "We face a harsh reality. The national interest requires closer working together between Congress and the President."

"We ought to stress the need for a whole new era of bipartisanship," echoed Rep. William Broomfield, R.-Mich., the top Republican on the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

"Some people want to save money at the expense of defense," noted Rep. Phillip Burton, D. Calif., the Democratic caucus chairman. He asked the President, "How do you deal with it?"

"Look at the broad spectrum and it's obvious," said the President, "that this is no time to knock hell out of our insurance policy."

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger tried to assess the impact of the U.S. setbacks in Southeast Asia upon the rest of the world.

"We can never prove the impact on the Mideast. We lost some edge there, I think," he said. "Japan's prime minister is coming over to ask questions."

Then Kissinger, too, became solemn. "This is a setback, and we're going to pay for it," he said. "We can salvage something through a bipartisan undertaking in our future foreign policy conduct."

Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott turned to the President, who will take over the Mideast negotiations from Kissinger this month. "Can we return to step-by-step negotiations in the Mideast?" asked Scott.

"God knows we tried," was all the President had to say.

Alabama's Gov. George Wallace could wind up with 35% of the delegates at the 1976 Democratic convention, in the opinion of Democratic National Chairman Robert Strauss.

The shrewd Strauss has told close associates that, at worst, Wallace can count on 22% of the delegates. If the crippled Alabaman can keep up the pace, he will go to the convention with over one-third of the delegates, Strauss predicted.

This would mean the Democrats can expect their first multi-ballot convention since 1952 when Adlai Stevenson finally beat out Sen. Estes Kefauver, D.-Tenn., for the presidential nomination.

Although Wallace hasn't formally announced his candidacy, he already has amassed a $3 million campaign chest and is preparing a schedule that will take him to 30 states.

Policy Of The Magazines

Lincoln, Neb.

That picture of "Czar" Valenti on the front page of the May 21 Star, together with his praise of his "rating" system spoiled my day.

He brags about the money the movies have made in competition with TV. He disregards and ignores the fact that when you let down the bars so the movies could commercialize sex and violence, then the older persons who have seen too much of prurient and perverted sex and violence in their lives to find it interesting and entertaining stop going to movies. As for the young unsophisticated who crowd the doors now, even they will stop going when they become fed up.

The Lesson Of Hard Work

Wilber, Neb.

I read the article on Sandra Pomajzl in the May 15 Star.

Just who does she think she is? Does she think she can just sit around and have babies and let the taxpayers pay her expenses? I have always thought it was best to bring up children with two parents.

She is unhappy because she doesn't get welfare money to support her and her unborn child. I was unhappy to hear of someone's wanting money for nothing.

I was taught that you have to work for what you want. So if Sandra wanted a child, she should have worked to save enough money to tide her over her pregnancy. After all, this is her second child.

There are too many people on welfare now. Where is the money to come from? Taxes are so high that we farmers are scraping the bottom of the barrel.

Our sincere thanks for the publicity provided by The Star for IRS taxpayer information. Many Could Get Along

Lincoln, Neb.

As a long-time reader, I must protest two features which recently appeared on The Star's women's page.

The first was the half-page article on "Miltons' Folly" (Mon., May 12). I have known the Miltons for many years and have no animosity toward them, but feel I must comment on the complete irrelevancy and boring aspect of the feature! What was its purpose and its worth? Surely something else could have been found to better fill that spcae!

The second article concerned the problems of a young couple when the man had lost his job. Again, I must comment — what a cry-baby! There are many, many low-income families in Lincoln who could live very nicely on half of this man's wife's salary, or less. I do not know the family involved, but if their situation is bad, then what must it be for the really low-income family?

Please, do everyone a favor and print some stories on people who are REALLY hard hit by our economic situation, and how they cope.

Apologies Called For

Auburn, Neb.

As a spectator of the Class B-1 District Track Meet held in Lincoln on Friday, May 16, I feel The Star sports reporter did a very poor job in getting his facts together before writing his article.

I feel an apology is in order to the Auburn coach, Dale Bradley, and the Auburn team. In reporting the bumping incident which took place during the mile relay, he has openly accused Denis Lessor who was not even running that particular leg of the race, and I feel he is due an apology. Dale D. Bradley was also accused of bumping a boy from Pius X; however, it was also rumored that the Pius X lad came over later and apologized to Dale for bumping him during the mile run.

As a mother of two boys who have participated on the Auburn team, I know that above all, Coach Dale Bradley has always stressed good sportsmanship.

The Star should correct the wrong that has been done to Coach Dale Bradley and the Auburn Bulldogs.

Praise For Whelan, Burbach

Any accurate post-mortem of the legislative session just ended would have to include reference to two men without whose work the Unicameral might have drifted through its 90 working-day schedule.

One is Lt. Governor Gerald Whelan, belonging to the administrative branch, a team-mate of Gov. Jim Exon, whose sparring with senators turned into downright feuding in the closing days of the session. There were those senators who could not be convinced that Whelan's every move was not politically motivated and made on behalf of the governor.

But as presiding officer of the Legislature, he operated with a firm hand and with far, far less bias than he was charged by some. If there was inconsistency between some of his rulings, it was only occasional. The Nebraska Legislature has not seen Whelan's take-charge, knowledgeable, witty style in the presiding officer's chair in years. The lieutenant governor during his first session earns high marks.

As does Speaker Jules Burbach, a creature of the Legislature, and while a member of the same political party not a fast and firm ally of the governor's.

The speakership is the only leadership structure the Legislature as a whole has. There are the executive committee and the committee chairmanships, but those are independent, isolated fiefdoms. The speaker is all there is to hold the 49 senators together on the floor.

Burbach did a fine job in the first year of his two year term in what has been in the past a largely honorary post.

Upon selection, Burbach said he would try to keep to a daily schedule and that he would try to schedule bills of similar content for debate during the same time frame. He did an admirable job of making good on his promise.

Burbach made the senators work especially hard the next to last week, riding herd on them so they passed most of the important bills in time to take action on gubernatorial vetoes.

The Legislature did not accomplish all it might have this session, but it did a good job of winding down to the end and handling legislation of a critical nature.

A generous portion of credit should go to Whelan and Burbach. Their performances illustrate what firm hands can do in keeping lawmakers on course.

Will Congress Act?

President Ford's energy message, if nothing else, is timely. As was noted when the White House announced he would make the address to the nation, Ford was making known his decisions on an energy program "in the absence of any congressional action."

The House Ways and Means Committee has approved an energy bill, but the House has postponed action on it until after Congress returns from its Memorial Day recess. The name of the game the Congress appears to be playing this year is "recess." There isn't too much hope for the Ways and Means package, anyway, observers say.

Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of Ways and Means, said in a Tuesday television interview that members of Congress are aware that an energy program that means anything will likely be unpopular because it will force people to cough up more money or change their lifestyles; thus they are hesitant to pass one. But he says he has confidence they will.

We lack that confidence. We see hesitance to make hard decisions in Congress and we don't think it will act unless pushed — which Ford is doing.

We're reminded of a discussion we had with Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., last December when the Democrats convened at Kansas City. "I expect Congress will act decisively," Reuss said, with regard to energy and economic recovery legislation. "I have never seen a brighter, better-trained and more serious group than this year's class of freshmen. If they can't save this country, nobody can."

That's kind of chilling, isn't it?

We had the feeling then and we do now that Reuss was serious in his estimate of Congress. But we also have the feeling that while Reuss is out there ready to slay the dragons, few of his colleagues are with him.

Nixon In The Dock

NEW YORK — To 375,000 lawyers in the United States, just about the most interesting case in the country today appears on no calendar, is conducted with the greatest secrecy, affects the reputation of one of the best known members of the profession and of the profession itself, and can lead to a history-making judgment. It is the disbarment proceeding conducted by the Association of the Bar of the City of New York against Richard M. Nixon, Esq.

A president can leave the White House on the eve of his impeachment; another president can pardon him. But no such procedure exists, under these circumstances, for an attorney at law. He must face the judgment of his peers, and it is coming.

As a partner in Nixon, Mudge, Rose, Guthrie, Alexander & Mitchell and its predecessor firm, Nixon practiced law in New York City from 1963 until his election in 1968. In theory, there is nothing to prevent Nixon from representing a client in any of the New York courts, but in practice, such an eventuality seems wildly improbable.

Under the Appellate Division of the New York State Supreme Court, the Bar Association is empowered to act as a sort of grand jury to handle investigations about the fitness of any lawyer to practice here and to recommend clearance, discipline or disbarment. All during the Watergate revelations, the role of Nixon has been tracked down by both the American Bar Association and local bar associations.

It was almost all over for Nixon as an attorney last year, when the A.B.A. went on record in favor of prosecuting him. The ex-President's name was actually used in one of the original resolutions of its House of Delegates, but the final version was generalized to preserve the A.B.A.'s policy, it was said, of "not becoming embroiled in personal politics."

The California State Bar came close to censure or disbarment, and then permitted Nixon to make a deal. It turned down his first effort to avoid reprimand because his letter of resignation failed to mention that he was the subject of a disciplinary investigation. His second letter — carefully framed to admit no wrongdoing — effectively ended the case:

". . . I, Richard M. Nixon, against whom an investigation is pending, hereby resign as a member of the State Bar of California and relinquish all right to practice law in the State of California and agree and understand that, in the event this resignation is accepted and I thereafter file a petition for reinstatement, the state bar will consider in connection therewith in addition to their appropriate matters all disciplinary proceedings and matters pending against me at the time said resignation is accepted."

This "lawyer's letter" was delivered to the California Supreme Court, before which Nixon had originally practiced. The California Bar and Supreme Court have done nothing with it — and the case appears closed.

☆ ☆ ☆

Now it is the turn of the Bar Association of the City of New York. Those who seek his disbarment point out that Nixon's closest aides — Mitchell, Ehrlichman, Dean, Colson, Kalmbach, Mardian, Liddy, Hunt, Krogh and a dozen other legal spear carriers — have lost their licenses or face disciplinary action for such crimes as obstruction of justice, conspiracy and violations against the rights of citizens. They underscore that Nixon himself was named as an unindicted co-conspirator in the conspiracy to obstruct justice.

Some members of the bar have said that the only way to remove the tarnished image of the profession caused by the Watergate disbarments is to demonstrate that all lawyers including ex-presidents, must be treated equally.

There have been rumors of plea bargaining by Nixon or his attorney with the Bar Association. It is said that an effort has been made to achieve a "California" solution, somewhat strengthened to include either a formal resignation or a promise never to practice law again in New York. However, some members of the Bar Association want Nixon to follow the standard form in such matters — including a recitation of charges against him that would, practically, be an admission of guilt. That would be quite a price for him to pay for resignation.

If the "Esq." were to be removed from the name of Richard M. Nixon — who, ironically, appointed the Chief Justice and three associate justices of the United States Supreme Court — the action would spell more than an end to his professional career. It could come as close as any semi-official body can to defining his Watergate activities in legal terms and thereby recording a quasi-legal judgment on his presidency.

JAMES RESTON

The Dominoes Of Blame

NEW YORK — Once upon a time — this was way back in 1975 — the richest city in the world went broke. The mayor went to the governor of the state, but the governor was broke too. Both of them then appealed to the president of the richest nation in all history, but he was out trying to borrow $80 billion to pay last year's bills.

"This is a pretty pickle," said the President, who was a great phrase-maker, so he issued a proclamation summoning all the wise men and women of all generations to meet at Madison Square Garden to analyze the problem. The Garden was vacant then because the Knicks hadn't made the playoffs.

In his opening speech, the President blamed the Congress for appropriating money it didn't have. Then the governors blamed Washington for not voting enough money for the states, and the Congress blamed the people for living the life of Riley. Riley, who was sitting in the balcony, protested that his life had actually been miserable ever since the government took away his free liquor stamps.

Calvin Coolidge tottered to the podium and said financial deficits were the result of a shortage of money. He added that unemployment would vanish as soon as everybody had a job.

George Meany said Coolidge was entirely right, but insisted that jobs must be better paid and that the government must prime the pump. The President intervened to say that he didn't even have a pump to prime.

Benjamin Franklin, who was back in town for the bicentennial, then delivered the keynote speech:

"Some people seem to think," he said, "that this country can afford to fight wars, feed and police the world, send everybody to college, bring back the nickel subway fare, invade the moon, raise wages, lower prices, expand production, and stamp out inflation, pollution, cancer, and the singing commercial — all at once. But we must choose," he insisted.

"Choose! Choose!" shouted the people.

Senator Buckley of New York, speaking for the trickle-downers, chose growth, business expansion, lower taxes and bigger depletion allowances.

Senator Javits of New York chose Israel and suggested that we should buy it and make it the 51st state, but was ruled out of order on the ground that we had already paid for it.

Ronald Reagan and George Wallace, speaking for themselves, chose a new political party, "The Wallgans," that would represent "the best of the worst" or vice versa.

The conservationists chose clean air, clean water, and clean living, even as they said, if we were clean broke.

☆ ☆ ☆

The Pentagon chose bigger defense budgets, bigger bombers, and bigger contracts, and better retirement jobs in Big Business.

The Feminists suggested equality of opportunity for all women, but George McGovern insisted that equality of opportunity was not enough and should be replaced by equality of results.

On a point of order, Franklin, obviously in exasperation, regained the microphone and asked what the hell was going on around here.

"Is there no unity," he asked, "no common faith, no common body of knowledge of principle, no common moral and intellectual discipline?" But nobody answered.

MORAL: If you're broke, never invite an old man to the celebration.

The Three-Way Bind

WASHINGTON — Mayor Abe Beame of New York will take little comfort in it, but he's not the only government leader who's strapped for cash and getting little help from Washington. Gov. Rafael Hernandes Colon of Puerto Rico was here this past week, describing conditions in the island commonwealth that in some ways make New York look well off.

In Puerto Rico, unemployment has risen as it has in most of the United States, but the island had unemployment — about 12% — higher than New York's even before the present recession began. Now the jobless rate is officially 17%; Hernandes Colon thinks it may be as high as 30% unofficially, due to people who have stopped looking for jobs. One Phillips Fibre Plant has closed, taking 5,000 jobs with it; and since food stamps were made available here in 1973, almost 1.7 million Puerto Ricans have started using them — a level it took 10 years to reach in California.

The inflation rate has climbed to 19% in an economy that must import all its oil, coal, natural gas, more than half its food, and most industrial raw materials. Meanwhile, in a direct reflection of the mainland recession, Puerto Rico's ordinarily flourishing tourist industry is off about 15% annually.

The effect of this three-way crunch on commonwealth finances was predictable. Inflation has driven up the cost of government as unemployment and falling tourism have reduced the revenues from excise and income taxes. Excises, usually the major source of revenue, have been doubly hit by unemployment and declining tourism.

Federal government actions taken to combat the mainland recession, moreover, do not directly affect Puerto Rico. There will be no tax rebates or income tax cuts for Puerto Ricans, who do not pay federal income taxes. The effects of such pump-priming will be felt in Puerto Rico only at second hand; as the mainland economy recovers, consumer demand increases for Puerto Rican products and American tourism picks up again.

Hernandes Colon has responded to Puerto Rico's financial squeeze the only way he could — with stringent economies and higher taxes. No purchases of equipment at all have been budgeted for the coming year, many personnel have been laid off, and property, excise and income taxes have had to be increased an average of 17% to keep the budget in balance. Like Beame, the governor also has had to resort to borrowing; he arranged a $600 million line of credit with New York banks to help in the operating expenses of the "public corporations" that run Puerto Rico's power, telephone, water-sewer and port services.

Hernandes Colon told the Washington Press Club last week that he was "confident that as the American economy as a whole recovers, so will that of Puerto Rico." That could be a long time, however, at the projected rates of recovery in both the Ford administration and congressional budget proposals, and Hernandes Colon has been hard on Beame's heels in seeking some additional financial assistance.

Since 1900, Puerto Rico has had a compact with the federal government providing for a rebate to the commonwealth of all taxes imposed here on products produced in Puerto Rico and shipped to the United Sates. In the first half of this century, these rebates — mainly on rum and tobacco — averaged perhaps $10 million annually; in recent decades, the rebates have increased dramatically to about $100 million this year.

Beginning in 1956, Puerto Rico began to import Venezuelan oil, refine it, and ship gasoline to the United States. Despite the tax compact, the United States never has rebated to Puerto Rico the federal taxes imposed on this product. If it did so retroactively to 1956, Hernandes Colon estimates the total at about $352 million. Or if Washington began making annual rebates of taxes imposed here on Puerto Rican gasoline, the sum would be about $30 million a year. Either way would provide substantial assistance in the commonwealth's cost-revenue squeeze.

So far, Secretary of the Treasury William Simon has refused Hernandes Colon's claim for the gasoline tax rebate, on grounds that Puerto Rican gasoline production had not been contemplated when the tax compact was reached. He has, however, let the matter go to the Department of Justice for consideration of the legal claim; Hernandes Colon, for his part, is willing to settle for something less than a full rebate retroactive to 1956.

One other federal action could help Puerto Rico greatly — an effective stimulus to the construction industry. Now virtually at a standstill, construction used to provide 19% of the commonwealth's gross annual product. And more housing could always be used on an island with a population density of 875 per square mile.

Bipartisan Plea

WASHINGTON — President Ford made an impassioned appeal to congressional leaders the other day for a return to bipartisan foreign policy.

He called them into the Roosevelt Room next to his office, closed the doors and told them frankly: "The situation ain't good, fellows."

Then he added earnestly: "We face a harsh reality. The national interest requires closer working together between Congress and the President."

"We ought to stress the need for a whole new era of bipartisanship," echoed Rep. William Broomfield, R.-Mich., the top Republican on the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

"Some people want to save money at the expense of defense," noted Rep. Phillip Burton, D. Calif., the Democratic caucus chairman. He asked the President, "How do you deal with it?"

"Look at the broad spectrum and it's obvious," said the President, "that this is no time to knock hell out of our insurance policy."

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger tried to assess the impact of the U.S. setbacks in Southeast Asia upon the rest of the world.

"We can never prove the impact on the Mideast. We lost some edge there, I think," he said. "Japan's prime minister is coming over to ask questions."

Airline To Pay $150,000 Fine

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board fined American Airlines a record $150,000 Tuesday for using corporate funds for political contributions, including a $55,000 contribution to the re-election campaign of former President Richard M. Nixon.

American earlier had admitted the contribution to Nixon to the Watergate special prosecutor and was fined $5,000 by a federal court for that offense. The CAB action came after the board began its own investigation into political contributions by airlines under its regulation.

The board announced earlier this year it was investigating the accounting procedures of American and of Braniff International Airways because of admissions by officials of those airlines of illegal corporate contributions.

The CAB said it found that American had illegally channeled approximately $275,000 into political contributions to candidates for federal and state offices between 1964 and 1973. The board said American had failed to report these contributions to the board in the annual financial statements which the airline must file.

The CAB order requires American and certain of its executives to halt the unlawful accounting and reporting practices and to start certain bookkeeping changes and to make periodic reports to the board for the next five years.

The CAB said it would have fined American an even greater amount had it not been for the airline's voluntary disclosure of the illegal payments, its cooperation with the investigation and the repayment of $125,000 to the airline by company officials from their personal resources.

"This penalty should indicate the board's thorough disapproval of American's conduct and stand as a warning to others who are tempted to breach their obligations to the board and the public," said CAB Chairman John E. Robson.

The board's order provides that American cannot include the penalty amount nor related legal and accounting expenses in its accounting procedures when figuring air fares. The CAB said this would assure that the illegal expenditures could not be passed on to air travelers in the form of higher air fares.

The previous record fine imposed by the CAB against an airline was $113,000 against Saturn Airways for operating illegal charter flights.

The fine against American was a negotiated settlement and was worked out by attorneys for American and the CAB. Braniff also reportedly is negotiating with the CAB to settle a similar complaint against that Texas-based airline.

American was accused by the CAB in a complaint filed in March of building a secret cash fund for political contributions through a series of bookkeeping tricks that allegedly included rakeoffs from a subsidiary and phony commission payments.

The CAB announcement of the action against American came in a news release. A board spokesman said the actual order, giving more specific details, would be made public Wednesday.

An American Airlines spokesman in New York said of the CAB action:

"The only reaction we can make to it is we're very pleased to note that the CAB indicated they would have imposed a greater amount if we hadn't voluntarily disclosed the illegal payments and had not fully cooperated. We're just very happy that the whole thing is behind us."

Fewer Women Dying Of Abortions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Substantially fewer women are dying or being injured from abortions now that they are legal, a study panel of the National Academy of Sciences said Tuesday.

The group's report suggests that if restrictions are replaced on abortions, the death and injury rates will climb as women again seek illegal and usually unsafe operations to terminate unwanted pregnancies.

Lawmakers on the federal and state level have sought to place restrictions on the controversial operation in the wake of the Supreme Court's 1973 decision legalizing abortion.

In Congress there have been attempts to propose a constitutional amendment making abortions illegal. In several states there have been attempts to limit or forbid abortions.

The Supreme Court decision in January 1973, said no restrictions can be placed on abortions during the first three months of pregnancy, called the first trimester.

During the second trimester, states may only place restrictions to make certain safe medical practices are followed. During the final trimester, the court ruled, a state could forbid abortion unless it was necessary to preserve the life and health of the mother.

"If restrictive laws are reinstated, we can look to an upturn in the poor outcomes and health problems that come from illegal abortions," said Dr. Henry W. Foster, professor of obstetrics and gynecology at Meharry Medical College.

He said data available indicates that since abortion was legalized "illegal abortions are markedly down."

Animal Friends Threaten Suit

Washington (UPI) — A conservation group Tuesday threatened legal action against the Interior Department on behalf of the clouded leopard, the monk seal, the Asian elephant and scores of other animals.

The Fund for Animals accused the department of ignoring the will of Congress by refusing to place 175 species of animals on the U.S. endangered list.

Chrysler Corp. Top Executives Get Full Salary

DETROIT (AP) — Top executives of Chrysler Corp., their salaries cut in half last December, are back to full salary because the company's financial prospects have improved, a spokesman said Tuesday.

After taking a 50 per cent cut for December, the salaries of the 40 officers were gradually increased during the next three months until they were back to normal April 1, the spokesman said.

He said the salary cuts over the four-month period roughly totaled a full month's pay.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor-producer Tony Bill has moved his company to Warner Brothers, the studio has announced.

Rejection Said 'Proper'

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (AP) — The Dutch ambassador said Tuesday it was "quite proper" for Tanzania to reject demands of Zairian guerrillas who hold two American students and a young Dutch woman under threat of death. But he urged the Dar es Salaam government to explore all possible means of freeing the captives.

Diplomatic sources said there apparently had been no direct negotiations so far between Tanzania and the guerrillas, who hold their hostages in a wild, mountainous region of eastern Zaire on the western side of Lake Tanganyika.

The guerrillas, members of the Popular Revolutionary party, a Marxist group, have threatened to shoot their captives — snatched May 19 from an animal research center in Tanzania on the eastern shore of the lake — unless the Tanzanian government pays $460,000, frees a number of the party's leaders from Tanzanian jails and hands over hundreds of rifles, cannon and thousands of rounds of ammunitition.

Airline To Pay $150,000 Fine

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board fined American Airlines a record $150,000 Tuesday for using corporate funds for political contributions, including a $55,000 contribution to the re-election campaign of former President Richard M. Nixon.

American earlier had admitted the contribution to Nixon to the Watergate special prosecutor and was fined $5,000 by a federal court for that offense. The CAB action came after the board began its own investigation into political contributions by airlines under its regulation.

The board announced earlier this year it was investigating the accounting procedures of American and of Braniff International Airways because of admissions by officials of those airlines of illegal corporate contributions.

The CAB said it found that American had illegally channeled approximately $275,000 into political contributions to candidates for federal and state offices between 1964 and 1973. The board said American had failed to report these contributions to the board in the annual financial statements which the airline must file.

The CAB order requires American and certain of its executives to halt the unlawful accounting and reporting practices and to start certain bookkeeping changes and to make periodic reports to the board for the next five years.

The CAB said it would have fined American an even greater amount had it not been for the airline's voluntary disclosure of the illegal payments, its cooperation with the investigation and the repayment of $125,000 to the airline by company officials from their personal resources.

"This penalty should indicate the board's thorough disapproval of American's conduct and stand as a warning to others who are tempted to breach their obligations to the board and the public," said CAB Chairman John E. Robson.

The board's order provides that American cannot include the penalty amount nor related legal and accounting expenses in its accounting procedures when figuring air fares. The CAB said this would assure that the illegal expenditures could not be passed on to air travelers in the form of higher air fares.

The previous record fine imposed by the CAB against an airline was $113,000 against Saturn Airways for operating illegal charter flights.

The fine against American was a negotiated settlement and was worked out by attorneys for American and the CAB. Braniff also reportedly is negotiating with the CAB to settle a similar complaint against that Texas-based airline.

American was accused by the CAB in a complaint filed in March of building a secret cash fund for political contributions through a series of bookkeeping tricks that allegedly included rakeoffs from a subsidiary and phony commission payments.

The CAB announcement of the action against American came in a news release. A board spokesman said the actual order, giving more specific details, would be made public Wednesday.

An American Airlines spokesman in New York said of the CAB action:

"The only reaction we can make to it is we're very pleased to note that the CAB indicated they would have imposed a greater amount if we hadn't voluntarily disclosed the illegal payments and had not fully cooperated. We're just very happy that the whole thing is behind us."

Fewer Women Dying Of Abortions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Substantially fewer women are dying or being injured from abortions now that they are legal, a study panel of the National Academy of Sciences said Tuesday.

The group's report suggests that if restrictions are replaced on abortions, the death and injury rates will climb as women again seek illegal and usually unsafe operations to terminate unwanted pregnancies.

Lawmakers on the federal and state level have sought to place restrictions on the controversial operation in the wake of the Supreme Court's 1973 decision legalizing abortion.

In Congress there have been attempts to propose a constitutional amendment making abortions illegal. In several states there have been attempts to limit or forbid abortions.

The Supreme Court decision in January 1973, said no restrictions can be placed on abortions during the first three months of pregnancy, called the first trimester.

During the second trimester, states may only place restrictions to make certain safe medical practices are followed. During the final trimester, the court ruled, a state could forbid abortion unless it was necessary to preserve the life and health of the mother.

"If restrictive laws are reinstated, we can look to an upturn in the poor outcomes and health problems that come from illegal abortions," said Dr. Henry W. Foster, professor of obstetrics and gynecology at Meharry Medical College.

He said data available indicates that since abortion was legalized "illegal abortions are markedly down."

Chrysler Corp. Top Executives Get Full Salary

DETROIT (AP) — Top executives of Chrysler Corp., their salaries cut in half last December, are back to full salary because the company's financial prospects have improved, a spokesman said Tuesday.

After taking a 50 per cent cut for December, the salaries of the 40 officers were gradually increased during the next three months until they were back to normal April 1, the spokesman said.

He said the salary cuts over the four-month period roughly totaled a full month's pay.

Actor-Producer Moves Company

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor-producer Tony Bill has moved his company to Warner Brothers, the studio has announced.

Bill, who coproduced "The Sting" and plays a role in 'Shampoo," will make several films for Warner Brothers. Among the titles: "Supership" and "Horse Opera."

Animal Friends Threaten Suit

Washington (UPI) — A conservation group Tuesday threatened legal action against the Interior Department on behalf of the clouded leopard, the monk seal, the Asian elephant and scores of other animals.

The Fund for Animals accused the department of ignoring the will of Congress by refusing to place 175 species of animals on the U.S. endangered list.

Rejection Said 'Proper'

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (AP) — The Dutch ambassador said Tuesday it was "quite proper" for Tanzania to reject demands of Zairian guerrillas who hold two American students and a young Dutch woman under threat of death. But he urged the Dar es Salaam government to explore all possible means of freeing the captives.

Diplomatic sources said there apparently had been no direct negotiations so far between Tanzania and the guerrillas, who hold their hostages in a wild, mountainous region of eastern Zaire on the western side of Lake Tanganyika.

Elwood's 'Slower Pace' Draws Magazine Editor

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Elwood — It's one mighty jump from the press box of the New York Jets to the quiet goings-on of this Gosper County community.

But Terry Sutherland took the leap. After a month as managing editor of The Elwood Bulletin, he's as happy as Joe Namath — one of his sports world acquaintances — in a love-hungry harem.

The 31-year-old bachelor swapped a $25,000-plus executive editor position with Sports Digest for a hopefully slower pace. The move also satisfied a longtime yen to edit a small-town weekly as his father once did in California.

"Already I know more people in this community of 600 than I did among New York's eight million," said the Pennsylvania native. "And people here are so much more trusting than those of the Southwest or the east. This has to be the nicest bunch of people in the country."

Weary of metropolitan pressures, Sutherland happened upon the Elwood opportunity through college classmate Norm Taylor, editor-publisher of the neighboring Overton Observer. The two transplants are graduates of New Mexico Highlands University.

Publisher Mervin Deck not only signed n the newcomer but made sure his slowdown wasn't too abrupt. Already the former sportswriter has been involved in three special sections of The Bulletin.

Besides his experience with Sports Digest, Sutherland spent four years with the Associated Press and a television station in Albuquerque, N.M. The year in New York did have some compensations.

"It was a real challenge to work alongside the writing heavyweights," commented the new editor. "And I did enjoy contacts with sports greats such as Namath, Ernie Banks and Don Woods."

A personal friend of Woods, Sutherland intends to invite the AFC rookie-of-the-year to speak at an Elwood sports banquet within the next few weeks. He and the San Diego Charger running back have visited Namath together in the latter's well known penthouse.

One fringe benefit which Sutherland weighed in moving to Elwood was its proximity to one of the state's favorite playgrounds, Johnson Lake. Sailing has long been a favorite participation sport.

"I have a 17-foot day sailer back in New York to dispose of," said the editor. "Then I'll be buying one out here and it'll be off to Johnson."

Stuhr Museum To Get Unique Steam Engine

Grand Island (AP) — The vintage narrow gange steam locomotive of the Nebraska Midlands Railroad Co. will be doing its chugging in Grand Island in the near future.

The Hall County Museum Board Tuesday authorized Stuhr Museum Executive Director Jack Learned to finalize an agreement to purchase the operational railroad, lock, stock and barrel.

The railroad was built about the turn of the century, and has been a tourist attraction in North Platte for a number of years. It consists of the 80 ton engine, which saw service in Alaska, 13 cars and about one mile of track.

James M. Conley of North Platte is the president and principle stockholder in the unique rail operation.

Learned said a total of $75,000, $50,000 to acquire the railroad and $25,000 to refurbish and install the rail stock at the Stuhr Museum, is to be secured through subscriptions from the Grand Island-Hall County business community and interested individuals.

The project has won endorsement by the Nebraska American Revolution Bicentennial Commission and the Hall County Bicentennial Committee, along with many local civic and business groups.

Several area firms have already offered manpower and equipment at no cost to get the train to Stuhr.

The train ran into some problems recently when it tried to expand its run.

Officials felt it would be a bigger tourist attraction for the North Platte area if it could run from the Buffalo Bill Rest Ranch to the Wild West Arena, where the Buffalo Bill Wild West Show is held each year.

However, the expansion project had to be scrapped when the necessary right of way could not be purchased.

Economic Boost Due To Twister

Omaha (AP) — Millions of dollars are expected to be spent in the next few months to repair damage from the killer twister that hit Omaha three weeks ago, and those anticipated expenditures are expected to give the area's sluggish economy a boost.

Most of the impact has not yet been felt, some businessmen say, because insurance companies are still processing the claims.

However, contractors, realtors, car dealers, furniture store owners are expecting an upsurge in business.

Inventories are high because of the recent sales slump, and there should be no shortage of building materials.

A number of homebuilders and contractors have already felt the impact in orders for repair work.

"Anybody who wants to be busy today is busy," said Hal Grove, president of the Metropolitan Omaha Builders Association.

More than 300 unemployed construction workers were given tornado-related work shortly after the funnel ripped through the city, and many who had been working only two or three days per week are putting in 40-hours now, said Gordon McDonald, president of the Omaha Building and Construction Trades Council.

McDonald noted that some workers have been laid off again because much of the minor repair jobs have been completed. He said job availabilities should increase again as more rebuilding plans are completed.

Howard Drew, vice president of N. P. Dodge Co., said the tornado has not had much impact on home-buying because most of the victims are planning to rebuild. However, he said, the rental market has improved.

Lester Marcus, vice president and general merchandise manager of J. L. Brandeis & Sons, said he is expecting a major upswing in furniture and appliance sales when victims get their homes rebuilt.

Car dealers are also looking forward to increased sales.

Jack Muir, owner of the Omaha Salvage Pool, which is collecting wrecked cars for insurance companies, estimated that about 1,200 cars were destroyed by the tornado. Some auto dealers say they have heard estimates as high as 2,500 cars.

"If estimates hold any water, it could mean a 20 per cent increase in business," said John Kraft, president of the Omaha New Car Dealers Association.

The twister has also caused a boom in the dry cleaning business.

M. R. "Bob" Thurmond, owner of Evans Cleaners & Laundery, said he had to increase his plant's operations to 15 hours per day for many days following the storm. The plant normally operates eight hours daily.

Evans also cleaned a lot of clothing donated for use by tornado victims, and did not charge for the work.

Officals of another major Omaha dry cleaning operation said they noted an increase in business, especially in drapery and carpet cleaning orders.

Sidney Man Files Suit In 2-Car Crash

Sidney (UPI) — A Sidney man has filed a $249,875 lawsuit in Cheyenne County District Court in connection with a traffic accident here in October, 1974.

Alexandria Worster filed the suit against Hubert Schuessler, also of Sidney, alleging that Schuessler failed to yield the right of way, stop at a stop sign and was driving his car at an excessive rate of speed.

In addition, Worster said in the suit that Schuessler failed to have his car under reasonable control and was not looking for other vehicles.

He sought $200,000 for injuries he suffered, $2,390 for past medical expenses, $20,000 for future medical expenses, $2,100 for damages to his car, $1,078 for loss of employment and income and $8,300 for the hiring of outside help to undertake responsibilities that Worster could no longer carry out.

The accident occurred on Oct. 31, 1974, at a Sidney intersection.

James M Conley of North Platte is the president and principle stockholder in the unique rail operation.

Learned said a total of $75,000, $50 000 to acquire the railroad and $25 000 to refurbish and install the rail stock at the Stuhr Museum, is to be secured through subscriptions from the Grand Island-Hall County business community and interested individuals

The project has won endorsement by the Nebraska American Revolution Bicentennial Commission and the Hall County Bicentennial Committee, along with many local civic and business groups.

Several area firms have already offered manpower and equipment at no cost to get the train to Stuhr.

The train ran into some problems recently when it tried to expand its run.

Officials felt it would be a bigger tourist attraction for the North Platte area if it could run from the Buffalo Bill Rest Ranch to the Wild West Arena, where the Buffalo Bill Wild West Show is held each year.

However, the expansion project had to be scrapped when the necessary right of way could not be purchased.

Economic Boost Due To Twister

Omaha (AP) — Millions of dollars are expected to be spent in the next few months to repair damage from the killer twister that hit Omaha three weeks ago, and those anticipated expenditures are expected to give the area's sluggish economy a boost

Most of the impact has not yet been felt, some businessmen say, because insurance companies are still processing the claims

However, contractors, realtors, car dealers, furniture store owners are expecting an upsurge in business.

Inventories are high because of the recent sales slump, and there should be no shortage of building materials

A number of homebuilders and contractors have already felt the impact in orders for repair work

"Anybody who wants to be busy today is busy," said Hal Grove, president of the Metropolitan Omaha Builders Association.

More than 300 unemployed construction workers were given tornado-related work shortly after the funnel ripped through the city, and many who had been working only two or three days per week are putting in 40-hours now, said Gordon McDonald, president of the Omaha Building and Construction Trades Council.

McDonald noted that some workers have been laid off again because much of the minor repair jobs have been completed. He said job availabilities should increase again as more rebuilding plans are completed.

Howard Drew, vice president of N. P. Dodge Co., said the tornado has not had much impact on home-buying because most of the victims are planning to rebuild. However, he said, the rental market has improved.

Lester Marcus, vice president and general merchandise manager of J. L Brandeis & Sons, said he is expecting a major upswing in furniture and appliance sales when victims get their homes rebuilt.

Car dealers are also looking forward to increased sales.

Jack Muir, owner of the Omaha Salvage Pool, which is collecting wrecked cars for insurance companies, estimated that about 1,200 cars were destroyed by the tornado Some auto dealers say they have heard estimates as high as 2,500 cars.

"If estimates hold any water, it could mean a 20 per cent increase in business," said John Kraft, president of the Omaha New Car Dealers Association

The twister has also caused a boom in the dry cleaning business

M R. "Bob" Thurmond, owner of Evans Cleaners & Laundery, said he had to increase his plant's operations to 15 hours per day for many days following the storm The plant normally operates eight hours daily

Evans also cleaned a lot of clothing donated for use by tornado victims, and did not charge for the work.

Officals of another major Omaha dry cleaning operation said they noted an increase in business, especially in drapery and carpet cleaning orders.

Sidney Man Files Suit In 2-Car Crash

Sidney (UPI) — A Sidney man has filed a $249,875 lawsuit in Cheyenne County District Court in connection with a traffic accident here in October, 1974

Alexandria Worster filed the suit against Hubert Schuessler, also of Sidney, alleging that Schuessler failed to yield the right of way, stop at a stop sign and was driving his car at an excessive rate of speed.

In addition, Worster said in the suit that Schuessler failed to have his car under reasonable control and was not looking for other vehicles

He sought $200.000 for injuries he suffered, $2.390 for past medical expenses, $20.000 for future medical expenses, $2,100 for damages to his car, $1.078 for loss of employment and income and $8.300 for the hiring of outside help to undertake responsibilities that Worster could no longer carry out.

The accident occurred on Oct. 31, 1974, at a Sidney intersection.

Corn Planting Maintains Speed

Nebraska's corn planting continued at a rapid pace again last week with more than 90% planted, ahead of the normal rate of 85% but below last year's 95% at this time, the State-Federal Bureau of Agricultural Statistics reported Tuesday.

Some late-planted corn is not up, still waiting for moisture, according to the bureau's weekly crop-weather report.

Some irrigators have begun irrigating to get the corn germinated and to replenish subsoil moisture, the report disclosed.

Winter Wheat Fair

Winter wheat is in mostly fair to good condition statewide, the bureau said, with reports ranging from poor to excellent.

"Thin and spotty stands of wheat have been experiencing weed infestations," the report said. As of now, nearly 70% of the wheat has jointed with 10% headed out, but the crop needs moisture statewide, the ag experts said.

Sorghum is more than 45% planted to date, just below last year and a normal rate of 50%.

Other comments:

Soybeans are more than 50% planted, compared to 40% a year ago and 30% for normal.

Alfalfa Cutting Begun

Alfalfa is in mostly good condition. Farmers are beginning to take their first cutting and have more than 10% cut at this time. Alfalfa weevils continue to cause damage in the southern two-thirds of the state.

Recent hot weather and winds dried out the topsoil, leaving the topsoil moisture supplies at 53% short in the counties reporting as of last Friday. Subsoil moisture supplies were short in 77% of the counties reporting, compared with 17% short a year ago.

Pasture and range feed supplies improved considerably from last week and are now short in only 53% of the counties reporting. Most counties report the need for additional moisture to insure continued growth for the summer.

Rainfall throughout the state during the past week as reported by the National Weather Service included:

Hail At Nebraska City Destroys Cherry Orchard

Nebraska City (AP) — Marble and golf ball-sized hail that fell in the Nebraska City area Saturday afternoon and Saturday night destroyed a 30-acre cherry orchard only a month away from harvest.

William Oberdieck, owner of the Kimmel Orchard, said the cherry crop was ruined, but the fruit can be used in wine or juice making.

"It's going to be a long year for cherry lovers, but a heyday for wine makers," Oberdieck said.

The 60-acre Kimmel apple orchard and the nearby Catron-Myshoi apple orchard suffered minor damage in the storm.

Oberdieck said the apples are just in their beginning stages, and he hopes the hail damage will go out before picking time next fall.

Omaha Store Illegally Spied On Workers

Washington (UPI) — A National Labor Relations Board administrative law judge has found an Omaha retail store in violation of federal law in that it placed several employes engaged in union activities under close surveillance.

Judge John P. Von Rohr ruled in the complaint filed by Retail Clerks Union Local 1015 against Target Store No. 36 in Omaha.

While ruling that Target management violated certain portions of the National Labor Relations Act, Von Rohr, however, ruled partially in favor of Target in the case of one employe and totally in favor of the firm in the firing of two others.

Von Rohr said the most "severe" violation by the firm was that store manager Thomas Heller ordered a security guard, John Owens Jr., to listen to the conversations between union representatives and store employes and to report the contents of the conversations back to Heller.

The union lost the representation election.

Owens testified that he was summoned to Heller's office on July 29, which was three days after the election. On this occasion, Owens testified, Heller stated he was to continue watching Pauline Wagner and Ruby Currigan.

Wagner was suspended three days for leaving her car in an unauthorized parking area. She subsequently resigned from the company and then claimed she was unlawfully terminated.

Von Rohr said he found the "real reason for her suspension was based on anti-union activities," but dismissed the allegation that she was unlawfully terminated.

Von Rohr further ruled that the two other employes, Currigan and Maureen Penton, were dismissed for reasons other than their union activities.

Von Rohr ordered Target to reimburse Wagner for the pay lost while she was under suspension, to refrain from interrogating employes on union matters and to stop surveillance of employes' union activities.

The ruling may be appealed to the full NLRB.

Von Rohr said he found the "real reason for her suspension was based on anti-union activities," but dismissed the allegation that she was unlawfully terminated.

Von Rohr further ruled that the two other employes, Currigan and Maureen Penton, were dismissed for reasons other than their union activities.

Von Rohr ordered Target to reimburse Wagner for the pay lost while she was under suspension, to refrain from interrogating employes on union matters and to stop surveillance of employes' union activities.

The ruling may be appealed to the full NLRB.

Ponca Is First Town To Get Refugee Doctor

Ponca — This Dixon County community, located in extreme northeast Nebraska, apparently is the first in the state to acquire a Vietnamese refugee doctor.

Forth-three-year-old Dr. Nguyen Tu Bang, his wife and their three sons arrived here Monday night after a flight from Camp Pendleton, Calif. to Sioux City, Ia.

The family was met by a Ponca delegation and given an informal reception, attended by about 50, at the Catholic Church.

Dr. Bang, his wife, Lan, and Van, 5, Vu, 3, and Khahn, 2, spent the past three weeks at Camp Pendleton.

The Vietnamese physician was with a clinic in Nhntang, a city north of Saigon, when the Communists moved into South Vietnam. He sent his family to Saigon as a safety precaution and then met them there later after fleeing Nhntang on a moment's notice.

Dr. Bang, who speaks English fluently, was in San Antonio, Tex., about 15 years ago taking postgraduate study at Brooks Army Hospital, according to Leon Conrad, editor of the Nebraska Journal-Leader at Ponca.

Mrs. Bang taught French in a Vietnamese college.

Conrad said Ponca was notified about a week ago Dr. Bang was coming here. The community worked through the Northeast Nebraska Health Planning Council to seek a Vietnamese doctor, Conrad said.

The Bangs were overnight guests Monday of Ponca banker F.A. Kingsbury and his wife. Tuesday the family moved into the Catholic rectory where they will reside until at least the middle of June when other quarters will be available.

Conrad said Ponca residents are enthusiastically conducting a drive for food, clothing and money to provide for the refugee family.

The Bangs were forced to leave practically all of their possessions in South Vietnam, the editor added.

Conrad said a $500,000 nursing home is currently under construction at Ponca which will be equipped with a clinic and will probably serve as Dr. Bang's headquarters when he receives his certification to practice in Nebraska.

In the meantime, there was speculation that the doctor might work for a Sioux City physician as an aide.

Ponca has been without a doctor for more than five years, Conrad added.

Meanwhile, Albion News publisher John Ward said one of four Vietnamese doctors bound for Albion was enroute there Tuesday.

Dr. Do Quang Truong, his wife and their two children arrived at about 10 p.m. at the Grand Island airport, where they were greeted by representatives of Albion, Spalding and Cedar Rapids. The family will stay at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Doug Evans, at least for the time being, Ward said.

Dr. Tran My Chic, his wife Dr. Dang Bich Sinh Thi and their four children, and Dr. Thien Dam, his pharmacist wife and their three children are expected later in the week, Ward said, adding that "we've had a heckuva time just getting them on airlines."

Dr. Do and his family were cleared by immigration officials last Friday, he said.

Rex Higley, director of the Health Department's Bureau of Examining Boards, said 28 Vietnamese refugee physicians at Camp Pendleton are still interested in coming to Nebraska. He said those 28 doctors may be eligible to take and pass the Nebraska medical practice exam.

Higley said another six physicians who were interested in coming to Nebraska have changed their minds.

Higley made two trips to Camp Pendleton to interview doctors who might come to Nebraska.

2 Lawyers Accused Of Misusing Money

Two attorneys charged with improper use of clients' funds could be disbarred as a result of actions filed Tuesday in the Nebraska Supreme Court.

The cases, brought by the Nebraska Bar Association, allege that Charles Ledwith of Omaha and Lee A. Larsen of Papillion acted unprofessionally and should be disciplined.

In the first case, Ledwith, as executor of his father-in-law's estate, is accused of witholding $12,815 from the heirs and converting it to his own use.

The incident involved the estate of Nels Nelson of Gage County; the complaint was filed by an heir, Wayne Nelson.

Larsen is charged with seven counts of misrepresenting his clients' wishes to the court, commingling clients' settlements with his own funds, giving clients erroneous information and delaying action on cases.

The complaints were voiced by seven different clients of Larsen.

Larsen allegedly attempted to withold the full amount of a $682 settlement from Richard Barkdoll, a client. He was also charged by Robert Thomas with failing to file a stipulation seeking a reduction in child support payments.

The Bar Association's second and fourth judicial district committees on inquiry and advisory committee investigated the cases and found sufficient grounds to ask the court to consider disciplinary action against the two.

Program In Health Reviewed

The Lancaster County Health Planning Council Tuesday reviewed program developments and the proposed budget of the Lincoln-Lancaster Health Department.

Dr. Ed Lyman, director of the health department, told of his budget request of $1,288,000 for fiscal year 1976. This figure represents a 24% increase over last year's budget of $993,000.

Major increases, he said, relate to expanded nursing services, including three licensed practical nurses, and increased environmental health services, particularly in the areas of noise control and occupational health.

Improved separate telephone services and expanded data processing capabilities also account for the increased budget request.

The $295,000 budget increase includes a transfer of $51,358 from the police to the health department for operating the nursing and professional services program for prisoners in the city jail.

Reba Shaffer, director of the Lincoln-Lancaster Commission on Aging's meals and nutrition, reviewed the program's costs.

The overall cost of each meal, she said, runs to $2.64. The cost of the food alone comes to $1.51 per meal.

The five-day-a-week in-town program will be expanded to rural areas once a week, she explained.

Ms. Shafer also noted the supporting services of the program, ranging from transportation to outreach work, all done by volunteers.

Jo Ann Bragg and Margrethe Ahlschwede were confirmed as newly elected voting members of the council.

Chadron State Granted $158,000 For 2 Programs

Chadron (UPI) — The U.S. Office of Education has awarded grants of more than $158,000 to fund two programs operated by Chadron State College.

The Upward Bound program, beginning its ninth year on the Chadron campus, will receive $83,144, while a $75,000 grant will be used to continue the student special services program, beginning its fifth year at Chadron State.

The Upward Bound funds will be used to provide college preparatory services, including counseling, summer job placement and college training for 70 Chadron-area high school juniors and seniors who for financial or other reasons may not consider attending post-secondary educational institutions.

The special services program provides academic support services such as counseling, tutoring and development studies to approximately 250 freshmen and sophomores at Chadron State annually.

The funding was announced by Tom Henry, the college's student assistance program director.

Henry said the experimental career opportunities program will be discontinued June 30 when its final year ends.

State Board Of Education Okays 665 Programs For Handicapped

The State Board of Education Tuesday approved education programs for the handicapped in 665 school districts.

The action clears the way for a June 30 payment of state funds to the school districts, bringing the total spent during fiscal 1974-75 to $10.3 million.

State Education Commissioner Anne Campbell said more than 20,000 students participated in the special education program in the current fiscal year.

She said 227 school districts reported they had no handicapped children, and another 322 districts, mostly Class I, did not submit proposed plans and budgets.

Some 27 plans and budgets submitted by school districts will be reviewed at the board's June meeting.

Mrs. Campbell said the budgets exceed funds available, so the school districts will not receive all they requested.

Smaller Classes Cost More

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The fewer pupils per teacher, the more it costs.

"That's not an argument for larger classes," Supt. John Prasch said Tuesday, "but a look at the realities" of the impact on the 1975-76 budget that Lincoln Board of Education members will begin shaping next month.

The board is leaning toward a pupil-teacher ratio more favorable to the children, and had asked Prasch to figure out the effect on the budget — that is, Lincoln taxpayers' pocketbooks.

Down 1, Up $422,114

Based on 29,000 students, Prasch said, classes of 28 will require almost 1,036 teachers. Reducing that class size by only one, to 27, would require 38.3 more teachers costing an additional $422,114.

For each subsequent class size reduction, the cost would go up disproportionately, he said. For example, a lid of 19 students per class, reduced from a 28-maximum, would cost an additional $839,472 for 76.3 more teachers.

Prasch pointed out that such ratios are deceptive, because class sizes vary in a single school day. He said he'd rather seek staffing patterns that "make better use of people's time" — the students as well as teachers.

Grouping To Fit Class

"There are situations where (class) sizes ought to be greater," such as in showing films, and in physical education, he said. "We have to find the proper grouping to fit the instruction."

Such groupings, by design, now vary from building to building throughout the Lincoln district, which has decentralized administration.

Prasch said he prefers "having as much specialized help as possible" with music teachers, for example, working as "an integrated part of the (building) staff" instead of serving several schools.

The district is "encouraging staff members with a combination of skills without much success," however, he said.

But pupil-teacher ratios have improved significantly since 1968-69, Prasch said. That resulted partly from an enrollment drop-off with no coinciding decline in professional staff.

From 22.4 To 19.2

To illustrate, Prasch said in 1968-69, the ratio of students elementary school certified staff, including principals, was 22.4. In 1974-75, it is 19.2. The grand total ratio, counting clerical staff and teacher aides, decreased from 21 to 15.4.

In the junior high schools, the ratios in the same comparison declined from 20.6 to 16.5. In the senior highs, it dropped from 19.9 six years ago to 17.3 this school year.

The ratios will decline again this fall in elementary and junior high schools, Prasch said, because of expected enrollment declines, but the high school ratio should remain steady.

Staff Based On Numbers

School staff is provided on the basis of the number of students, Prasch said, explaining that population shifts have caused a need for expanding or building new schools while total enrollment is declining.

While 16 elementary schools had enrollments above 550 previously, only nine fall into that category in 1974-75. And while the district vacated Bryan, Hayward and Willard Schools, it has built Kahoa and Zeman, and Hill is under construction to serve increasingly denser populations in the city's edges.

All this means Lincoln is "operating some buildings at less than capacity, which makes for some inefficiencies," Prasch said.

Special Needs Enter In

The district also assigns staff beyond ratio considerations, Prasch said, to serve special needs such as small schools and programs for the disadvantaged, gifted and students requiring special reading training.

Lincoln schools, too, are "making a much greater commitment" to special education programs, Prasch said. In salaries alone, costs for special education have more than doubled from $542,740 in 1968-69 to $1,286,383 in 1974-75, even though enrollment shrank.

And "other rapidly expanding programs" such as girls' athletics and transportation are also making their mark on budget requirements, he said.

Crowds Produce Achievement

Ironically, "children achieve best in our most crowded and understaffed schools," Prasch said. He added that he can "statistically prove" that children in the least crowded schools with the most favorable staff ratios have the poorest achievement.

Still, the ratio question is "a policy decision you need to make," Prasch told board members.

The board made one temporary policy commitment, voting to continue 11 handicapped students in the resident "Training for Occupational Proficiency (TOP)" program at Hayward School in the fall.

Since those students will be older than 18, new State Department of Education regulations declare the costs of their special education — approximately $3,600 each per year — ineligible for state reimbursement.

Prasch said parents of the youngsters are "very anxious," because the cost shift to the district threatened their termination in TOP. The superintendent said that in the spring the board must define new program completion criteria, comparable to graduation, to prevent future cut-off problems.

Prasch Suggests State Clear Up 'Confusion' On Special Education

Supt. John Prasch said Tuesday the question of whether the Lincoln Public Schools can legally contract for special education programs with private or parochial institutions "should be answered on a statewide basis by the attorney general or the State Department of Education."

Prasch recommended that the Lincoln Board of Education deny contracts with Villa Marie in Lincoln and Martin Luther Home in Beatrice until the "confusion" is resolved.

By taking no action on the recurring problem, the board stood by Prasch's recommendation.

Under the state special education law, LB403, Prasch said a companion attorney general's opinion allows school districts to contract for services in other districts.

Basic Problem Remains

However, Prasch said Lincoln board attorney Edwin Perry has advised that the opinion "didn't answer the basic problem" of using public money to pay for programs in private or parochial schools.

While other Nebraska schools are entering into such contracts, "we do not feel we have legal authorization to do this," Prasch declared.

The Lincoln district complies with LB403, providing educational opportunities for handicapped students, Prasch said. But the law doesn't require and Lincoln doesn't offer residential programs, available at Villa Marie and Martin Luther Home.

Roundup Peered At

In another program adjudged a problem by the Lincoln school board, the Kindergarten Roundup went under the magnifying glass Tuesday.

Board President Lou Roper had criticized the pre-kindergarten academic testing, saying if the results were used subjectively for academic groupings, the placements were invalid.

In another example, Roper said one 4-year-old wrote his name on the test, then was asked to say his name out loud. Roper said the boy replied, "It's right there." Because he didn't say his name verbally, the teacher "scored it wrong."

Student services supervisor Rudolph Fredstrom said based on four years of use, he concluded the "pre-school inventory did give us a reasonably valid measure of a child's readiness for kindergarten work." It is "not a test," nor "a basis for admission to kindergarten," he said. Rather, it's "an early attempt to identify learning problems."

Follow-up tests indicate placements are usually valid, Fredstrom said. "Most important, it can alert the teacher" to children's needs, to "adjust the instructional program" for them.

Roper, Fredstrom Clash

Roper said the "big hangup most of the parents have" is that teachers group kindergartners "on the basis of this test." Fredstrom denied it. "Well, it's happening," Roper countered, labeling the practice "poor."

Ron Brandt, associate superintendent for instruction, said if teachers are using the Kindergarten Roundup results improperly, it's his responsibility. "We would hope that that grouping is temporary."

However, the gap between the number of children who can already read upon entering kindergarten and the number of poor achievers "is widening," Brandt said.

Roper called for an "appraisal after the kids have adapted to the school environment."

Fredstrom said it should be continued for pre-kindergartners but with improved teacher direction regarding the results. And he suggested that "we get parents in and talk about this."

Followup Needed

Prasch agreed that "we need to follow up" on teacher use of the results, while retaining "some measure of where kids are, so our program speaks to their needs" and doesn't waste their time.

Board members praised other aspects of Kindergarten Roundup that test children for vision, speech and hearing problems.

Brandt and math consultant Ron Masise also reported that slightly more than 24% of 2,120 ninth-graders who took the Beckmann-Beal Math Competencies Test scored at least the minimum to allow a waiver of their senior high school graduation requirement in math.

"But I don't think we should be satisifed" with those results, Massie said. To strengthen the competency testing program, the district plans to revise the 9th-grade general math course and change some instruction in 7th and 8th.

He and Brandt said they will also write additional test forms, using more items equivalent in difficulty, and will offer senior high courses to allow students lacking basic math competencies to acquire them before graduation.

Roper also suggested coordinating math programs from kindergarten through 12th grade. He cited instruction methods that now vary from school to school.

Cost Of Clothes Not Only Factor

New York (UPI) — Design, construction and ease of laundering are as important as price in children's clothing, says the consumer education department of Cornell University.

It advises looking for elastic waistbands, and wide seams or large hems that can be let out as the child grows. Choose clothing a child can put on easily without help, preferably with large snaps or zippers instead of buttons or hooks and eyes.

Smaller Classes Cost More

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The fewer pupils per teacher, the more it costs.

"That's not an argument for larger classes," Supt. John Prasch said Tuesday, "but a look at the realities" of the impact on the 1975-76 budget that Lincoln Board of Education members will begin shaping next month.

The board is leaning toward a pupil-teacher ratio more favorable to the children, and had asked Prasch to figure out the effect on the budget — that is, Lincoln taxpayers' pocketbooks.

Down 1, Up $422,114

Based on 29,000 students, Prasch said, classes of 28 will require almost 1,036 teachers. Reducing that class size by only one, to 27, would require 38.3 more teachers costing an additional $422,114.

For each subsequent class size reduction, the cost would go up disproportionately, he said. For example, a lid of 19 students per class, reduced from a 28-maximum, would cost an additional $839,472 for 76.3 more teachers.

Prasch pointed out that such ratios are deceptive, because class sizes vary in a single school day. He said he'd rather seek staffing patterns that "make better use of people's time" — the students as well as teachers.

Grouping To Fit Class

"There are situations where (class) sizes ought to be greater," such as in showing films, and in physical education, he said. "We have to find the proper grouping to fit the instruction."

Such groupings, by design, now vary from building to building throughout the Lincoln district, which has decentralized administration.

Prasch said he prefers "having as much specialized help as possible" with music teachers, for example, working as "an integrated part of the (building) staff" instead of serving several schools.

The district is "encouraging staff members with a combination of skills without much success," however, he said.

But pupil-teacher ratios have improved significantly since 1968-69, Prasch said. That resulted partly from an enrollment drop-off with no coinciding decline in professional staff.

From 22.4 To 19.2

To illustrate, Prasch said in 1968-69, the ratio of students elementary school certified staff, including principals, was 22.4. In 1974-75, it is 19.2. The grand total ratio, counting clerical staff and teacher aides, decreased from 21 to 15.4.

In the junior high schools, the ratios in the same comparison declined from 20.6 to 16.5. In the senior highs, it dropped from 19.9 six years ago to 17.3 this school year.

The ratios will decline again this fall in elementary and junior high schools, Prasch said, because of expected enrollment declines, but the high school ratio should remain steady.

Staff Based On Numbers

School staff is provided on the basis of the number of students, Prasch said, explaining that population shifts have caused a need for expanding or building new schools while total enrollment is declining.

While 16 elementary schools had enrollments above 550 previously, only nine fall into that category in 1974-75. And while the district vacated Bryan, Hayward and Willard Schools, it has built Kahoa and Zeman, and Hill is under construction to serve increasingly denser populations in the city's edges.

All this means Lincoln is "operating some buildings at less than capacity, which makes for some inefficiencies," Prasch said.

Special Needs Enter In

The district also assigns staff beyond ratio considerations, Prasch said, to serve special needs such as small schools and programs for the disadvantaged, gifted and students requiring special reading training.

Lincoln schools, too, are "making a much greater commitment" to special education programs, Prasch said. In salaries alone, costs for special education have more than doubled from $542,740 in 1968-69 to $1,286,383 in 1974-75, even though enrollment shrank.

And "other rapidly expanding programs" such as girls' athletics and transportation are also making their mark on budget requirements, he said.

Crowds Produce Achievement

Ironically, "children achieve best in our most crowded and understaffed schools," Prasch said. He added that he can "statistically prove" that children in the least crowded schools with the most favorable staff ratios have the poorest achievement.

Still, the ratio question is "a policy decision you need to make," Prasch told board members.

The board made one temporary policy commitment, voting to continue 11 handicapped students in the resident "Training for Occupational Proficiency (TOP)" program at Hayward School in the fall.

Since those students will be older than 18, new State Department of Education regulations declare the costs of their special education — approximately $3,600 each per year — ineligible for state reimbursement.

Prasch said parents of the youngsters are "very anxious," because the cost shift to the district threatened their termination in TOP. The superintendent said that in the spring the board must define new program completion criteria, comparable to graduation, to prevent future cut-off problems.

Prasch Suggests State Clear Up 'Confusion' On Special Education

Supt. John Prasch said Tuesday the question of whether the Lincoln Public Schools can legally contract for special education programs with private or parochial institutions "should be answered on a statewide basis by the attorney general or the State Department of Education."

Prasch recommended that the Lincoln Board of Education deny contracts with Villa Marie in Lincoln and Martin Luther Home in Beatrice until the "confusion" is resolved.

By taking no action on the recurring problem, the board stood by Prasch's recommendation.

Under the state special education law, LB403, Prasch said a companion attorney general's opinion allows school districts to contract for services in other districts.

Basic Problem Remains

However, Prasch said Lincoln board attorney Edwin Perry has advised that the opinion "didn't answer the basic problem" of using public money to pay for programs in private or parochial schools.

While other Nebraska schools are entering into such contracts, "we do not feel we have legal authorization to do this," Prasch declared.

Exon Clears Desk Of All But Three Bills

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Gov. J. James Exon Tuesday cleared his desk of all but three bills passed by the 1975 Legislature which were awaiting his signature or veto.

He signed these bills:

—LB577, allowing the state to restrict pumping of groundwater for irrigation in areas where groundwater levels are critical.

The bill, considered a milestone in the evolution of water law, is of critical importance to irrigators in parts of the state where the growth of center pivot irrigation systems are lowering groundwater levels.

—LB589, setting a 12% individual income tax ceiling for the rest of 1975 and increasing the corporate income tax on net income over $25,000 from 25% to 27½% of the individual rate. The individual rate is now 10%.

The bill also authorizes the State Board of Equalization to meet within 15 days to adjust the 1975 income tax to meet spending authorized by the Legislature.

State Tax Commissioner William E. Peters said the board will meet June 6 to adjust the rate. Senators who wrote the bill expect the board will have to increase the individual rate right up to the 12% ceiling.

The increase will be retroactive to Jan. 1 and will take a larger bite out of wage earners' paychecks.

—LB522, allowing parochial school children to ride public school buses. The children will be able to board the buses at the point along the regular bus route closest to their home and get off at the point nearest their school.

The bill had been opposed by the Nebraska Civil Liberties Unioin which decried it as an infringement on the constitutional separation of church and state.

—LB443 and 443A, providing $1.2 million in state subsidies to help defray the costs of public transit systems, including the Lincoln Transportation System.

LB213, authorizing state controls over any billboards visible from an Interstate or primary highway. Until now, the state could not control any billboards beyond 660 feet of the right-of-way. The bill is part of a highway legislation package sought by the federal government.

LB328, requiring motorcyclists and their passengers to wear safety helmets. This also was sought by the federal government which threatened to withhold highway aid if it was not passed.

—LB142, which authorizes the hunting of mourning doves in Nebraska and repeals an earlier law allowing roadside hunting.

LB410, which repeals limitations placed on the use of comprehensive development plans by counties and limits spot zoning practices.

—LB325, which broadens the state's open meetings law.

—LB203, requiring corporations to report ownership of agricultural lands.

—LB453, which liberalizes standards for write-in votes.

Bill Hoppner, an Exon aide, said late Tuesday the only bills awaiting Exon's action are LB237, the measure reforming public intoxication laws and increasing liquor and beer taxes to fund treatment centers; LB507, which authorizes the Game and Parks Commission to purchase a tract in Sarpy County, and LB472, which tightens privacy surrounding state personnel data.

Hoppner said Exon hasn't yet decided whether to sign or veto the measures.

Four Building Contracts OKd

By United Press International

Gov. J. James Exon announced Tuesday approval of construction contracts for four state building contracts. He also approved preliminary plans for another project.

The four building contracts approved included projects at the Beatrice State Home, the University of Nebraska-Lincoln East Campus and the NU Medical Center.

Preliminary plans were approved for a State Department of Education diagnostic research center at Cozad. The Legislature appropriated $860,000 for that project and called for a 21,800-square-foot masonry building with brick facing.

At the Beatrice State Home, contracts were approved for the remodeling of Building "F" at a total construction cost of $280,000.

Contract low bidders included Beall Construction Co. of Lincoln, general, $111,860; W. F. Anderson of Holdrege, mechanical, $115,885, and ABC Electric Co., Hastings, electrical, $53,230.

Also at the Beatrice State Home, contracts were approved for air conditioning in the old hospital building. Best Plumbing and Heating of Beatrice turned in the low bid of $74,679.

At the East Campus, contracts were approved for the animal research facility and animal holding facility.

NU regents had recommended approval of a general contract with Olson Construction Co., Lincoln, for $1,468,975; a mechanical contract with Natkin & Co., Lincoln, for $886,200, and an electrical contract with OK Electric Co., Lincoln, for $265,000.

For the medical Center, Exon approved contracts for the pharmacy building.

The low bid for the general contract was Lueder Construction Co., Omaha, for $2,771,500. That price included subcontracts with the Ray Martin Co., Omaha, mechanical; Modern Electric Co., Omaha, electrical; Montgomery Elevator Co., Omaha, elevator, and Electronic Sound Co., Omaha, sound system.

Regent Scolds Senators For Usurping Power

Grand Island (AP) — A member of the University of Nebraska Board of Regents has severely blasted the Legislature, saying he feels the state senators have been usurping the powers constitutionally delegated to the regents.

The state senators have established "an all-time record for assuming control of the responsibilities of the Board of Regents," said Dr. Robert Koefoot of Grand Island in a news release Tuesday.

Koefoot said the senators have interfered in areas of the university which were "none of their business."

Minutes, One Hour

For example, Koefoot said, the lawmakers devoted 10 minutes to considering an override of the Gov. J. J. Exon's veto of the university budget, and an hour discussing the football ticket situation at the university.

"It is high time the Legislature recognized the role of the Board of Regents in governing the university," he added.

"I acknowledge that in order to obtain funds to manage and run the university, it is necessary to have the support of the Legislature . . . but does that mean we have to bow to their every wish?" asked Koefoot.

Koefoot noted that each regent represents about 100,000 voters, while state senators represent less than 25 per cent of that number.

"Speaking as one member of the board, and not for the board as a whole, I cannot believe that it was the intent of the writers of the constitution to have legislators involved frequently in every detail of the offices of the university," Koefoot said.

Attempt Failed

Koefoot said an attempt was made during the just-ended legislative session to get a coordinating council for higher education in the state (LB579). The attempt made it through the Unicameral's Education Committee, but died on the floor.

Nebraska is the only state without such a coordinating council, Koefoot said. "Why, because our state senators feel it is more important to waste their time on items such as the 55-mile-an-hour speed limit, which has already been set by the federal government."

Koefoot also put partial blame on the Legislature for the number of faculty members and administrators who have been leaving the university for greener pastures.

Handcuffs Out

"The Legislature has handcuffed them, and fixed salaries by law with no standards of merit, achievement or performance. The Board of Regents and the administration should be given the freedom to manage the university, or it should be turned over to the governor, the Legislature and their staffs," Koefoot said.

Koefoot said he thinks its time that the State Supreme Court is called on to rule on the meaning of the constitution when it established a Board of Regents to govern the University of Nebraska.

"I don't believe it (the constitution) meant that the Legislature fix the salaries of every employe. I don't believe it intended for the Legislature to establish faculty positions, and I certainly don't believe that it intended for the Legislature to fix the football ticket policy," Koefoot concluded.

Ag Program's Death May Be Oversight

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

A program involving 275 Nebraska farmers in a record-keeping and educational program may have been a victim of an oversight by the Legislature in its closing days.

The Nebraskaland Farm and Ranch Business Management Education Program is homeless as a result of the passage of LB344 and LB216 by the Legislature.

The bills ended the life of the State Board of Technical Colleges by returning control of the colleges to the local areas.

There were three statewide programs operated by the board when it was voted out of existence.

They were the emergency medical training, the fire service and the farm management programs. The first two were apparently moved to the state fire marshal's office but the farm management program apparently was not continued.

Dr. Duane Acker, vice chancellor for the University of Nebraska Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, said, "The program is still in the community colleges. If we can offer any kind of workshop for the instructors within our extension operation or in the department of agricultural economics, I am sure it will be considered, but I don't see any way we can pick up the program itself."

With the Legislature gone home, there is apparently nothing that can be done about the problem unless it is done at the local level in the community colleges.

Lynn Schluckebier, state coordinator for the program, has asked Gov. J. James Exon for assistance but most observers feel there is little the governor can do.

Without any new funds to operate the program, the university won't be able to take it over either, according to Acker.

The department of agricultural economics is in the process of setting up a farm records program which could possibly absorb some of the 275 farm people in the program but it would not be operated in the same manner.

Ironically the university's program was set up to avoid interfering with the community college program. "We didn't want to duplicate something that was already being done," Acker said.

"We will just have to sit down with the community college people and see what we have that they can work with. It is still their program," Acker said.

The program has been reported to return about $4 in income to the farmers involved for each $1 invested in the record-keeping system.

Road Change Would Add Acre To Wilderness Park

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

A road change proposal that could add to rather than take land away from Wilderness Park was presented to the Lancaster County Board Tuesday.

And the local Sierra Club said it had no objections.

County Engineer Marvin Nuernberger wants to relocate 27th Street near Saltillo Road in order to eliminate a dangerous railroad crossing where at least two people have been killed in recent years.

The possible relocation of 27th is not a new idea, but Nuernberger finally got an agreement worked out with the Burlington Northern Railroad on that crossing — an agreement which had been pending for three years, Nuernberger said.

One-Acre Triangle

Moving 27th eastward so that the railroad crossing on 27th is eliminated would make available a small, triangular-shaped piece of land adjacent to Wilderness Park. The one-acre parcel is currently cut off from the park by 27th.

The land, owned by Jennings B. Haggarty, should be acquired by the county and added to Wilderness Park, Nuernberger said.

The Sierra Club would have no objections to this road change or the addition to Wilderness Park, according to Marge Schlitt, chairman of the club's Wilderness Park Committee.

Creek Straightening Disliked

But the Bluestem Chapter does object to an earlier proposal by Nuernberger to rechannel Salt Creek in Wilderness Park and widen Old Cheney Road to four lanes within the park.

The county engineer wants to straighten out a portion of the creek and move the Old Cheney Road bridge 800 feet to the west over the newly created channel.

"We think the relocation of the creek is extreme, unnecessary and will change the character of the park," Ms. Schlitt said, adding that the group feels a four-lane road in that area is also unnecessary.

The club has also been fighting a proposal to take several acres of Wilderness Park land through which the West Bypass would go.

27th St. Proposal OKd

The board approved the agreement with Burlington Northern for the elimination of the grade crossing on 27th Street but has taken no action on the Old Cheney Road proposal.

Most of the County Board meeting was taken up with signing agreements which will bring more federal dollars into the county for road improvements.

The board approved resolutions calling for $140,000 and $592,000 in culvert construction (a 90-10 federal-local split). The money will be used to eliminate narrow culverts on county roads. The board also approved a resolution for $19,000 in grading and surfacing of a blind intersection at 70th and Pioneers (90-10 federal-local split).

The board also signed agreements for about $2 million in improvements to seven county roads. Of the $2 million, about $600,000 will be county funds and the rest federal money, Nuernberger said.

The improvements include grading and surfacing for Raymond East Road, Roca East Road, Firth East Road, Bennet North Road and Waverly Northwest Road, and bridge improvements at Lincoln North Road (14th Street) and Waverly North and West Road.

Color Scheme Approved

In other action the board approved a colorful remodeling scheme for the south wing of Lancaster Manor.

The color scheme in bright oranges, reds and yellows or blues and greens, was designed by Robyn Langvardt of Davis, Fenton, Stange and Darling Architects.

The doors of each of the 10 rooms on each floor will be a different color and will accent a color in the curtains of the room, Ms. Langvardt said.

"As people get older their eyesight dims and they can't distinguish the pastel shades," Ms. Langvardt told the board, obviously surprised by the bright patterns and colors.

"I was as surprised as you are," Manor Director Jerry Gibbons told the board. "But the residents oohed and aahed the samples."

4 Star Reporters Win Swope Contest Honors

Four Lincoln Star reporters won honors in the national Herbert Bayard Swope Memorial Awards contest, sponsored by Newspaper Editorial Workshop.

Nancy Hicks was the highest finisher with a second honorable mention in the feature writing category. Finalists in the same category from The Star were: Lynn Zerschling, Cynthia Johnson and Gracia McAndrew.

More than 200 newspapers were entered in the contest, which is intended to determine the best writers on the staffs of U.S. newspapers. Newspaper Editorial Workshop said it picked reporters "whose work showed fluidity of style, cohesiveness, flair and creativity plus a mastery of such basics as clarity and completeness."

Ms. Hicks recently won four first places in the 1975 Nebraska Press Women's Communication Contest and was awarded second and third place in the 1975 National Federation of Press Women competition. Ms. Johnson and Ms. McAndrew shared, with Ms. Hicks, in the third place award for women's pages.

Mrs. John Cox

Mrs. John Cox Club President

Mrs. John Cox was elected president of the Heritage League Tuesday.

Other officers elected are: Mrs. Carl Keister, first vice president; Mrs. Warren Griffith, second vice president; Mrs. Charles Bartlett, secretary; and Mrs. George Klein, treasurer.

The League is a service organization that sponsors projects such as vision tests for grade school children, and the Holiday of Trees, which raises money for non-profit organizations.

GM Recalling 2,000 Cadillacs

Detroit (AP) — Cadillac Motor Car Division of General Motors has recalled about 2,000 1974 and 1975 model cars equipped with an air cushion restraint system for repair.

The division said an underhood wiring harness routing, which detects bumper impact in an accident, could be faulty.

Court Action Is Planned, AFSCME Officials Say

Union officials Tuesday planned to go to court after the 18-month-old talks between Labor Department employes and the Exon administration broke off.

Dave Newell, a spokesman for the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes (AFSCME), said representatives of Gov. J. James Exon had not been bargaining in good faith.

AFSCME, which represents roughly 500 employes in the Labor Department, had been seeking binding arbitration as part of the grievance procedure and 10% plus cost of living raises.

Newell said AFSCME conceded "many issues" to Exon's bargaining committee, headed by attorney Norm Krivosha, to no avail. "They were totally unwilling to negotiate," Newell said.

Plans call for AFSCME to ask the State Court of Industrial Relations to rule on the impasse.

Lynn Pursel of Nebraska City and Tom Wilson of Omaha, two members of AFSCME's negotiating team, said their demands were not unreasonable.

Pursel said AFSCME had "nothing to lose by going to court."

Exon Clears Desk Of All But Three Bills

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Gov. J. James Exon Tuesday cleared his desk of all but three bills passed by the 1975 Legislature which were awaiting his signature or veto.

He signed these bills:

—LB577, allowing the state to restrict pumping of groundwater for irrigation in areas where groundwater levels are critical.

The bill, considered a milestone in the evolution of water law, is of critical importance to irrigators in parts of the state where the growth of center pivot irrigation systems are lowering groundwater levels.

—LB589, setting a 12% individual income tax ceiling for the rest of 1975 and increasing the corporate income tax on net income over $25,000 from 25% to 27½% of the individual rate. The individual rate is now 10%.

The bill also authorizes the State Board of Equalization to meet within 15 days to adjust the 1975 income tax to meet spending authorized by the Legislature.

State Tax Commissioner William E. Peters said the board will meet June 6 to adjust the rate. Senators who wrote the bill expect the board will have to increase the individual rate right up to the 12% ceiling.

The increase will be retroactive to Jan. 1 and will take a larger bite out of wage earners' paychecks.

—LB522, allowing parochial school children to ride public school buses. The children will be able to board the buses at the point along the regular bus route closest to their home and get off at the point nearest their school.

The bill had been opposed by the Nebraska Civil Liberties Unioin which decried it as an infringement on the constitutional separation of church and state.

—LB443 and 443A, providing $1.2 million in state subsidies to help defray the costs of public transit systems, including the Lincoln Transportation System.

LB213, authorizing state controls over any billboards visible from an Interstate or primary highway. Until now, the state could not control any billboards beyond 660 feet of the right-of-way. The bill is part of a highway legislation package sought by the federal government.

LB328, requiring motorcyclists and their passengers to wear safety helmets. This also was sought by the federal government which threatened to withhold highway aid if it was not passed.

—LB142, which authorizes the hunting of mourning doves in Nebraska and repeals an earlier law allowing roadside hunting.

LB410, which repeals limitations placed on the use of comprehensive development plans by counties and limits spot zoning practices.

—LB325, which broadens the state's open meetings law.

—LB203, requiring corporations to report ownership of agricultural lands.

—LB453, which liberalizes standards for write-in votes.

Bill Hoppner, an Exon aide, said late Tuesday the only bills awaiting Exon's action are LB237, the measure reforming public intoxication laws and increasing liquor and beer taxes to fund treatment centers; LB507, which authorizes the Game and Parks Commission to purchase a tract in Sarpy County, and LB472, which tightens privacy surrounding state personnel data.

Hoppner said Exon hasn't yet decided whether to sign or veto the measures.

Four Building Contracts OKd

By United Press International

Gov. J. James Exon announced Tuesday approval of construction contracts for four state building contracts. He also approved preliminary plans for another project.

The four building contracts approved included projects at the Beatrice State Home, the University of Nebraska-Lincoln East Campus and the NU Medical Center.

Preliminary plans were approved for a State Department of Education diagnostic research center at Cozad. The Legislature appropriated $860,000 for that project and called for a 21,800-square-foot masonry building with brick facing.

At the Beatrice State Home, contracts were approved for the remodeling of Building "F" at a total construction cost of $280,000.

Contract low bidders included Beall Construction Co. of Lincoln, general, $111,860; W. F. Anderson of Holdrege, mechanical, $115,885, and ABC Electric Co., Hastings, electrical, $53,230.

Also at the Beatrice State Home, contracts were approved for air conditioning in the old hospital building. Best Plumbing and Heating of Beatrice turned in the low bid of $74,679.

At the East Campus, contracts were approved for the animal research facility and animal holding facility.

NU regents had recommended approval of a general contract with Olson Construction Co., Lincoln, for $1,468,975; a mechanical contract with Natkin & Co., Lincoln, for $886,200, and an electrical contract with OK Electric Co., Lincoln, for $265,000.

For the medical Center, Exon approved contracts for the pharmacy building.

The low bid for the general contract was Lueder Construction Co., Omaha, for $2,771,500. That price included subcontracts with the Ray Martin Co., Omaha, mechanical; Modern Electric Co., Omaha, electrical; Montgomery Elevator Co., Omaha, elevator, and Electronic Sound Co., Omaha, sound system.

Regent Scolds Senators For Usurping Power

Grand Island (AP) — A member of the University of Nebraska Board of Regents has severely blasted the Legislature, saying he feels the state senators have been usurping the powers constitutionally delegated to the regents.

The state senators have established "an all-time record for assuming control of the responsibilities of the Board of Regents," said Dr. Robert Koefoot of Grand Island in a news release Tuesday.

Koefoot said the senators have interfered in areas of the university which were "none of their business."

Minutes, One Hour

For example, Koefoot said, the lawmakers devoted 10 minutes to considering an override of the Gov. J. J. Exon's veto of the university budget, and an hour discussing the football ticket situation at the university.

"It is high time the Legislature recognized the role of the Board of Regents in governing the university," he added.

"I acknowledge that in order to obtain funds to manage and run the university, it is necessary to have the support of the Legislature . . . but does that mean we have to bow to their every wish?" asked Koefoot.

Koefoot noted that each regent represents about 100,000 voters, while state senators represent less than 25 per cent of that number.

"Speaking as one member of the board, and not for the board as a whole, I cannot believe that it was the intent of the writers of the constitution to have legislators involved frequently in every detail of the offices of the university," Koefoot said.

Attempt Failed

Koefoot said an attempt was made during the just-ended legislative session to get a coordinating council for higher education in the state (LB579). The attempt made it through the Unicameral's Education Committee, but died on the floor.

Nebraska is the only state without such a coordinating council, Koefoot said. "Why, because our state senators feel it is more important to waste their time on items such as the 55-mile-an-hour speed limit, which has already been set by the federal government."

Koefoot also put partial blame on the Legislature for the number of faculty members and administrators who have been leaving the university for greener pastures.

Handcuffs Out

"The Legislature has handcuffed them, and fixed salaries by law with no standards of merit, achievement or performance. The Board of Regents and the administration should be given the freedom to manage the university, or it should be turned over to the governor, the Legislature and their staffs," Koefoot said.

Koefoot said he thinks its time that the State Supreme Court is called on to rule on the meaning of the constitution when it established a Board of Regents to govern the University of Nebraska.

"I don't believe it (the constitution) meant that the Legislature fix the salaries of every employe. I don't believe it intended for the Legislature to establish faculty positions, and I certainly don't believe that it intended for the Legislature to fix the football ticket policy," Koefoot concluded.

Ag Program's Death May Be Oversight

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

A program involving 275 Nebraska farmers in a record-keeping and educational program may have been a victim of an oversight by the Legislature in its closing days.

The Nebraskaland Farm and Ranch Business Management Education Program is homeless as a result of the passage of LB344 and LB216 by the Legislature.

The bills ended the life of the State Board of Technical Colleges by returning control of the colleges to the local areas.

There were three statewide programs operated by the board when it was voted out of existence.

They were the emergency medical training, the fire service and the farm management programs. The first two were apparently moved to the state fire marshal's office but the farm management program apparently was not continued.

Dr. Duane Acker, vice chancellor for the University of Nebraska Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, said, "The program is still in the community colleges. If we can offer any kind of workshop for the instructors within our extension operation or in the department of agricultural economics. I am sure it will be considered, but I don't see any way we can pick up the program itself."

With the Legislature gone home, there is apparently nothing that can be done about the problem unless it is done at the local level in the community colleges.

Lynn Schluckebier, state coordinator for the program, has asked Gov. J. James Exon for assistance but most observers feel there is little the governor can do.

Without any new funds to operate the program, the university won't be able to take it over either, according to Acker.

The department of agricultural economics is in the process of setting up a farm records program which could possibly absorb some of the 275 farm people in the program but it would not be operated in the same manner.

Ironically the university's program was set up to avoid interfering with the community college program. "We didn't want to duplicate something that was already being done," Acker said.

"We will just have to sit down with the community college people and see what we have that they can work with. It is still their program," Acker said.

The program has been reported to return about $4 in income to the farmers involved for each $1 invested in the record-keeping system.

Lincoln Physicians Generally Support Lamaze Method

By GRACIA McANDREW

Three years ago, when John and Mary Bills were expecting their first child, the first physician they visited would not allow John in the delivery room because he would "contaminate" the baby.

The couple had planned to use the Lamaze method of childbirth, which calls for active participation on the part of the husband during labor and delivery. So, they sought out another physician.

Since 1970, when Lamaze classes were introduced in Lincoln by Mary Alinder, professionals' attitudes toward the method have changed.

Two groups in the city — Childbirth Education Association of Lincoln (CEA) and the American Society of Psycho-Propohylaxis in Obstetrics (ASPO) at St. Elizabeth Community Health Center — provide Lamaze childbirth preparation classes.

Generally, the two programs have gained wide support; and, if not support, at least acceptance from those in the Lincoln medical profession.

When Lamaze classes started in Lincoln, some physicians were "uptight" because they thought Lamaze instructors were trying to "cramp their patient relationship," said Jan Nelson RN, area director at Bryan Memorial Hospital.

"They (doctors) still feel, 'I'm the man in charge' — and they should," she said. "They are responsible for the safety of the patient.

"But most of these misgivings have disappeared."

Both ASPO — whose instructors are registered nurses — and CEA work closely with a medical advisory board. "One of the things Lamaze teaches is that . . . doctors are still in charge of patient care," Mrs. Nelson said.

Although Lamaze is not — nor is it claimed to be — "a 100% panacea, it generally does help give the woman confidence," she added.

"Basically, patients who undergo this childbirth training tend to be more relaxed and have less pain," said Dr. Nathan Simon, Lincoln obstetrician and gynecologist.

"It goes back to the old triad of fear-tension-pain."

Lamaze instructors tell couples that although the techniques do help eliminate pain or help women cope with discomfort, the level of pain experienced and the pssible use of medication are based on many variables.

These variables, which differ from pregnancy to pregnancy and from woman to woman, include size and positioning of the baby at birth; physiological and anatomical differences in the mothers; and the mother's pain tolerance level.

"We feel that medication is a tool just like breathing is a tool, pushing is a tool and relaxation is a tool, just like forceps and Ceasarean sections are tools," said Mrs. Alinder.

"Sixty per cent of our women use some type of medication during childbirth," she said, "and half of these feel that it did just enough to help them.

"Our doctors here in Lincoln give just small dosages of (pain-reducing) medication."

Local doctors and nurses agree that medication given in Lincoln hospitals during childbirth is "just enough to take the edge off," yet not enough to create adverse effects for mother or child.

"I've encouraged this all along," said Dr. Kenneth McGinnis, who for 15 years has made extensive childbirth education a part of his obstetrics practice.

"I rarely have a woman go to sleep anymore (during delivery)," he said.

Another factor which may help a woman during delivery is the presence of her husband, Dr. McGinnis added.

"Initially, we just had the father come back to observe the delivery," said Phyllis Kenney, RN, of St. Elizabeth Community Health Center, and one of the ASPO instructors.

"Now, he (the father) actively assists by giving neck and head support" and coaching his wife, she explained. "This gives a lot of physical and psychological support to the wife."

There are some doctors in Lincoln who, although they don't greatly object to Lamaze, feel it is a "fad." Others have developed childbirth training methods which they feel work as well, if not better than Lamaze.

Dr. Samuel Thierstein has used his own method for several years.

Basically, Thierstein's method of relaxation and concentration — which leaves the woman relaxed and busy, thus limiting the perception of fear, pain or discomfort — is similar to Lamaze.

They physician has his own series of classes. He also uses a recording of supportive instructions in the labor room. Thierstein believes his method is more effective because an ever-present labor coach is not necessary.

Hospital personnel contend, however, that no matter what preparation classes a couple attends, such instruction should not supercede the prenatal classes offered by hospitals.

Prenatal classes are important because they provide fundamental information on pregnancy, childbirth techniques and infant care. They also serve to familiarize couples with the hospital, its staff and its admitting procedures, hospital spokespersons said.

"Whatever you can learn to help yourself, the better off you'll be," said Mrs. Alinder.

"Too much knowledge is not a dangerous thing," Dr. Simon agreed.

But even more than knowledge, Dr. Simon said that participation by both husband and wife in the childbirth process creates "a binding force."

"There are few other situations in life that offer such togetherness."

"When I think of where we've come in the last 20 to 30 years . . . Instead of just taking mother to the hospital and father going home to wait, it has become family centered," said a representative of Lincoln General Hospital.

"What it all boils down to is that we are seeking pride, dignity and self-respect" in the birth process, Dr. Simon said.

Auxiliary Classes Offered By Childbirth Education Association

Childbirth education and preparation are the primary purposes of the Childbirth Education Association of Lincoln (CEA).

But since the 1970 development of Lamaze classes here and the group's subsequent affiliation with the International Childbirth Education Association (ICEA), CEA of Lincoln has gone through several modifications and has become the model teacher-training center for ICEA.

"We are concerned with parents from pregnancy through the first years of child-rearing," said Mary Alinder, founder of the Lincoln chapter of CEA.

An outgrowth of this philosophy has been CEA-sponsored Lamaze classes for single mothers — whether unmarried, separated, divorced or widowed.

Initiated in 1973 by Mrs. Alinder, these classes now are coordinated by CEA member, Sandy Hansen.

The single mothers' classes are the same as the couple's Lamaze classes with one exception — instead of husbands being labor coaches, friends, relatives or CEA volunteers serve in that capacity.

Labor coaches attend classes with the expectant mother, practice breathing and relaxation techniques with her at least twice a week and stay with her throughout labor.

"Especially when you're single, you need to have someone that you know with you during labor," Mrs. Hansen said. "The nurses are well trained (in Lamaze), but they don't have time to spend with them (single mothers).

"Our main goal is that the girls have a positive experience," she said.

Most of the mothers participating in the singles program are between the ages of 13 and 26.

One-third are referred by physicians. Others learn about the single mothers' Lamaze classes through social service agencies or from other women who have participated, Mrs. Hansen said.

Still, there are women, married or unmarried, whose husbands or labor coaches are not present during labor and delivery.

They are women who — due to various factors — have had children by Ceasarean section," a surgical procedure during which the infant is removed directly from the womb.

The fundamentals of and potential need for Ceasarean sections are discussed during one Lamaze class. However, couples who attend the preparation classes and then, often at the last minute, find themselves confronted with C-section delivery, feel that more instruction and support are needed.

In June, C-section classes will begin for elective and borderline C-section cases. Supported by CEA of Lincoln, the program is one of two in the nation and will be coordinated by Judith Goeke who had her son by emergency Ceasarean one year ago.

Although only 3% to 4% of the deliveries are done by Ceasarean, "anyone is a potential C-section," Mrs. Goeke said.

All CEA classes are consumer-oriented, according to Mrs. Alinder. Instructors provide class members with a list of costs at each of the Lincoln hospitals; recommend infant supplies, suggest baby food recipes, etc.

A Lincoln organization which receives support and referrals from CEA is La Leche League, a group established for the benefit of those interested in breastfeeding.

The league does not try to convince mothers to breastfeed their babies, say leaders of the group. But it provides women with "enough information to make a decision," supports them in their decision, and assists with any problems.

Childbirth education and preparation go "hand-in-glove" with breastfeeding, said La Leché leader Alice Timm. "Both are good for the mother and get baby off to a good start."

Road Change Would Add Acre To Wilderness Park

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

A road change proposal that could add to rather than take land away from Wilderness Park was presented to the Lancaster County Board Tuesday.

And the local Sierra Club said it had no objections.

County Engineer Marvin Nuernberger wants to relocate 27th Street near Saltillo Road in order to eliminate a dangerous railroad crossing where at least two people have been killed in recent years.

The possible relocation of 27th is not a new idea, but Nuernberger finally got an agreement worked out with the Burlington Northern Railroad on that crossing — an agreement which had been pending for three years, Nuernberger said.

One-Acre Triangle

Moving 27th eastward so that the railroad crossing on 27th is eliminated would make available a small, triangular-shaped piece of land adjacent to Wilderness Park. The one-acre parcel is currently cut off from the park by 27th.

The land, owned by Jennings B Haggarty, should be acquired by the county and added to Wilderness Park, Nuernberger said.

The Sierra Club would have no objections to this road change or the addition to Wilderness Park, according to Marge Schlitt, chairman of the club's Wilderness Park Committee.

Creek Straightening Disliked

But the Bluestem Chapter does object to an earlier proposal by Nuernberger to rechannel Salt Creek in Wilderness Park and widen Old Cheney Road to four lanes within the park.

The county engineer wants to straighten out a portion of the creek and move the Old Cheney Road bridge 800 feet to the west over the newly created channel.

"We think the relocation of the creek is extreme, unnecessary and will change the character of the park," Ms. Schlitt said, adding that the group feels a four-lane road in that area is also unnecessary.

The club has also been fighting a proposal to take several acres of Wilderness Park land through which the West Bypass would go.

27th St. Proposal OKd

The board approved the agreement with Burlington Northern for the elimination of the grade crossing on 27th Street but has taken no action on the Old Cheney Road proposal.

Most of the County Board meeting was taken up with signing agreements which will bring more federal dollars into the county for road improvements.

The board approved resolutions calling for $140,000 and $592,000 in culvert construction (a 90-10 federal-local split). The money will be used to eliminate narrow culverts on county roads. The board also approved a resolution for $19,000 in grading and surfacing of a blind intersection at 70th and Pioneers (90-10 federal-local split).

The board also signed agreements for about $2 million in improvements to seven county roads. Of the $2 million, about $600,000 will be county funds and the rest federal money, Nuernberger said.

The improvements include grading and surfacing for Raymond East Road, Roca East Road, Firth East Road, Bennet North Road and Waverly Northwest Road, and bridge improvements at Lincoln North Road (14th Street) and Waverly North and West Road.

Color Scheme Approved

In other action the board approved a colorful remodeling scheme for the south wing of Lancaster Manor.

The color scheme in bright oranges, reds and yellows or blues and greens, was designed by Robyn Langvardt of Davis, Fenton, Stange and Darling Architects.

The doors of each of the 10 rooms on each floor will be a different color and will accent a color in the curtains of the room, Ms. Langvardt said.

"As people get older their eyesight dims and they can't distinguish the pastel shades," Ms. Langvardt told the board, obviously surprised by the bright patterns and colors.

"I was as surprised as you are," Manor Director Jerry Gibbons told the board. "But the residents oohed and aahed the samples."

4 Star Reporters Win Swope Contest Honors

Four Lincoln Star reporters won honors in the national Herbert Bayard Swope Memorial Awards contest, sponsored by Newspaper Editorial Workshop.

Nancy Hicks was the highest finisher with a second honorable mention in the feature writing category. Finalists in the same category from The Star were: Lynn Zerschling, Cynthia Johnson and Gracia McAndrew.

More than 200 newspapers were entered in the contest, which is intended to determine the best writers on the staffs of U S newspapers. Newspaper Editorial Workshop said it picked reporters "whose work showed fluidity of style, cohesiveness, flair and creativity plus a mastery of such basics as clarity and completeness."

Ms Hicks recently won four first places in the 1975 Nebraska Press Women's Communication Contest and was awarded second and third place in the 1975 National Federation of Press Women competition. Ms. Johnson and Ms. McAndrew shared, with Ms Hicks, in the third place award for women's pages.

Mrs. John Cox was elected president of the Heritage League Tuesday.

Other officers elected are: Mrs. Carl Keister, first vice president; Mrs. Warren Griffith, second vice president; Mrs. Charles Bartlett, secretary; and Mrs. George Klein, treasurer.

The League is a service organization that sponsors projects such as vision tests for grade school children, and the Holiday of Trees, which raises money for non-profit organizations.

GM Recalling 2,000 Cadillacs

Detroit (AP) — Cadillac Motor Car Division of General Motors has recalled about 2,000 1974 and 1975 model cars equipped with an air cushion restraint system for repair.

The division said an underhood wiring harness routing, which detects bumper impact in an accident, could be faulty.

Court Action Is Planned, AFSCME Officials Say

Union officials Tuesday planned to go to court after the 18-month-old talks between Labor Department employes and the Exon administration broke off.

Dave Newell, a spokesman for the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes (AFSCME), said representatives of Gov. J. James Exon had not been bargaining in good faith.

AFSCME, which represents roughly 500 employes in the Labor Department, had been seeking binding arbitration as part of the grievance procedure and 10% plus cost of living raises.

Newell said AFSCME conceded "many issues" to Exon's bargaining committee, headed by attorney Norm Krivosha, to no avail. "They were totally unwilling to negotiate," Newell said.

Plans call for AFSCME to ask the State Court of Industrial Relations to rule on the impasse.

Lynn Pursel of Nebraska City and Tom Wilson of Omaha, two members of AFSCME's negotiating team, said their demands were not unreasonable.

Pursel said AFSCME had "nothing to lose by going to court."

Leisure Classwork Growing

By NADINE BROZAN

New York — Irma Ellis wanted her 8-year-old son, Emery, to study art after school. He wanted instead to learn magic tricks. And so he enrolled in the magic class at the Walden School Community Program here, where he also takes karate and where he learned woodworking.

Emery's schedule, which fills almost every afternoon, is not unusual: despite the faltering economy, despite women's increasing reluctance to serve as unpaid chauffeurs, extracurricular programs are flourishing everywhere.

Inquiries in cities, suburbs and villages across the country turned up classes in ceramics, puppetry, videotape, computer programing, gymnastics, Chinese, macrame, printmaking, cooking, chess, mosaics, carpentry, the traditional music and dance, along with an explosion in athletics.

At the same time, the private tutor who gives individual lessons to the individual child is being replaced by such group programs as the Walden School, and the Y.M.-Y.W.C.A. here, the Contemporary Arts Museum in Houston and Philadelphia's Departmment of Recreation. The fees are significantly lower — or nonexistent.

Ironically, just as women were beginning to chafe under the yoke of countless lessons, they were also finding the liberation to work in those lessons.

While participation in such sports as ice hockey and tennis is skyrocketing in much of the country, and more intellectual traditional persuits of piano and ballet remain in great demand, the picture is different in parts of the South.

"Up north, the emphasis is on achievement, but here it's pure show business. Mothers and daughters just want to see how many trophies they can pick up. They collect awards," said Dot Barrett, owner of the Jackson (Miss.) School of Dance and Baton, who also sponsors pageants.

"Baton and modeling are the things now," said Mrs. Barrett, who accepts children as young as 2½. "I'll take them as long as they're potty trained. One year I had a Contrary Mary's Garden Pageant, and each age category had a name like Tiny Tulips. So many zero-to-5-year-olds show up I had to have the Teeny Tiny Tulips. Now they do that everywhere."

"Some mothers take this pretty seriously," she observed. There are two lawsuits arising out of a pageant right now. A 10-year-old's mother attacked a judge with her daughter's baton when the girl lost a contest."

The incident was extreme, to be sure, but the fact is that everywhere mothers — and increasingly fathers — tend to find themselves more heavily committed than they had anticipated.

At the other end of the spectrum, Vivian Fraser of Grosse Ile, an island in the Detroit River, withdrew her children Ivich, 8, and Ian, 6, from ballet classes, when she returned to school at Wayne University.

"I feel badly that Ivich is not going," she said of her decision. "If she would say to me that it's that important to her, I would find the time because she was very good. But I'd rather have the kids grow up with happy people who are actually living than with unhappy parents who ironed their clothes and got them to lessons on time."

At the same end of the spectrum is Carol Savage, who dropped piano lessons for her three children when she moved to Palos Verdes in southern California two years ago.

"My children have enough to do without burdening them with lessons; kids don't seem to enjoy themselves any more," she said.

For most parents, enjoyment is the crucial test, and it is to be found in the lessons the children themselves have chosen.

As Sheila Stone of Scarsdale, N.Y., whose three youngsters have at varying times taken tennis, skiing, lacrosse, calarinet, woodworking, Cub Scouts, Brownies and ballet, put it:

"I don't push them to do anything. I may guide them, but they choose what they want to do. When Jennifer, 7, gave up ballet, I couldn't have cared less. I just want them to have fun."

If Love Present, Don't Worry

DEAR ABBY: My daughter, who is 25, is a nurse. She is engaged to a 29-year-old doctor. He is from India.

We are Irish Catholics. The young man was educated in England. He is well-mannered, quiet and from a good family (who is in India), and he plans to remain here and practice medicine.

Our problem is how our friends and relatives will react. Will they accept him? He is very dark. Will he be considered black?

Do you know what people's feelings are about white American girls dating and marrying people from India? Are our friends going to look down on him?

We would like to have a nice church wedding, to which he agrees, but are people going to criticize us?

They both seem to know what they are getting into. Can you help me?

WORRIED MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: If your daughter and her young man love each other and know what they are getting into, you have nothing to worry about. Whether or not he is "accepted" or considered black — or you are criticized — is beside the point. People who matter will accept him for what he is. And those who feel differently aren't worth bothering about.

DEAR ABBY: I am 10-years-old and recently heard of a new group called "Kid's Lib." Kids say that voting, drinking, smoking and many other activities should be legalized at age 13. My class talked about this and about 80 per cent said, "This is cool."

Abby, here's what I think: Kids don't have enough judgment to do any of these things until they reach 18. Even then, drinking and smoking are bad for kids, especially younger teenagers.

What do you think?

T.L. OBJECTS

DEAR T.L.: I think you've got a good head on your 10-year-old shoulders.

DEAR ABBY: According to official records, the number of deaths and injuries from fire has reached epidemic proportions.

In order to educate the public in fire prevention and control, the U.S. government has made some fascinating demonstrations available.

For instance, government agencies have contracted table-top-sized model homes that actually go up in flames from overloaded electric wiring. They also have graphic demonstrations that show how the fumes of flammable liquids travel great distances, causing explosions and fires.

These demonstrations make tremendously interesting programs for schools, organizations and industries, and are perfectly safe in the hand of trained personnel in the fire department.

Fire departments that have or have access to such units are happy to present them in public demonstrations. All an interested group need do is call its local fire department and request this program.

J.E. BROWN, CHIEF
PANAMA CITY BEACH, FLA.

DEAR CHIEF: I hope your letter lights a fire under the program chairman of service clubs throughout the nation. And readers, please don't wait until Fire Prevention Week — which isn't until next October!

DEAR ABBY: Please print this to help all of us overseas without benefit of APO:

"Dear Friends, Associates, etc., who write to us through the international mails. We love getting your letters, and I know that you mean for us to get them as soon as possible, but the U.S. Postal System will not send a letter airmail unless it is so marked! Even if there is an airmail stamp of sufficient postage, it goes surface mail, which takes from two to six months.

Please use AIRMAIL envelopes whenever possible, use an AIRMAIL sticker, or write "AIRMAIL" on the face of the envelope. Thank you.

Abby, I don't know how often I've had important mail come six months late, let alone Christmas cards arriving in May. People usually put sufficient postage for airmail on their letters, but the postal system doesn't recognize good intentions.

I've been meaning to write to you about this for four years. Thanks.

D IN THE PHILIPPINES

DEAR D.: A spokesman for the U.S. Post Office Department says that they always send airmail overseas if it has the correct postage on it, even if "AIRMAIL" is not indicated on the envelope. However the mail handlers in some foreign countries may not understand our postage, just as we may not understand theirs, and when foreign mail arrives without AIRMAIL markings, it will continue on its way by surface.

A good rule to follow is to always use AIRMAIL stickers (or write "AIRMAIL") on all mail you wish to go by air. Affixing airmail postage is no guarantee that it will go by air.

DEAR ABBY: I am a fifth-grader teacher, and my class has just finished an extensive course on understanding handicaps. We had the good fortune to have as guests some extraordinary persons with physical disabilities. They gave their time to let my children listen, question and learn about deafness, blindness, amputation and mental retardation from first-hand sources.

The children were eager to learn about the capabilities of each of these guests as well as the problems they faced because of their handicaps. After the class spent two mornings "handicapped" themselves as part of the course, I'm convinced their understanding has grown at least three sizes.

True, those who are "sickened" by the sight of handicapped people need a lesson in tact, but they also need some correct information to overcome their prejudices.

There are hundreds of people like Diane, Ede, Steve, Charlotte and my father who are willing and eager to teach children about their handicaps. I urge schools and civic groups to seek them out and use their services. They are beautiful people.

DEAR "TEACH": Amen!

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	2♣	Pass
3♠	Pass	4♥	Dble
4♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead - four of hearts.

One of the most rigorous tests of a partnership is its ability to bid or avoid slams, as the case may be.

Consider this deal from the U.S.-China match in 1969. With an American pair North-South at the first table, the bidding stopped at four spades — making seven!

Six spades and seven clubs would both have been better contracts, but somewhere along the line the American machinery got stuck and came to a grinding halt. What went wrong is left to the tender mercies of the reader.

The Taiwanese pair at the second table bid the hand far more skillfully. Their bidding went:

South	West	North	East
1♣	Pass	2♣	Pass
2♠	Pass	3♣	Pass
3♦	Pass	3♥	Pass
3♠	Pass	4♣	Pass
6♣

The opening club bid was artificial and showed at least 16 high-card points. Two clubs was natural and indicated 9 or more points and at least five clubs.

Two spades and three clubs were natural, and three diamonds and three hearts were cuebids, indicating first-round control of those suits.

Three spades and four clubs simply emphasized those suits, and South's leap to six clubs just about completed the picture of his hand that he had drawn in five strokes.

Perhaps North should have gone on to seven — certainly an excellent case can be made for bidding the grand slam — but he settled for six. West led the queen of diamonds and declarer easily made seven.

So China showed a profit of 680 points on the deal, proving that slam bidding does not always have to be perfect to gain points on a hand.

Lincoln Physicians Generally Support Lamaze Method

By GRACIA McANDREW

Three years ago, when John and Mary Bills were expecting their first child, the first physician they visited would not allow John in the delivery room because he would "contaminate" the baby.

The couple had planned to use the Lamaze method of childbirth, which calls for active participation on the part of the husband during labor and delivery. So, they sought out another physician.

Since 1970, when Lamaze classes were introduced in Lincoln by Mary Alinder, professionals' attitudes toward the method have changed.

Two groups in the city — Childbirth Education Association of Lincoln (CEA) and the American Society of Psycho-Propohylaxis in Obstetrics (ASPO) at St. Elizabeth Community Health Center — provide Lamaze childbirth preparation classes.

Generally, the two programs have gained wide support; and, if not support, at least acceptance from those in the Lincoln medical profession.

When Lamaze classes started in Lincoln, some physicians were "uptight" because they thought Lamaze instructors were trying to "cramp their patient relationship," said Jan Nelson RN, area director at Bryan Memorial Hospital.

"They (doctors) still feel, 'I'm the man in charge' — and they should," she said. "They are responsible for the safety of the patient.

"But most of these misgivings have disappeared."

Both ASPO — whose instructors are registered nurses — and CEA work closely with a medical advisory board. "One of the things Lamaze teaches is that . . . doctors are still in charge of patient care," Mrs. Nelson said.

Although Lamaze is not — nor is it claimed to be — "a 100% panacea, it generally does help give the woman confidence," she added.

"Basically, patients who undergo this childbirth training tend to be more relaxed and have less pain," said Dr. Nathan Simon, Lincoln obstetrician and gynecologist.

"It goes back to the old triad of fear-tension-pain."

Lamaze instructors tell couples that although the techniques do help eliminate pain or help women cope with discomfort, the level of pain experienced and the pssible use of medication are based on many variables.

These variables, which differ from pregnancy to pregnancy and from woman to woman, include size and positioning of the baby at birth; physiological and anatomical differences in the mothers; and the mother's pain tolerance level.

"We feel that medication is a tool just like breathing is a tool, pushing is a tool and relaxation is a tool, just like forceps and Ceasarean sections are tools," said Mrs. Alinder.

"Sixty per cent of our women use some type of medication during childbirth," she said, "and half of these feel that it did just enough to help them.

"Our doctors here in Lincoln give just small dosages of (pain-reducing) medication."

Local doctors and nurses agree that medication given in Lincoln hospitals during childbirth is "just enough to take the edge off," yet not enough to create adverse effects for mother or child.

"I've encouraged this all along," said Dr. Kenneth McGinnis, who for 15 years has made extensive childbirth education a part of his obstetrics practice.

"I rarely have a woman go to sleep anymore (during delivery)," he said.

Another factor which may help a woman during delivery is the presence of her husband, Dr. McGinnis added.

"Initially, we just had the father come back to observe the delivery," said Phyllis Kenney, RN, of St. Elizabeth Community Health Center, and one of the ASPO instructors.

"Now, he (the father) actively assists by giving neck and head support" and coaching his wife, she explained. "This gives a lot of physical and psychological support to the wife."

There are some doctors in Lincoln who, although they don't greatly object to Lamaze, feel it is a "fad." Others have developed childbirth training methods which they feel work as well, if not better than Lamaze.

Dr. Samuel Thierstein has used his own method for several years.

Basically, Thierstein's method of relaxation and concentration — which leaves the woman relaxed and busy, thus limiting the perception of fear, pain or discomfort — is similar to Lamaze.

They physician has his own series of classes. He also uses a recording of supportive instructions in the labor room. Thierstein believes his method is more effective because an ever-present labor coach is not necessary.

Hospital personnel contend, however, that no matter what preparation classes a couple attends, such instruction should not supercede the prenatal classes offered by hospitals.

Prenatal classes are important because they provide fundamental information on pregnancy, childbirth techniques and infant care. They also serve to familiarize couples with the hospital, its staff and its admitting procedures, hospital spokespersons said.

"Whatever you can learn to help yourself, the better off you'll be," said Mrs. Alinder.

"Too much knowledge is not a dangerous thing," Dr. Simon agreed.

But even more than knowledge, Dr. Simon said that participation by both husband and wife in the childbirth process creates "a binding force."

"There are few other situations in life that offer such togetherness."

"When I think of where we've come in the last 20 to 30 years . . . Instead of just taking mother to the hospital and father going home to wait, it has become family centered," said a representative of Lincoln General Hospital.

"What it all boils down to is that we are seeking pride, dignity and self-respect" in the birth process, Dr. Simon said.

Auxiliary Classes Offered By Childbirth Education Association

Childbirth education and preparation are the primary purposes of the Childbirth Education Association of Lincoln (CEA).

But since the 1970 development of Lamaze classes here and the group's subsequent affiliation with the International Childbirth Education Association (ICEA), CEA of Lincoln has gone through several modifications and has become the model teacher-training center for ICEA.

"We are concerned with parents from pregnancy through the first years of child-rearing," said Mary Alinder, founder of the Lincoln chapter of CEA.

An outgrowth of this philosophy has been CEA-sponsored Lamaze classes for single mothers — whether unmarried, separated, divorced or widowed.

Initiated in 1973 by Mrs. Alinder, these classes now are coordinated by CEA member, Sandy Hansen.

The single mothers' classes are the same as the couple's Lamaze classes with one exception — instead of husbands being labor coaches, friends, relatives or CEA volunteers serve in that capacity.

Labor coaches attend classes with the expectant mother, practice breathing and relaxation techniques with her at least twice a week and stay with her throughout labor.

"Especially when you're single, you need to have someone that you know with you during labor," Mrs. Hansen said. "The nurses are well trained (in Lamaze), but they don't have time to spend with them (single mothers).

"Our main goal is that the girls have a positive experience," she said.

Most of the mothers participating in the singles program are between the ages of 13 and 26.

One-third are referred by physicians. Others learn about the single mothers' Lamaze classes through social service agencies or from other women who have participated, Mrs. Hansen said.

Still, there are women, married or unmarried, whose husbands or labor coaches are not present during labor and delivery.

They are women who — due to various factors — have had children by Ceasarean section," a surgical procedure during which the infant is removed directly from the womb.

The fundamentals of and potential need for Ceasarean sections are discussed during one Lamaze class. However, couples who attend the preparation classes and then, often at the last minute, find themselves confronted with C-section delivery, feel that more instruction and support are needed.

In June, C-section classes will begin for elective and borderline C-section cases. Supported by CEA of Lincoln, the program is one of two in the nation and will be coordinated by Judith Goeke who had her son by emergency Ceasarean one year ago.

Although only 3% to 4% of the deliveries are done by Ceasarean, "anyone is a potential C-section," Mrs. Goeke said.

All CEA classes are consumer-oriented, according to Mrs. Alinder. Instructors provide class members with a list of costs at each of the Lincoln hospitals; recommend infant supplies, suggest baby food recipes, etc.

A Lincoln organization which receives support and referrals from CEA is La Leche League, a group established for the benefit of those interested in breastfeeding.

The league does not try to convince mothers to breastfeed their babies, say leaders of the group. But it provides women with "enough information to make a decision," supports them in their decision, and assists with any problems.

Childbirth education and preparation go "hand-in-glove" with breastfeeding, said La Leché leader Alice Timm. "Both are good for the mother and get baby off to a good start."

Leisure Classwork Growing

By NADINE BROZAN

New York — Irma Ellis wanted her 8-year-old son, Emery, to study art after school. He wanted instead to learn magic tricks. And so he enrolled in the magic class at the Walden School Community Program here, where he also takes karate and where he learned woodworking.

Emery's schedule, which fills almost every afternoon, is not unusual: despite the faltering economy, despite women's increasing reluctance to serve as unpaid chauffeurs, extracurricular programs are flourishing everywhere.

Inquiries in cities, suburbs and villages across the country turned up classes in ceramics, puppetry, videotape, computer programing, gymnastics, Chinese, macrame, printmaking, cooking, chess, mosaics, carpentry, the traditional music and dance, along with an explosion in athletics.

At the same time, the private tutor who gives individual lessons to the individual child is being replaced by such group programs as the Walden School, and the Y.M.-Y.W.C.A. here, the Contemporary Arts Museum in Houston and Philadelphia's Departmment of Recreation. The fees are significantly lower — or nonexistent.

Ironically, just as women were beginning to chafe under the yoke of countless lessons, they were also finding the liberation to work in those lessons.

While participation in such sports as ice hockey and tennis is skyrocketing in much of the country, and more intellectual traditional persuits of piano and ballet remain in great demand, the picture is different in parts of the South.

"Up north, the emphasis is on achievement, but here it's pure show business. Mothers and daughters just want to see how many trophies they can pick up. They collect awards," said Dot Barrett, owner of the Jackson (Miss.) School of Dance and Baton, who also sponsors pageants.

"Baton and modeling are the things now," said Mrs. Barrett, who accepts children as young as 2½. "I'll take them as long as they're potty trained. One year I had a Contrary Mary's Garden Pageant, and each age category had a name like Tiny Tulips. So many zero-to-5-year-olds show up I had to have the Teeny Tiny Tulips. Now they do that everywhere."

"Some mothers take this pretty seriously," she observed. There are two lawsuits arising out of a pageant right now. A 10-year-old's mother attacked a judge with her daughter's baton when the girl lost a contest."

The incident was extreme, to be sure, but the fact is that everywhere mothers — and increasingly fathers — tend to find themselves more heavily committed than they had anticipated.

At the other end of the spectrum, Vivian Fraser of Grosse Ile, an island in the Detroit River, withdrew her children Ivich, 8, and Ian, 6, from ballet classes, when she returned to school at Wayne University.

"I feel badly that Ivich is not going," she said of her decision. "If she would say to me that it's that important to her, I would find the time because she was very good. But I'd rather have the kids grow up with happy people who are actually living than with unhappy parents who ironed their clothes and got them to lessons on time."

At the same end of the spectrum is Carol Savage, who dropped piano lessons for her three children when she moved to Palos Verdes in southern California two years ago.

"My children have enough to do without burdening them with lessons; kids don't seem to enjoy themselves any more," she said.

For most parents, enjoyment is the crucial test, and it is to be found in the lessons the children themselves have chosen.

As Sheila Stone of Scarsdale, N.Y., whose three youngsters have at varying times taken tennis, skiing, lacrosse, calarinet, woodworking, Cub Scouts, Brownies and ballet, put it·

"I don't push them to do anything. I may guide them, but they choose what they want to do. When Jennifer, 7, gave up ballet, I couldn't have cared less. I just want them to have fun."

If Love Present, Don't Worry

DEAR ABBY: My daughter, who is 25, is a nurse. She is engaged to a 29-year-old doctor. He is from India.

We are Irish Catholics. The young man was educated in England He is well-mannered, quiet and from a good family (who is in India), and he plans to remain here and practice medicine.

Our problem is how our friends and relatives will react. Will they accept him? He is very dark. Will he be considered black?

Do you know what people's feelings are about white American girls dating and marrying people from India? Are our friends going to look down on him?

We would like to have a nice church wedding, to which he agrees, but are people going to criticize us?

They both seem to know what they are getting into. Can you help me?

WORRIED MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: If your daughter and her young man love each other and know what they are getting into, you have nothing to worry about. Whether or not he is "accepted" or considered black — or you are criticized — is beside the point. People who matter will accept him for what he is. And those who feel differently aren't worth bothering about.

DEAR ABBY: I am 10-years-old and recently heard of a new group called "Kid's Lib." Kids say that voting, drinking, smoking and many other activities should be legalized at age 13. My class talked about this and about 80 per cent said, "This is cool."

Abby, here's what I think: Kids don't have enough judgment to do any of these things until they reach 18 Even then, drinking and smoking are bad for kids, especially younger teenagers.

What do you think?

T.L. OBJECTS

DEAR T.L.: I think you've got a good head on your 10-year-old shoulders.

DEAR ABBY: According to official records, the number of deaths and injuries from fire has reached epidemic proportions.

In order to educate the public in fire prevention and control, the U.S. government has made some fascinating demonstrations available.

For instance, government agencies have contracted table-top-sized model homes that actually go up in flames from overloaded electric wiring. They also have graphic demonstrations that show how the fumes of flammable liquids travel great distances, causing explosions and fires.

These demonstrations make tremendously interesting programs for schools, organizations and industries, and are perfectly safe in the hand of trained personnel in the fire department.

Fire departments that have or have access to such units are happy to present them in public demonstrations. All an interested group need do is call its local fire department and request this program.

J.E. BROWN, CHIEF
PANAMA CITY BEACH, FLA.

DEAR CHIEF: I hope your letter lights a fire under the program chairman of service clubs throughout the nation. And readers, please don't wait until Fire Prevention Week — which isn't until next October!

DEAR ABBY: Please print this to help all of us overseas without benefit of APO:

"Dear Friends, Associates, etc , who write to us through the international mails. We love getting your letters, and I know that you mean for us to get them as soon as possible, but the U.S. Postal System will not send a letter airmail unless it is so marked! Even if there is an airmail stamp of sufficient postage, it goes surface mail, which takes from two to six months.

Please use AIRMAIL envelopes whenever possible, use an AIRMAIL sticker, or write "AIRMAIL" on the face of the envelope. Thank you.

Abby, I don't know how often I've had important mail come six months late, let alone Christmas cards arriving in May. People usually put sufficient postage for airmail on their letters, but the postal system doesn't recognize good intentions.

I've been meaning to write to you about this for four years. Thanks.

D IN THE PHILIPPINES

DEAR D.: A spokesman for the U.S. Post Office Department says that they always send airmail overseas if it has the correct postage on it, even if "AIRMAIL" is not indicated on the envelope. However the mail handlers in some foreign countries may not understand our postage, just as we may not understand theirs, and when foreign mail arrives without AIRMAIL markings, it will continue on its way by surface.

A good rule to follow is to always use AIRMAIL stickers (or write "AIRMAIL") on all mail you wish to go by air. Affixing airmail postage is no guarantee that it will go by air.

DEAR ABBY: I am a fifth-grader teacher, and my class has just finished an extensive course on understanding handicaps. We had the good fortune to have as guests some extraordinary persons with physical disabilities. They gave their time to let my children listen, question and learn about deafness, blindness, amputation and mental retardation from first-hand sources.

The children were eager to learn about the capabilities of each of these guests as well as the problems they faced because of their handicaps. After the class spent two mornings "handicapped" themselves as part of the course, I'm convinced their understanding has grown at least three sizes.

True, those who are "sickened" by the sight of handicapped people need a lesson in tact, but they also need some correct information to overcome their prejudices.

There are hundreds of people like Diane, Ede, Steve, Charlotte and my father who are willing and eager to teach children about their handicaps. I urge schools and civic groups to seek them out and use their services. They are beautiful people.

"TEACH"; REEDVILLE SCHOOL
ALOHA, OREGON

DEAR "TEACH": Amen!

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	2♣	Pass
3♠	Pass	4♥	Dble
4♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead - four of hearts.

One of the most rigorous tests of a partnership is its ability to bid or avoid slams, as the case may be.

Consider this deal from the U.S.-China match in 1969. With an American pair North-South at the first table, the bidding stopped at four spades — making seven!

Six spades and seven clubs would both have been better contracts, but somewhere along the line the American machinery got stuck and came to a grinding halt. What went wrong is left to the tender mercies of the reader.

The Taiwanese pair at the second table bid the hand far more skillfully. Their bidding went:

South	West	North	East
1♣	Pass	2♣	Pass
2♠	Pass	3♣	Pass
3♦	Pass	3♥	Pass
3♠	Pass	4♣	Pass
6♣

The opening club bid was artificial and showed at least 16 high-card points. Two clubs was natural and indicated 9 or more points and at least five clubs.

Two spades and three clubs were natural, and three diamonds and three hearts were cuebids, indicating first-round control of those suits.

Three spades and four clubs simply emphasized those suits, and South's leap to six clubs just about completed the picture of his hand that he had drawn in five strokes.

Perhaps North should have gone on to seven — certainly an excellent case can be made for bidding the grand slam — but he settled for six. West led the queen of diamonds and declarer easily made seven.

So China showed a profit of 680 points on the deal, proving that slam bidding does not always have to be perfect to gain points on a hand.

Sleepwalker's Excursions To Refrigerator Are Fattening

By George C. Thosteson, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a problem I hope you can help me with. I walk in my sleep. But that's not the only problem. I go to the refrigerator and take food and I eat it. I don't know I have done this until the next morning when I see crumbs on the floor and in my bed.

I figure I must have eaten the food in bed and on my way back from the refrigerator. As a result of eating during the night I am gaining so much weight that my clothes don't fit me. I don't eat that much during the day.

Doctor, will you please tell me if there is any way of stopping this? — Mrs. M.P.

Stranger things than your nocturnal icebox raids have occurred during episodes of sleepwalking.

Somnambulism is a sort of hypnotic state in which the person has possession of his senses, but retains no recollection of his actions. That seems to fit your situation except you have provided your own trail of evidence to go along with it.

Sleepwalking can accompany a dream, and in your case the dream could be about food. Such occurrences often stem from unresolved emotional conflict. Again, in your situation food may enter the picture.

But it is also possible that actual hunger is a factor. You don't eat much during the day, according to your letter. Perhaps if you did eat three balanced meals the subconscious urge to eat at night would disappear. The meals could be low in calories. A protein snack on retiring might help also. Try a piece of meat, a cheese sandwich, or a glass of milk.

Do the crumbs provide any clue as to what you have eaten? Your weight gain is probably a result of gorging on high-caloric foods you deny yourself during your waking hours.

If a change in eating habits doesn't work, then you should probably see a psychiatrist, who might detect other emotional conflicts involved that may not be apparent to you.

☆ ☆ ☆

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My mother believes you can stretch parts of your body by pulling on them. For example, you can stretch your body and become taller.

This is a real problem. My sister says she's wrong. What do you say? — M.D.

No amount of stretching is going to add a whit of length to the body or to body parts. Stretching positions are a part of any good exercise program, and will help improve your posture, allowing you to make the maximum use of the natural height you have.

This may be what your mother means. If you want to convince your mother, explain to her that folks in prolonged traction for neck injuries gain not even a little height because of it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My doctor told me two years ago I was a hidden diabetic. Can you tell me what this means, and the symptoms of it? Is it like other forms of diabetes? — Mrs. G.M.

With a latent (or hidden) diabetes there may be no overt symptoms, but the doctor may have found sugar in your urine or an elevated blood sugar, both classic signs of the disease. This means that you have the potential now for developing an overt diabetes, especially if you are not careful.

If you are overweight, you should reduce, since a history of obesity is found in about 80% of all diabetics. And you should be checked rather regularly from now on (once or twice a year, at least) for urine and blood sugar.

If you are an older person you can slip into overt diabetes with very few symptoms, and this is why you should now be taking the precautions I suggest.

Latent diabetes is often found in women who have had large birth weight babies or unsuccessful pregnancies (miscarriage or stillbirth).

In your case, a more extensive urine and blood test would probably reveal abnormal sugar content, a borderline situation that could get worse unless you are careful.

HEALTH TIP

FROM THE NEBRASKA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

High blood pressure or hypertension affects all ages.

The Nebraska Medical Association reports that anyone can have high blood pressure, even children. Research indicates that high blood pressure may be an inherited tendency.

The problem with hypertension is that there are no symptoms. A relaxed, happy, apparently healthy person may be as apt to have high blood pressure as a tense person. Only a blood pressure reading will tell.

Men appear to be at greater risk than women when hypertension is indicated. Authorities report that women appear to handle higher levels of blood pressure better than men, though the incidence of high readings is about equal between the sexes.

Hypertension is one of the leading causes of death among American blacks, though research has not proved why. High blood pressure can lead to stroke, heart disease, kidney disease and other physical problems.

The Nebraska Medical Association suggests that every family member, young and old, have blood pressure reading to determine whether they should be under treatment.

Sleepwalker's Excursions To Refrigerator Are Fattening

By George C. Thosteson, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a problem I hope you can help me with. I walk in my sleep. But that's not the only problem. I go to the refrigerator and take food and I eat it. I don't know I have done this until the next morning when I see crumbs on the floor and in my bed.

I figure I must have eaten the food in bed and on my way back from the refrigerator. As a result of eating during the night I am gaining so much weight that my clothes don't fit me. I don't eat that much during the day.

Doctor, will you please tell me if there is any way of stopping this? — Mrs. M.P.

Stranger things than your nocturnal icebox raids have occurred during episodes of sleepwalking.

Somnambulism is a sort of hypnotic state in which the person has possession of his senses, but retains no recollection of his actions. That seems to fit your situation except you have provided your own trail of evidence to go along with it.

Sleepwalking can accompany a dream, and in your case the dream could be about food. Such occurrences often stem from unresolved emotional conflict. Again, in your situation food may enter the picture.

But it is also possible that actual hunger is a factor. You don't eat much during the day, according to your letter. Perhaps if you did eat three balanced meals the subconscious urge to eat at night would disappear. The meals could be low in calories. A protein snack on retiring might help also. Try a piece of meat, a cheese sandwich, or a glass of milk.

Do the crumbs provide any clue as to what you have eaten? Your weight gain is probably a result of gorging on high-caloric foods you deny yourself during your waking hours.

If a change in eating habits doesn't work, then you should probably see a psychiatrist, who might detect other emotional conflicts involved that may not be apparent to you.

☆ ☆ ☆

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My mother believes you can stretch parts of your body by pulling on them. For example, you can stretch your body and become taller.

This is a real problem. My sister says she's wrong. What do you say? — M.D.

No amount of stretching is going to add a whit of length to the body or to body parts. Stretching positions are a part of any good exercise program, and will help improve your posture, allowing you to make the maximum use of the natural height you have.

This may be what your mother means. If you want to convince your mother, explain to her that folks in prolonged traction for neck injuries gain not even a little height because of it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My doctor told me two years ago I was a hidden diabetic. Can you tell me what this means, and the symptoms of it? Is it like other forms of diabetes? — Mrs. G.M.

With a latent (or hidden) diabetes there may be no overt symptoms, but the doctor may have found sugar in your urine or an elevated blood sugar, both classic signs of the disease. This means that you have the potential now for developing an overt diabetes, especially if you are not careful.

If you are overweight, you should reduce, since a history of obesity is found in about 80% of all diabetics. And you should be checked rather regularly from now on (once or twice a year, at least) for urine and blood sugar.

If you are an older person you can slip into overt diabetes with very few symptoms, and this is why you should now be taking the precautions I suggest.

Latent diabetes is often found in women who have had large birth weight babies or unsuccessful pregnancies (miscarriage or stillbirth).

In your case, a more extensive urine and blood test would probably reveal abnormal sugar content, a borderline situation that could get worse unless you are careful.

HEALTH TIP

FROM THE NEBRASKA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

High blood pressure or hypertension affects all ages.

The Nebraska Medical Association reports that anyone can have high blood pressure, even children. Research indicates that high blood pressure may be an inherited tendency.

The problem with hypertension is that there are no symptoms. A relaxed, happy, apparently healthy person may be as apt to have high blood pressure as a tense person. Only a blood pressure reading will tell.

Men appear to be at greater risk than women when hypertension is indicated. Authorities report that women appear to handle higher levels of blood pressure better than men, though the incidence of high readings is about equal between the sexes.

Hypertension is one of the leading causes of death among American blacks, though research has not proved why. High blood pressure can lead to stroke, heart disease, kidney disease and other physical problems.

The Nebraska Medical Association suggests that every family member, young and old, have blood pressure reading to determine whether they should be under treatment.

Support Renewed For Fourth Court

Municipal judges, uneasy about the prospects of the long-awaited fourth courtroom, received renewed support from the City Council and mayor during an informal meeting Tuesday afternoon.

The city leaders again pledged their personal support and gave secondhand assurance that the other two groups involved in the complex arrangement — the County Board and the County-City Building Commission — also support a fourth city courtroom and its location on the County-City Building's second floor.

But a look at the minutes of one of these organizations shows that the courtroom support is not yet a sure thing.

The newly formed building commission, composed of two councilmen, two commissioners and three lay persons, is charged with allocating space within the building.

"In my own mind I felt we had committed that (second floor) space to the courtroom, Council President and building commission member Max Denney told the judges.

Denney and building commission member Bob Sikyta both agreed that the commission had decided to allow no major changes "except those already committed."

However a review of the commission meeting minutes and the interlocal agreement creating the commission do not support the councilmen's contentions.

The commission discussed the new court space during an April 22 meeting and decided that "other alternatives should be considered since one-third of the building is now in courts." These other alternatives, according to the minutes, included night court and separate court facilities.

At the following meeting Denney unsuccessfully tried to get the minutes changed so that the fourth municipal courtroom would be eliminated from a building-wide space study.

The minutes of the April 29 meeting show that Commissioners Bob Colin and Bruce Hamilton, and Sikyta, "felt this item (courtroom construction) should be held off until the study is completed," and Denney's motion to drop the courtroom from the study went down in defeat.

The entire courtroom project hinges on moving the driver licensing office out of the County-City Building, switching the city personnel offices to the driver licensing space, and then building a fourth courtroom in the current personnel office space.

The county commissioners should be able to move the driver licensing office into space at Gateway Shopping Center within the next 60 days, Mayor Helen Boosalis reported.

But here too there may be a hitch. The mayor said there may be a difference between what it would cost to remodel the space and what the county wants to pay.

Meadow Lane Pool OK Due Next Week

Swimming and tennis will be in the spotlight next week as the City Council cements an agreement to build a new pool in east Lincoln and eyes the expansion of a tennis complex in Woods Park.

The councilmen are expected to approve a lease agreement with the school district to build a swimming pool on Meadow Lane Elementary School grounds.

No one appeared at a public hearing Tuesday night on the proposal which has been several years in the making.

The swimming pool will be a joint venture of the city and the school board. Bids will be opened in June.

The council will hold a hearing on the Woods Park tennis complex, also proposed by the Parks and Recreation Board.

The $950,000 project has the backing of the Lincoln Tennis Association. Plans call for either the city or the association to construct an indoor-outdoor tennis complex and clubhouse in the park at 33rd and J. There already are nine tennis courts at the park.

The council also will hold hearings on a change in city law to permit the Downtown Lincoln Promotion Council (DLPC) to run a public "farmers' market" this summer. The DLPC is proposing to set up the market on downtown streets and sidewalks on a weekly basis.

In other action the council:

Resolutions and Public Hearings

—Authorized payment of $11,970 from advance acquisition funds to buy land from University of Nebraska for Mahoney Golf Course.

—Authorized payment of moving expenses to Joe's Body Shop, incurred in connection with Northeast Radial.

—Approved subdivision of certain lots, near 39th and Prescott, waiving certain requirements of city code.

Ordinances, First Reading

—Designating certain portions of Pioneers Blvd. from western boundary to south line of intersection with Hwy. 2 as arterial street.

—Amending code relating to disorderly houses.

—Adding to pay schedule for new classifications.

—Creating sewer district in alley between Morrill Avenue and Logan Avenue east of 73rd.

—Creating water district in Morrill Avenue from 73rd east to east line of Blks. 8 and 9, Hubbard Place.

How Many Dollars Before Plan Is Done?

The City Council asked Mayor Helen Boosalis Tuesday to find out how much it's going to cost the city to have the consultants complete the Comprehensive Plan project.

Councilman Bob Sikyta said Barton-Aschman Associates of Chicago only have two more public meetings and two more Goals and Policies meetings to go before their contract expires. The work on updating the Comprehensive Plan can't be completed in those work sessions, Sikyta said.

"It would be a great injustice to hurry them up or let them go," he said.

Councilman Steve Cook said he was "pretty dismayed" by the situation since Barton-Aschman is being paid $184,000 to help the Planning Commission do the work.

Without any further public meetings, Cook said the consultants would complete the plan. Only, he explained, it would be based on the information gathered so far.

Councilman Max Denney said there seems to be some disagreement between the city and Barton-Aschman over the terms of the contract. Denney said he thought the consultants were to count each trip to Lincoln as one session. The consultants have been counting each meeting attended.

Each additional trip to Lincoln could cost up to $1,000 each, Sikyta said.

Mayor Boosalis said she would check into the matter. She joined her former council colleagues in agreeing that the money should be spent to finish the consulting job.

If Tornado Seen, Siren Will Sound

Lincoln has had the jump on both tornadoes and Omaha with its siren warning policy.

The city's warning sirens will go off whenever someone sees a verified tornado, according to George Drake, Lancaster County Civil Defense director.

Omaha recently changed to a similar policy from one of keeping the sirens silent until a tornado touched ground, and with good reason — the May 6 tornado.

Lincoln hasn't used the sirens to warn of tornadoes since June 6, 1971, when public sightings were made of a funnel that skirted the city. Before then, the warning sirens hadn't been used since they were installed in 1954.

NBC Schedules Watts Special

LOS ANGELES (AP) — NBC Television will take a look at Watts 10 years afterward in a news special on Sunday, June 29.

Alvin H. Perlmutter, vice president of news documentaries, said the show will be the first made entirely on location with the compact Minicam.

Meridian School Bond Issue OKd

Voters in the Meridian School District approved a $1.5 million bond issue for a new school Tuesday.

With all but absentee ballots counted, which numbered fewer than 25, the vote stood at 399 for the bond issue, 301 against.

The school will be for kindergarten through 12th grades, and a building site 1.8 miles west of Daykin has been proposed.

Public May Nominate Someone To Be Great

(c) Newhouse News Service

New York — The American public is invited to offer nominations for membership in a very exclusive club, one that has rejected such people as Herman Melville, Clarence Darrow, Davy Crockett and Mary Baker Eddy.

There are now 99 people in the Hall of Fame for Great Americans, an institution created to honor citizens who made significant contributions to the nation and have been dead for more than 25 years.

The hall is a handsome structure with a 630-foot open air colonnade designed by Stanford White in the University Heights section of the Bronx, from which one can see the Hudson and Harlem River Valleys.

Each hall member's niche along the Greco-Roman colonnade includes a bronze bust and a memorial tablet that tells years of birth and death. A notable quotation is also inscribed. In some cases it's a musical passage.

Many of the faces are immediately recognizable, despite the effects of time and an occasional graffito. A gaunt, reflective Lincoln and an understanding Jefferson appear indifferent to the changes. A fittingly professorial Woodrow Wilson looks across the corridor, undisturbed by the thin moustache someone has added to John Paul Jones.

Sculptor Augustus Saint-Gaudens and actor Edwin Booth apparently are secure enough to ignore the "Dino" who wanted his own bit of immortality and autographed their pedestals.

Alexander Hamilton and William Penn, looking very righteous, do not seem bothered by the flesh-and-blood couple that found a quiet, private spot along their row.

John James Audubon, John Marshall and Oliver Wendell Holmes Jr. are here.

There are some unfamiliar names: Sylvanus Thayer, "father of West Point" and founder of Dartmouth's school of engineering; Frances Elizabeth Willard, who helped organize the Prohibition Party; engineer James Buchanan Eads; and surgeon William Crawford Gorgas.

Membership in the hall is categorized. Titles include educators, authors, artists, architects, soldiers, explorers, missionaries, musicians, actors, inventors, businessmen, philanthropists, theologians and humanitarians.

Freda Hliddal, curator of the hall, says, "The hall's founder (Henry Mitchell MacCracken, then chancellor of New York University) had the idea that since America was a democratic country, the doctor was just as important as the military leader and the actor just as important as the statesman."

She adds: "Some young people are not aware of the types of people who have made America. The hall keeps people aware of what has happened in our country, what has made the country great. We're not very hero-conscious any more."

The criteria?

"Nominees for the hall must have lived in the United States and made a definite, lasting contribution to society and been acclaimed by the public.

"It costs about $25,000 to install each hall member," she says. "Organizations interested in the person being honored seek funds. For example, the American Bandmasters Association is carrying on fund-raising for John Philip Sousa."

The hall has a category for "Other Distinguished Men and Women" who could not be classified under the regular headings.

GOP To Hire College Dean

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

A 46-year-old college dean will be named as the new executive director of Nebraska's Republican Party, it was learned Tuesday.

Lloyd Herbener, currently dean of students and associate professor of political science at John F. Kennedy College in Wahoo, is scheduled to assume the party post June 1.

Announcement of the appointment will be made by Republican State Chairman Anne Batchelder this week.

Post Vacant

The executive director's post has been vacant since the resignation of Glenn Wilson last December.

Herbener will manage state headquarters in Lincoln, and operate under the direction of Mrs. Batchelder and the state central committee.

The new director has a varied background in what he describes as "nuts and bolts politics," chiefly in Illinois.

Before coming to JFK College in 1967, Herbener was active in Republican politics in Illinois as a county chairman, a precinct committeeman and as state president of the Young Republicans.

Herbener has managed congressional campaigns in Illinois and acted as floor leader for candidates at Young Republican national conventions.

"Organizational politics," he calls it.

At Kennedy College, he has been adviser for the Young Republicans and helped in organizational efforts for the Saunders County GOP.

Asked if he identifies himself as a conservative, Herbener responded: "First of all, I consider myself a Republican. But I tend to be a traditional Republican."

His appointment will allow the party to gear up its state headquarters operation, which was cut back with Wilson's departure.

The party has been in some financial distress, but Mrs. Batchelder told newsmen last week that financing has taken a turn for the better in the last few months.

A major fund-raising dinner is in the works for Omaha to begin to store funds for use in the 1976 elections, she said.

Next year's elections will center on the contest for Roman Hruska's vacated Senate seat, and the three Nebraska seats in the House.

Telethon Is Set By Democrats

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Democratic party is going to stage another telethon July 26-27 on the ABC television network, says Robert Strauss, chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

The telecast will originate live from ABC's Television Center in Los Angeles and will feature an entertainment figure and a politician as emcees for each of the 25 hours. The show will raise funds to help pay for political campaigns locally and nationally.

A 1973 telethon on NBC raised $4 million for the Democrats. Last year's take on CBS was $6 million.

More Help Wanted

Support Renewed For Fourth Court

Municipal judges, uneasy about the prospects of the long-awaited fourth courtroom, received renewed support from the City Council and mayor during an informal meeting Tuesday afternoon.

The city leaders again pledged their personal support and gave secondhand assurance that the other two groups involved in the complex arrangement — the County Board and the County-City Building Commission — also support a fourth city courtroom and its location on the County-City Building's second floor.

But a look at the minutes of one of these organizations shows that the courtroom support is not yet a sure thing.

The newly formed building commission, composed of two councilmen, two commissioners and three lay persons, is charged with allocating space within the building.

"In my own mind I felt we had committed that (second floor) space to the courtroom, Council President and building commission member Max Denney told the judges.

Denney and building commission member Bob Sikyta both agreed that the commission had decided to allow no major changes "except those already committed."

However a review of the commission meeting minutes and the interlocal agreement creating the commission do not support the councilmen's contentions.

The commission discussed the new court space during an April 22 meeting and decided that "other alternatives should be considered since one-third of the building is now in courts." These other alternatives, according to the minutes, included night court and separate court facilities.

At the following meeting Denney unsuccessfully tried to get the minutes changed so that the fourth municipal courtroom would be eliminated from a building-wide space study.

The minutes of the April 29 meeting show that Commissioners Bob Colin and Bruce Hamilton, and Sikyta, "felt this item (courtroom construction) should be held off until the study is completed," and Denney's motion to drop the courtroom from the study went down in defeat.

The entire courtroom project hinges on moving the driver licensing office out of the County-City Building, switching the city personnel offices to the driver licensing space, and then building a fourth courtroom in the current personnel office space.

The county commissioners should be able to move the driver licensing office into space at Gateway Shopping Center within the next 60 days, Mayor Helen Boosalis reported.

But here too there may be a hitch. The mayor said there may be a difference between what it would cost to remodel the space and what the county wants to pay.

Meadow Lane Pool OK Due Next Week

Swimming and tennis will be in the spotlight next week as the City Council cements an agreement to build a new pool in east Lincoln and eyes the expansion of a tennis complex in Woods Park.

The councilmen are expected to approve a lease agreement with the school district to build a swimming pool on Meadow Lane Elementary School grounds.

No one appeared at a public hearing Tuesday night on the proposal which has been several years in the making.

The swimming pool will be a joint venture of the city and the school board. Bids will be opened in June.

The council will hold a hearing on the Woods Park tennis complex, also proposed by the Parks and Recreation Board.

The $950,000 project has the backing of the Lincoln Tennis Association. Plans call for either the city or the association to construct an indoor-outdoor tennis complex and clubhouse in the park at 33rd and J. There already are nine tennis courts at the park.

The council also will hold hearings on a change in city law to permit the Downtown Lincoln Promotion Council (DLPC) to run a public "farmers' market" this summer. The DLPC is proposing to set up the market on downtown streets and sidewalks on a weekly basis.

In other action the council:

Resolutions and Public Hearings

—Authorized payment of $11,970 from advance acquisition funds to buy land from University of Nebraska for Mahoney Golf Course.

—Authorized payment of moving expenses to Joe's Body Shop, incurred in connection with Northeast Radial.

—Approved subdivision of certain lots, near 39th and Prescott, waiving certain requirements of city code.

Ordinances, First Reading

—Designating certain portions of Pioneers Blvd. from western boundary to south line of intersection with Hwy. 2 as arterial street.

—Amending code relating to disorderly houses

—Adding to pay schedule for new classifications.

—Creating sewer district in alley between Morrill Avenue and Logan Avenue east of 73rd.

—Creating water district in Morrill Avenue from 73rd east to east line of Blks. 8 and 9, Hubbard Place.

How Many Dollars Before Plan Is Done?

The City Council asked Mayor Helen Boosalis Tuesday to find out how much it's going to cost the city to have the consultants complete the Comprehensive Plan project.

Councilman Bob Sikyta said Barton-Aschman Associates of Chicago only have two more public meetings and two more Goals and Policies meetings to go before their contract expires. The work on updating the Comprehensive Plan can't be completed in those work sessions, Sikyta said.

"It would be a great injustice to hurry them up or let them go," he said.

Councilman Steve Cook said he was "pretty dismayed" by the situation since Barton-Aschman is being paid $184,000 to help the Planning Commission do the work.

Without any further public meetings, Cook said the consultants would complete the plan. Only, he explained, it would be based on the information gathered so far.

Councilman Max Denney said there seems to be some disagreement between the city and Barton-Aschman over the terms of the contract. Denney said he thought the consultants were to count each trip to Lincoln as one session. The consultants have been counting each meeting attended.

Each additional trip to Lincoln could cost up to $1,000 each, Sikyta said.

Mayor Boosalis said she would check into the matter. She joined her former council colleagues in agreeing that the money should be spent to finish the consulting job.

If Tornado Seen, Siren Will Sound

Lincoln has had the jump on both tornadoes and Omaha with its siren warning policy.

The city's warning sirens will go off whenever someone sees a verified tornado, according to George Drake, Lancaster County Civil Defense director.

Omaha recently changed to a similar policy from one of keeping the sirens silent until a tornado touched ground, and with good reason — the May 6 tornado.

Lincoln hasn't used the sirens to warn of tornadoes since June 6, 1971, when public sightings were made of a funnel that skirted the city. Before then, the warning sirens hadn't been used since they were installed in 1954.

NBC Schedules Watts Special

LOS ANGELES (AP) — NBC Television will take a look at Watts 10 years afterward in a news special on Sunday, June 29.

Alvin H. Perlmutter, vice president of news documentaries, said the show will be the first made entirely on location with the compact Minicam.

Meridian School Bond Issue OKd

Voters in the Meridian School District approved a $1.5 million bond issue for a new school Tuesday.

With all but absentee ballots counted, which numbered fewer than 25, the vote stood at 399 for the bond issue, 301 against.

The school will be for kindergarten through 12th grades, and a building site 1.8 miles west of Daykin has been proposed.

Heckman Named Chairman Of NETV Commission

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The reorganized Nebraska Educational Television Commission on Tuesday named Doane College President Philip Heckman commission chairman for 1975.

Five new members appointed by Gov. J. James Exon joined the commission. In their first action, they agreed to reorder priorities for equipment to serve areas now getting poor NETV reception.

Heckman, of Crete, is a holdover member who also sits on the Public Broadcasting Service (PBS) Board of Governors. Another holdover, Mrs. Don Popken of Brady, was elected vice chairman. New appointee Al Gilmore of Omaha was named to the third slot on the commission executive committee.

Other new members are Mrs. Dorothy Obbink of Lincoln, Don Conrad of Blair, Ed Nelson of Chardon and Jim Johnson of Kearney.

Network General Manager Jack McBride was re-elected to his additional post as commission secretary. Paul Few, network assistant general manager for administration, was named assistant secretary.

Commissioners ratified the appointment of Thomas G. Howe as NETV Network assistant program manager. He formerly was programming and operations director of the Montana Educational Broadcasting Commission, and senior producer-director at Hawaii Public TV and at public station KPBS-TV, San Diego.

Philip Heckman

Howe, whose television credits include 17 programs distributed nationally by PBS, also managed station KFJC-FM in Los Altos, Calif.

The commission directed the NETV staff to recorder priorities, for June approval, and postpone construction of large translators to serve the Beatrice, Falls City and Pawnee City areas in southeast Nebraska.

Construction permits have been applied for, but Boyd Rooney, network assistant general manager for operations, explained, "We are faced with a possible delay of up to six months while the FCC (Federal Communications Commission) goes through its procedure of assigning channels."

Network General Manager Jack McBride said "to get service to more people rather than sitting on the money" already appropriated for translator sites, smaller translators may be installed in areas down the priority list.

Rooney named Verdigre, Trenton - Culbertson - Stratton, Decatur and Neligh as possible translater sites, based on interest expressed by local residents and difficulty of current reception.

The Legislature reappropriated $115,000 in 1974-75 funds — part of a four-year commitment — for the top-priority, southeast Nebraska sites; and the same amount for 1975-76.

Rooney said when the FCC provides the necessary channels for the three southeast sites, translator installation will resume immediately.

Rooney also reported that consultants are interviewing Nebraskans about the feasibility of a statewide FM public radio system, while he and his staff are visiting systems in other states to study technical and equipment requirements.

The study is being paid for by a $25,000 Corporation for Public Broadcasting grant. Commissioner Heckman last year proposed the idea for a public radio network, which has met with opposition from commercial broadcasters.

Rooney said reports on "needs within the state that public radio can solve" will be presented to the commission "probably in late November or December."

Network Program Manager Ron Hull reported that the NETV-produced "Anyone for Tennyson?" a series of 20 half-hour programs featuring poetry, will be broadcast nationally by PBS in the coming television season. Hull said 110 public TV stations have bought the series through the PBS station program cooperative.

Few reported the Legislature approved a $2,522,611 NETV Commission budget for 1975-76, plus authorization to spend up to $12,500 in cash funds. Projections for federal funds total $264,000.

The unexpended general fund (state tax) balance includes money for the new translators and $160,000 in state matching funds for a new color mobile unit, for which a federal application is still pending.

The commission will formally adopt its budget next month, and Few said NETV must submit a report to the Legislature in September, a more full accounting of all expenditures than has been required in the past.

Commissioner Steven Sample, University of Nebraska executive vice president, warned that if private contributions to NETV increase, that should not necessarily result in less support from the state. He also contended that the commission should take full authority for policies on spending and resulting programming, rather than the Legislature setting priorities.

Nixon To Serve NPTV?

When Nebraskans for Public Television (NPTV) elect new members to their board in June, Richard M. Nixon of San Clemente, Calif., could be among the nominees.

NPTV Development Director George Collins said Tuesday the 5,000-member volunteer organization to improve Nebraska Educational Television programming has set up a democratic nominating process for this year's annual meeting, instead of presenting a slate.

One member, whom Collins declined to name, offered the name of the former President, saying "he has time for those sort of things."

'Kilowatt Catfish' Farm To Be Auctioned

By JOEL THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Fremont — The unavailability of feed and the threatened loss of heated water from Fremont's Lon D. Wright power plant has forced closure of the Aquarium Farms "kilowatt catfish" farm.

An auction of the fish farm's building and equipment is scheduled for 1 p.m. Wednesday to repay an undisclosed sum outstanding on a secured mortgage guaranteed by the federal Small Business Administration.

Elliott Hechtman of Omaha, president of Aquarium Farms, said the company's employes were laid off last month when the City of Fremont turned down his offer to buy heated water from the city power plant. The offer involved payment to the city of $2 million over the next 20 years, he said.

The city council turned down the offer, according to city administrator Jack Sutton, because of water shortages projected by an engineering study commissioned by the city. A new system of cooling and recycling the heated water emissions is being installed and it will use less water, he said.

Hechtman disputed the projection of water shortages, claiming that hydrologic studies by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, the U.S. Geological Survey and the University of Nebraska show no threat of shortages in the Platte River aquifer for the next 20 years.

Water Used Free

Aquarium Farms has been using, free of charge, the plant's heated cooling water to raise catfish and St. Peter's fish. A 1972 agreement between the farm and the City of Fremont provided that the water would be available only until the city's new generator and water cooling-recycling equipment went into operation in mid-1976.

The city promised to give 90 days' notice before cutting off the water. Construction of the equipment still is expected to be finished in mid-1976, Sutton said, and no notice has been given.

Hechtman said he laid off his workers after the city rejected his offer because there was no point putting in a new winter crop of fingerlings knowing the water would not be available next year.

Feed availability also has been a problem, Hechtman said. A firm which supplied the farm with deficient feed paid damages and then supplied more deficient feed, leading to discontinuation of Aquarium Farms' reliance on that source, Hechtman said.

He said the possibility of using a paunch manure by-product from Beefland International's packing plant in Council Bluffs, Iowa, went by the boards when that company went bankrupt, leaving Aquarium Farms with no source of fish feed.

The fish at the farm are subsisting on algae and other natural food sources in the water, Hechtman said.

Advertisements for the auction list 40,000 catfish and 100,000 talopia and fingerling fish among assets to be sold. Hechtman said there are more fish than that at the farm.

Hechtman said his plans to install a second fish farm in Wahoo depended on using the Fremont farm as a rearing facility. The Wahoo plans will be dropped unless he and associates can secure financing for a study proposal they have made to the Old West Regional Commission, Hechtman said.

If financed, the study would investigate the use of heated-water emissions from power plants in the raising of produce as well as seafood, Hechtman said.

425 Die In Weekend Mishaps

By The Associated Press

During the three-day Memorial Day weekend 425 persons lost their lives on the nation's roads.

The total, an increase of 36 from the number of highway fatalities over the 1974 Memorial Day weekend, fell within the estimate made earlier by the National Safety Council.

The council said that between 400 and 500 persons probably would be killed during the 78-hour holiday period that ended at midnight Monday.

Success Claimed

Edinburg, Ind. (UPI) — Army Secretary Howard Callaway said Monday both the all-volunteer Army and the president's amnesty program have been successful. Although some critics have said the amnesty program last winter failed to attract a sufficient number of deserters and evaders, Callaway said it was successful.

Public May Nominate Someone To Be Great

(c) Newhouse News Service

New York — The American public is invited to offer nominations for membership in a very exclusive club, one that has rejected such people as Herman Melville, Clarence Darrow, Davy Crockett and Mary Baker Eddy.

There are now 99 people in the Hall of Fame for Great Americans, an institution created to honor citizens who made significant contributions to the nation and have been dead for more than 25 years.

The hall is a handsome structure with a 630-foot open air colonnade designed by Stanford White in the University Heights section of the Bronx, from which one can see the Hudson and Harlem River Valleys.

Each hall member's niche along the Greco-Roman colonnade includes a bronze bust and a memorial tablet that tells years of birth and death. A notable quotation is also inscribed. In some cases it's a musical passage.

Many of the faces are immediately recognizable, despite the effects of time and an occasional graffito. A gaunt, reflective Lincoln and an understanding Jefferson appear indifferent to the changes. A fittingly professorial Woodrow Wilson looks across the corridor, undisturbed by the thin moustache someone has added to John Paul Jones.

Sculptor Augustus Saint-Gaudens and actor Edwin Booth apparently are secure enough to ignore the "Dino" who wanted his own bit of immortality and autographed their pedestals.

Alexander Hamilton and William Penn, looking very righteous, do not seem bothered by the flesh-and-blood couple that found a quiet, private spot along their row.

John James Audubon, John Marshall and Oliver Wendell Holmes Jr. are here.

There are some unfamiliar names: Sylvanus Thayer, "father of West Point" and founder of Dartmouth's school of engineering; Frances Elizabeth Willard, who helped organize the Prohibition Party; engineer James Buchanan Eads; and surgeon William Crawford Gorgas.

Membership in the hall is categorized. Titles include educators, authors, artists, architects, soldiers, explorers, missionaries, musicians, actors, inventors, businessmen, philanthropists, theologians and humanitarians.

Freda Hliddal, curator of the hall, says, "The hall's founder (Henry Mitchell MacCracken, then chancellor of New York University) had the idea that since America was a democratic country, the doctor was just as important as the military leader and the actor just as important as the statesman."

She adds: "Some young people are not aware of the types of people who have made America. The hall keeps people aware of what has happened in our country, what has made the country great. We're not very hero-conscious any more."

The criteria?

"Nominees for the hall must have lived in the United States and made a definite, lasting contribution to society and been acclaimed by the public.

"It costs about $25,000 to install each hall member," she says. "Organizations interested in the person being honored seek funds. For example, the American Bandmasters Association is carrying on fund-raising for John Philip Sousa."

The hall has a category for "Other Distinguished Men and Women" who could not be classified under the regular headings.

GOP To Hire College Dean

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

A 46-year-old college dean will be named as the new executive director of Nebraska's Republican Party, it was learned Tuesday.

Lloyd Herbener, currently dean of students and associate professor of political science at John F. Kennedy College in Wahoo, is scheduled to assume the party post June 1.

Announcement of the appointment will be made by Republican State Chairman Anne Batchelder this week.

Post Vacant

The executive director's post has been vacant since the resignation of Glenn Wilson last December.

Herbener will manage state headquarters in Lincoln, and operate under the direction of Mrs. Batchelder and the state central committee.

The new director has a varied background in what he describes as "nuts and bolts politics," chiefly in Illinois.

Before coming to JFK College in 1967, Herbener was active in Republican politics in Illinois as a county chairman, a precinct committeeman and as state president of the Young Republicans.

Herbener has managed congressional campaigns in Illinois and acted as floor leader for candidates at Young Republican national conventions.

"Organizational politics," he calls it.

At Kennedy College, he has been adviser for the Young Republicans and helped in organizational efforts for the Saunders County GOP.

Asked if he identifies himself as a conservative, Herbener responded: "First of all, I consider myself a Republican. But I tend to be a traditional Republican."

His appointment will allow the party to gear up its state headquarters operation, which was cut back with Wilson's departure.

The party has been in some financial distress, but Mrs. Batchelder told newsmen last week that financing has taken a turn for the better in the last few months.

A major fund-raising dinner is in the works for Omaha to begin to store funds for use in the 1976 elections, she said.

Next year's elections will center on the contest for Roman Hruska's vacated Senate seat, and the three Nebraska seats in the House.

Telethon Is Set By Democrats

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Democratic party is going to stage another telethon July 26-27 on the ABC television network, says Robert Strauss, chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

The telecast will originate live from ABC's Television Center in Los Angeles and will feature an entertainment figure and a politician as emcees for each of the 25 hours. The show will raise funds to help pay for political campaigns locally and nationally.

A 1973 telethon on NBC raised $4 million for the Democrats. Last year's take on CBS was $6 million.

More Help Wanted

New York (AP) — The number of help-wanted advertisements in the nation's major newspapers increased slightly in April for the first time in 10 months, the Conference Board reports.

in the 1975 Kodak International Newspaper Snapshot Awards.

Rules:

Contest is strictly for amateur photographers. Employees of the newspaper and individuals engaged in the manufacture, sale, commercial finishing or professional use of photographic goods are not eligible.

Black and white or color pictures taken since July 1, 1974, are eligible. They may be taken with any make of camera or any brand of film. No artwork or retouching is permitted — no composite pictures, multiple exposures or multiple printings.

Prints, black and white or color, must be 5 inches or more on their smallest side. Color transparencies must be 35 mm or larger.

Contestant's name and address must be written clearly on the back of each print entered or on the border of each transparency.

There is no limit on the number of pictures or transperancies a contestant may enter each week.

However, if a contestant wishes to enter more than one week, each week's entry must be mailed separately in conformity with deadlines.

The Sunday Journal and Star will eliminate from further consideration any additional entries by any 1975 contestant who wins two weekly awards.

No black and white prints can be returned. If color print or slide entries are accompanied by self-addressed envelopes with proper amounts of stamps affixed, every effort will be made to return them (prize-winners excepted) following the final weekly contest, but returns cannot be guaranteed.

Print, mountings, borders and folders have no bearing on the judging.

Contestants are permitted to submit pictures to only one newspaper participating in the Kodak International Newspaper Snapshot Awards.

Weekly contest deadlines require that the pictures be received in The Sunday Journal and Star office by 10 A.M. on June 30 and July 1, 8, 15, 22 and 29. Late arrivals will automatically be entered in the following week's contest.

To be eligible for a prize, a contestant must sign a statement, upon request by the contest officials, that the picture or another closely similar picture of the same subject or situation has not and will not be entered in any contest and will not be offered for publication.

Be sure you know the names and addresses of any recognizable persons appearing in your picture. In order for it to be submitted for international competition, you must be able to get the written consent of such person or persons to permit use of the picture for illustration, advertising or publication.

LOCAL PRIZES

The Sunday Journal and Star offers four weekly prizes of $5 each — two for black and white photos and two for color pictures for each of six weekly contests. All weekly prize-winners will be eligible for Sunday Journal and Star Grand Prizes, one of $40 for the best black and white picture and one of $40 for the best color picture. The Grand Prize Winners and three other black and white pictures and three other color pictures selected by the judges from the weekly winners will be entered in the KINSA competition.

Heckman Named Chairman Of NETV Commission

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The reorganized Nebraska Educational Television Commission on Tuesday named Doane College President Philip Heckman commission chairman for 1975.

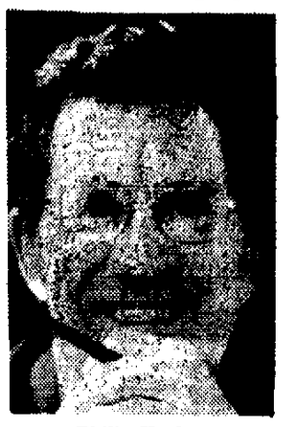
Five new members appointed by Gov. J. James Exon joined the commission. In their first action, they agreed to reorder priorities for equipment to serve areas now getting poor NETV reception.

Heckman, of Crete, is a holdover member who also sits on the Public Broadcasting Service (PBS) Board of Governors. Another holdover, Mrs. Don Popken of Brady, was elected vice chairman. New appointee Al Gilmore of Omaha was named to the third slot on the commission executive committee.

Other new members are Mrs. Dorothy Obbink of Lincoln, Don Conrad of Blair, Ed Nelson of Chardon and Jim Johnson of Kearney.

Network General Manager Jack McBride was re-elected to his additional post as commission secretary. Paul Few, network assistant general manager for administration, was named assistant secretary.

Commissioners ratified the appointment of Thomas G. Howe as NETV Network assistant program manager. He formerly was programming and operations director of the Montana Educational Broadcasting Commission, and senior producer-director at Hawaii Public TV and at public station KPBS-TV, San Diego.



Philip Heckman

Howe, whose television credits include 17 programs distributed nationally by PBS, also managed station KFJC-FM in Los Altos, Calif.

The commission directed the NETV staff to recorder priorities, for June approval, and postpone construction of large translators to serve the Beatrice, Falls City and Pawnee City areas in southeast Nebraska.

Construction permits have been applied for, but Boyd Rooney, network assistant general manager for operations, explained, "We are faced with a possible delay of up to six months while the FCC (Federal Communications Commission) goes through its procedure of assigning channels."

Network General Manager Jack McBride said "to get service to more people rather than sitting on the money" already appropriated for translator sites, smaller translators may be installed in areas down the priority list.

Rooney named Verdigre, Trenton - Culbertson - Stratton, Decatur and Neligh as possible translater sites, based on interest expressed by local residents and difficulty of current reception.

The Legislature reappropriated $115,000 in 1974-75 funds — part of a four-year commitment — for the top-priority, southeast Nebraska sites; and the same amount for 1975-76.

Rooney said when the FCC provides the necessary channels for the three southeast sites, translator installation will resume immediately.

Rooney also reported that consultants are interviewing Nebraskans about the feasibility of a statewide FM public radio system, while he and his staff are visiting systems in other states to study technical and equipment requirements.

The study is being paid for by a $25,000 Corporation for Public Broadcasting grant. Commissioner Heckman last year proposed the idea for a public radio network, which has met with opposition from commercial broadcasters.

Rooney said reports on "needs within the state that public radio can solve" will be presented to the commission "probably in late November or December."

Network Program Manager Ron Hull reported that the NETV-produced "Anyone for Tennyson?" a series of 20 half-hour programs featuring poetry, will be broadcast nationally by PBS in the coming television season. Hull said 110 public TV stations have bought the series through the PBS station program cooperative.

Few reported the Legislature approved a $2,522,611 NETV Commission budget for 1975-76, plus authorization to spend up to $12,500 in cash funds. Projections for federal funds total $264,000.

The unexpended general fund (state tax) balance includes money for the new translators and $160,000 in state matching funds for a new color mobile unit, for which a federal application is still pending.

The commission will formally adopt its budget next month, and Few said NETV must submit a report to the Legislature in September, a more full accounting of all expenditures than has been required in the past.

Commissioner Steven Sample, University of Nebraska executive vice president, warned that if private contributions to NETV increase, that should not necessarily result in less support from the state. He also contended that the commission should take full authority for policies on spending and resulting programming, rather than the Legislature setting priorities.

Nixon To Serve NPTV?

When Nebraskans for Public Television (NPTV) elect new members to their board in June, Richard M. Nixon of San Clemente, Calif., could be among the nominees.

NPTV Development Director George Collins said Tuesday the 5,000-member volunteer organization to improve Nebraska Educational Television programming has set up a democratic nominating process for this year's annual meeting, instead of presenting a slate.

One member, whom Collins declined to name, offered the name of the former President, saying "he has time for those sort of things."

'Kilowatt Catfish' Farm To Be Auctioned

By JOEL THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Fremont — The unavailability of feed and the threatened loss of heated water from Fremont's Lon D. Wright power plant has forced closure of the Aquarium Farms "kilowatt catfish" farm.

An auction of the fish farm's building and equipment is scheduled for 1 p.m. Wednesday to repay an undisclosed sum outstanding on a secured mortgage guaranteed by the federal Small Business Administration.

Elliott Hechtman of Omaha, president of Aquarium Farms, said the company's employes were laid off last month when the City of Fremont turned down his offer to buy heated water from the city power plant. The offer involved payment to the city of $2 million over the next 20 years, he said.

The city council turned down the offer, according to city administrator Jack Sutton, because of water shortages projected by an engineering study commissioned by the city. A new system of cooling and recycling the heated water emissions is being installed and it will use less water, he said.

Hechtman disputed the projection of water shortages, claiming that hydrologic studies by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, the U.S. Geological Survey and the University of Nebraska show no threat of shortages in the Platte River aquifer for the next 20 years.

Water Used Free

Aquarium Farms has been using, free of charge, the plant's heated cooling water to raise catfish and St. Peter's fish. A 1972 agreement between the farm and the City of Fremont provided that the water would be available only until the city's new generator and water cooling-recycling equipment went into operation in mid-1976.

The city promised to give 90 days' notice before cutting off the water. Construction of the equipment still is expected to be finished in mid-1976, Sutton said, and no notice has been given.

Hechtman said he laid off his workers after the city rejected his offer because there was no point putting in a new winter crop of fingerlings knowing the water would not be available next year.

Feed availability also has been a problem, Hechtman said. A firm which supplied the farm with deficient feed paid damages and then supplied more deficient feed, leading to discontinuation of Aquarium Farms' reliance on that source, Hechtman said.

He said the possibility of using a paunch manure by-product from Beefland International's packing plant in Council Bluffs, Iowa, went by the boards when that company went bankrupt, leaving Aquarium Farms with no source of fish feed.

The fish at the farm are subsisting on algae and other natural food sources in the water, Hechtman said.

Advertisements for the auction list 40,000 catfish and 100,000 talopia and fingerling fish among assets to be sold. Hechtman said there are more fish than that at the farm.

Hechtman said his plans to install a second fish farm in Wahoo depended on using the Fremont farm as a rearing facility. The Wahoo plans will be dropped unless he and associates can secure financing for a study proposal they have made to the Old West Regional Commission, Hechtman said.

If financed, the study would investigate the use of heated-water emissions from power plants in the raising of produce as well as seafood, Hechtman said.

425 Die In Weekend Mishaps

By The Associated Press

During the three-day Memorial Day weekend 425 persons lost their lives on the nation's roads.

The total, an increase of 36 from the number of highway fatalities over the 1974 Memorial Day weekend, fell within the estimate made earlier by the National Safety Council.

The council said that between 400 and 500 persons probably would be killed during the 78-hour holiday period that ended at midnight Monday.

Success Claimed

Edinburg, Ind. (UPI) — Army Secretary Howard Callaway said Monday both the all-volunteer Army and the president's amnesty program have been successful. Although some critics have said the amnesty program last winter failed to attract a sufficient number of deserters and evaders, Callaway said it was successful.

AT&T Stock Buyers Can Still Back Out

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

Jane Bryant Quinn

New York — The foundation stock for long-term investors, particularly conservative investors, is American Telephone and Telegraph. With 2.8 million shareholders, it is easily the most widely owned stock in the country. It's a solid widows-and-orphans stock, reliably paying its dividend, even in bad times. Earnings have been up in recent years and, although they were off in the first three months of 1975, analysts expect improvement later this summer. The yield is around 6½%.

So when investors got calls from their brokers recently, suggesting that now was a good time to buy Telephone, the idea might have made some sense. The stock had been moving up nicely since the end of April. At around $52 a share, it was selling near its top price for the past several years, which made a lot of investors nervous. But there was a special deal going: investors could buy without paying a brokerage commission. Here's why:

Ma Bell was trying to raise capital by selling new shares. The company sold them to people who held warrants, permitting them to buy direct from the company at $52. Wall Street was carefully choreographed to get this deal done.

Although investors paid no commission, AT&T was paying plenty. Having decided that the price wasn't good enough to attract investors automatically, the company employed brokers to get the shares sold.

Commission Offered

They offered a commission of $1.50 a share — almost double the amount a broker would normally get for selling Telephone.

This arrangement is not unusual. Companies always pay brokers well to distribute new stock (although perhaps not as much as twice the usual price).

But is this in the best interest of the investor? If a broker can make almost twice as much selling AT&T than by selling other stocks, won't he be tempted to flog Telephone, regardless of other investment considerations?

Offerings like this represent unusual opportunities for stockbrokers to make money, if they can sell enough shares. But all the investor knows is that with this "special deal," he himself doesn't have to pay a commission.

It might make him more cautious in his assessment of the stock if he knew, for example, that the broker could make $150 by selling him 100 shares of Telephone today, but only $80 by selling him 100 shares next week.

Price Dropped

There's another angle to the AT&T offering that will interest investors. The new stock sold for $52, but immediately after the offering the price dropped to $48-49. Those who bought at $52 took an immediate paper loss.

But they didn't have to accept the loss. Many people who request new issues of stock are not aware that their promise to buy is not a final commitment. After they indicate their interest, the broker sends them a prospectus and they have two weeks to think over the offer. Payment for Telephone, for example, isn't due until May 29, so if investors are sorry they said yes they can back out.

This fact was not exactly well publicized. A spokesman for Morgan, Stanley, who managed this offering for AT&T, conceded that people have the right to change their minds. "But to do that would be unusual," he added.

It is certainly not in the broker's financial interest to remind his customers that they don't have to pay (although he could score some points for good will). But if someone wanted to own AT&T, it might be in his own interest to duck the $52 stock and buy in the market at the lower price. He'd be ahead, even after brokerage commissions.

Better Deals

To prevent this, as well as to keep the customer's good will, some firms offer buyers a better deal when a new issue of stock sinks in price. In Telephone's case, several brokerage houses cut the price to the people who said they'd buy at $52, taking the difference out of the broker's commission and their own take. But depending on how far AT&T falls, it still might be cheaper to buy on the open market.

Brokers, of course, are not happy when a customer reneges on a deal, even though he has the right to do so.

But investors, for their part, are not happy with what happened to the price of Telephone during this offering. Under the terms of the deal, the price had to rise to $52 before AT&T could get their new stock sold. And miraculously, in the two weeks before the offering, the stock did just that — it rose from $48 at the end of April to around $52 just two days before the offer expired.

The Securities and Exchange Commission is looking into whether that fortuitous move was due to anything more than good luck. (During the two weeks before the offering, AT&T gained 8% while the board market averages were moving up some 6%.) But at least one investor thinks he was had. He has filed a suit against everyone in sight, charging market manipulation.

Weak Early Rally Attempt Sidetracked

NEW YORK (AP) — Profit taking sidetracked a weak early rally attempt in the stock market Tuesday and left prices mixed in quiet trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up a little more than a point at the opening, closed out the day with a 5.79 loss at 826.11.

But gainers slipped past losers in the over-all New York Stock Exchange count, 733 to 675 among the 1,828 issues traded.

Big Board volume declined to 17.05 million shares from 17.87 million on Friday, before the three-day Memorial Day weekend.

Analysts noted some carryover of that buying at the opening Tuesday. But it quickly faded after the First National Bank of Chicago declined to match the reduction, holding its basic charge on corporate loans unchanged at 7¼ per cent.

Brokers said New York City's continuing efforts to resolve its financial problems might also have contributed to the atmosphere of caution on Wall Street.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index gave up .24 to 90.34, and the NYSE's composite index eased .08 to 47.97.

Anticipation of President Ford's energy address several hours after the close had its apparent effect on several stock groups.

Oils were mostly strong, seemingly on expectations that Ford would call for measures to increase incentives to industry activity. Exxon gained 1¼ to 83¼; Standard Oil of California 1 to 28¼; Getty 1¾ to 172¾, and Mobiloil to 43⅜.

Several coal issues were strong, meanwhile, on the belief that national energy programs would put increased reliance on coal.

Hog Prices Turn Lower

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Expanded supplies, following a long holiday weekend full of fairly good weather, sent hog prices lower on the Omaha livestock Tuesday, but the bigger numbers didn't hurt the cattle trade because of the continuing wholesale demand.

The day's hog run was put at 8,000 head, with barrows and gilts trading moderately active. The butcher trend was 25-to-50 cents lower, as top-graded hendyweights cleared from $47.75-$48.00 tops.

Cattle receipts were also estimated at 8,000 head. Steers and heifers were moderately active, and prices were mostly steady. In some instances the heifer trade was 25-to-50 cents higher.

Cows turned mostly 50-cents lower.

The sheep supply was one of the largest in the past several months, estimated at 1,200 head. However, the saleable supply was only about half that total, with the balance going direct to dealers.

Slaughter lambs and ewes trended steady.

Soybeans Post Limit Declines

Chicago (AP) — Soybean and soybean oil futures tumbled to allowable limits for one session on the Chicago Board of Trade Tuesday, under widespread selling pressure on farm commodity futures.

Soybean meal was down about $5 a ton while wheat fell nearly 14 cents, corn around 8 cents and oats the limit of 6 cents a bushel.

The limit in soybeans is 20 cents and in oil, 100 points, or 1 cent a pound.

An improved demand for red meat futures tended to instill buying of iced broiler futures, which gained nearly 1 cent a pound.

Gold futures were down nearly $5 an ounce under strong selling pressure that appeared to originate abroad. The U.S. dollar again was in trouble on foreign markets and it was said by trade sources that gold futures suffered as a result of this weakness. Silver futures were down the limit of 20 cents an ounce here in a kind of reflected weakness.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

San Francisco — Balmy days of May and I've moved, cat and kaboodle, into new digs. From one apartment at Snug Harbor into another. The rent rose like an Otis elevator, but you can't take it with you as the saying goes.

Across the water a black freighter is cutting a bow wave through the Golden Gate toward the Potato Patch. A piece of rough water offshore:

"When the ship goes 'wop'
(With a wiggle between)
"And the steward falls into the soup tureen"

The new apartment has been repainted. Thick new gold carpets run wall-to-wall. There are new lights that can be turned brighter or dimmer. The owner put a judas in the front door. You can peek out and see who's there but they can't see you.

Lazy days of summer. Black cat asleep in the sun. The master of the manse nipping at the cooking sherry. Home is the sailor.

☆ ☆ ☆

For awhile I considered buying one of these condominium jobs. Once I owned a scatter. Well, the banker owned it, but he let me think I was the owner.

Did you ever try to sell a house into which you poured so much toil and tears?

The real estate man who sold it to me sold it for me.

Somehow he had changed hats.

He said: "I don't want to tell you what to do but I'd paint the front at least. First impressions . . ."

☆ ☆ ☆

I said: "Real Estate Man when I bought the house, you said the paint job would last a lifetime."

He said: "How can you measure time? I'd do something about the floors, too."

I painted the house. I had the floors polished until you could look in them to shave.

The real estate man said: "It's not for me to say, but the front yard . . ."

I pulled out the weeds. I planted roses, roses, Cynara.

☆ ☆ ☆

The real estate man said: "The price is not psychologically appealing."

He reduced the price to something that ended in $99.

I went outside and picked up cigarette butts left by people who came around to see the place. Rubbernecks, not buyers.

"I've been giving it a lot of thought," said the real estate man. "Don't hesitate to say so if I'm out of line, but the light fixtures . . ."

I had new light fixtures put in. It looked so good I was ready to buy the place myself.

☆ ☆ ☆

Anyway, I sold the place. Things I never thought about came up. I had to pay closing costs. (What's to close?" I said. "How about some money on the line?")

A termite man came and gave me a paper that said we had no termites.

I had to prove I had a clear title to the place. (I said: "The first man — the one I bought it from — proved a clear title." The real estate man murmured: "It's the custom.")

So when the Snug Harbor people suggested I buy an apartment, I only said: "Are you kidding?" ("They'll never trap the Silver Fox," the children said. "He's gone to earth.")

New Sugar Product Safer For Teeth

(EDITOR'S NOTE: High prices have turned the consumer away from sugar in recent months. But there's a new development that could persuade people to use less sugar, even though it's getting cheaper again. Lisa Higgins is on the staff of Medical World News, a McGraw-Hill publication.)

By LISA HIGGINS

New York — "Look Mom, no cavities," may soon be more than just a promise from a toothpaste manufacturer, thanks to the development of a new sugar product which claims to be 75% safer for teeth. The product, called "safer sugar" looks, tastes, and acts just like ordinary table sugar, except in the development of cavities.

"Safer sugar," according to its inventor Dr. Thomas McNamara, associate professor in the School of Dental Medicine at the State University of New York at Stony Brook, is a combination of table sugar (sucrose) and two other sugars, fructose and maltose. The ratio of the different sugars to one another creates the cavity protective effect, according to Dr. McNamara.

This effect was proven in numerous laboratory tests on hamsters. Dr. McNamara would feed one group a diet containing sucrose, the other group, the "safer sugar" combination. Results of the tests showed the hamsters on the sucrose diet had three to four times as many cavities, or caries as dentists call them.

Once the caries-protective effect was established, "safer sugar" was taste-tested by humans. Participants in the test were unable to identify "safer sugar" from regular sucrose. However, Dr. McNamara was not satisified until he conducted his own test on his employes.

"We made up a jar of "safer sugar" and I took the sugar bowl used for the coffee hour and replaced it with the "safer sugar." Nobody made any comment or noticed any difference in the sugar or the sweetness or anything. That was when I was satisified that we had something that was equal to sugar."

"Safer sugar" as Dr. McNamara proved, could have immediate application in the sugar bowls of America. Any food products which use sucrose such as candy, cake mixes, gum coatings, or package desserts would easily substitute "safer sugar." It could also be used in drug products such as cough syrups, and antacids. The sugar conbination would be priced similarly to sucrose since fructose and maltose and derivatives of certain starches, vegetable and fruit sugars, and corn syrup.

Dr. McNamara received a United States patent for his invention. Since he was working as Associate Director of the Department of Dental Sciences at Warner Lambert Company when he developed his product, he assigned all rights to any commercial development to them.

AT&T Stock Buyers Can Still Back Out

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

New York — The foundation stock for long-term investors, particularly conservative investors is American Telephone and Telegraph With 2 8 million shareholders, it is easily the most widely owned stock in the country It s a solid widows-and-orphans stock, reliably paying its dividend, even in bad times Earnings have been up in recent years and, although they were off in the first three months of 1975, analysts expect improvement later this summer The yield is around 6½%

Jane Bryant Quinn

So when investors got calls from their brokers recently suggesting that now was a good time to buy Telephone, the idea might have made some sense The stock had been moving up nicely since the end of April At around $52 a share, it was selling near its top price for the past several years, which made a lot of investors nervous But there was a special deal going investors could buy without paying a brokerage commission Here's why

Ma Bell was trying to raise capital by selling new shares The company sold them to people who held warrants, permitting them to buy direct from the company at $52 Wall Street was carefully choreographed to get this deal done

Although investors paid no commission AT&T was paying plenty Having decided that the price wasn t good enough to attract investors automatically, the company employed brokers to get the shares sold

Commission Offered

They offered a commission of $1 50 a share — almost double the amount a broker would normally get for selling Telephone

This arrangement is not unusual Companies always pay brokers well to distribute new stock (although perhaps not as much as twice the usual price)

But is this in the best interest of the investor? If a broker can make almost twice as much selling AT&T than by selling other stocks, won't he be tempted to flog Telephone, regardless of other investment considerations?

Offerings like this represent unusual opportunities for stockbrokers to make money if they can sell enough shares But all the investor knows is that with this "special deal," he himself doesn't have to pay a commission

It might make him more cautious in his assessment of the stock if he knew, for example, that the broker could make $150 by selling him 100 shares of Telephone today, but only $80 by selling him 100 shares next week

Price Dropped

There's another angle to the AT&T offering that will interest investors The new stock sold for $52, but immediately after the offering the price dropped to $48-49 Those who bought at $52 took an immediate paper loss

But they didn't have to accept the loss Many people who request new issues of stock are not aware that their promise to buy is not a final commitment After they indicate their interest, the broker sends them a prospectus and they have two weeks to think over the offer Payment for Telephone, for example, isn't due until May 29, so if investors are sorry they said yes they can back out

This fact was not exactly well publicized A spokesman for Morgan, Stanley, who managed this offering for AT&T, conceded that people have the right to change their minds "But to do that would be unusual," he added.

It is certainly not in the broker's financial interest to remind his customers that they don t have to pay (although he could score some points for good will) But if someone wanted to own AT&T, it might be in his own interest to duck the $52 stock and buy in the market at the lower price He d be ahead, even after brokerage commissions

Better Deals

To prevent this, as well as to keep the customer s good will, some firms offer buyers a better deal when a new issue of stock sinks in price In Telephone's case, several brokerage houses cut the price to the people who said they d buy at $52, taking the difference out of the broker's commission and their own take But depending on how far AT&T falls, it still might be cheaper to buy on the open market.

Brokers, of course, are not happy when a customer reneges on a deal, even though he has the right to do so

But investors, for their part, are not happy with what happened to the price of Telephone during this offering Under the terms of the deal, the price had to rise to $52 before AT&T could get their new stock sold And miraculously, in the two weeks before the offering, the stock did just that — it rose from $48 at the end of April to around $52 just two days before the offer expired

The Securities and Exchange Commission is looking into whether that fortuitous move was due to anything more than good luck (During the two weeks before the offering, AT&T gained 8% while the board market averages were moving up some 6%) But at least one investor thinks he was had He has filed a suit against everyone in sight, charging market manipulation

Weak Early Rally Attempt Sidetracked

NEW YORK (AP) — Profit taking sidetracked a weak early rally attempt in the stock market Tuesday and left prices mixed in quiet trading

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up a little more than a point at the opening, closed out the day with a 5 79 loss at 826 11

But gainers slipped past losers in the over-all New York Stock Exchange count, 733 to 675 among the 1,828 issues traded.

Big Board volume declined to 17 05 million shares from 17 87 million on Friday, before the three-day Memorial Day weekend

Analysts noted some carryover of that buying at the opening Tuesday But it quickly faded after the First National Bank of Chicago declined to match the reduction, holding its basic charge on corporate loans unchanged at 7¼ per cent

Brokers said New York City's continuing efforts to resolve its financial problems might also have contributed to the atmosphere of caution on Wall Street

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index gave up 24 to 90 34, and the NYSE s composite index eased 08 to 47 97

Anticipation of President Ford s energy address several hours after the close had its apparent effect on several stock groups

Oils were mostly strong, seemingly on expectations that Ford would call for measures to increase incentives to industry activity Exxon gained 1¼ to 83¼, Standard Oil of California 1 to 28¼, Getty 1¾ to 172¾, and Mobiloil to 43⅝

Several coal issues were strong, meanwhile, on the belief that national energy programs would put increased reliance on coal

Proposal Would Deny Blair Telephone Boost

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The chairman of the Nebraska Public Service Commission Tuesday proposed denying the Blair Telephone Co s request for a $250 000 rate increase

Commissioner Eric Rasmussen of Fairmont cited poor telephone service as the reason he favors denying the request

Rasmussen agreed to postpone a vote on his motion until next Monday in order to give fellow commissioners a chance to study his proposal

9% Return Unhurt

Even if the increase is denied, the Blair Telephone Co will still have a 9% rate of return on equity Rasmussen said, which is substantial and allows "plenty of money to bring up their service

Rasmussen s proposal is in line with the commission s 1974 order directing Blair Telephone Co to cut its rates to subscribers in the Kennard exchange because of poor service At the time the commission said the rates would be increased when service improvements are completed

That action followed complaints from roughly 100 Kennard residents who asked the commission to transfer their exchange to Northwestern Bell's service territory

Instead the commission ordered the rate reduction, which Blair Telephone, owned by the Hunt family, has fought all the way to the State Supreme Court The court has not ruled as yet

Rasmussen said his proposal reflects "a new attitude" on the commission that "reasonable service must precede rate increases " He based that observation on a Louisiana court ruling

Commissioners also indicated the Blair service had not been improved since 1973 The latest application would triple some rates

Owners Would Pay

Rasmussen's proposal would reduce Blair's commercial expenses, such as advertising, and salaries for executives In other words, the order would force the owners instead of the ratepayers to shoulder those expenses

Commissioner Jack Romans of Ord objected to elimination of expenses for advertising

Advertising by the telephone company is needed, he said, ' to offset narrow-minded stories ' about it

Romans noted that he was not objecting to Rasmussen's entire proposal but to the advertising section

Reporter Denied Copy

Rasmussen declined to supply a copy of his proposed order to a reporter until the vote is taken

In other action Tuesday, the commission

—Denied the Nebraska railroads request for a 10% increase in sand and gravel rates

Commissioner Robert T Marland of Lincoln said that in the last three years, railroad sand and gravel rates have increased 65% Rasmussen said the rail rates if granted would be almost as high as truck rates

The vote was 4-1, Romans dissented

—Reported that it has set 9 30 a m July 1 in the commission hearing room for the beginning of testimony on Lincoln Telephone & Telegraph Co 's request for a $5 5 million rate increase

At that time, the company will present its case, a time for the commission staff s case has not been set

Changes Cited For Rise In Revenue From Trucks

By The Associated Press

The trucking industry has provided the state with $16 million in additional revenues since 1972, largely because of management changes implemented in the Department of Motor Vehicles

"The management changes involved generated $16 million in additional road building money between 1972 and 1975 compared with the previous five years," according to John L Sullivan, head of the DMV

Revenue reports show an average of $4 million was collected from interstate trucks paying taxes and licensing fees to the department annually from 1966 through 1971, Sullivan said

The department estimates that taxes and fees collected this year will be well over $9 million

'Secret In Services'

"The whole secret has been in providing services that have made a lot of firms decide to base plate their operations in Nebraska," Sullivan said

Base plating occurs when a firm is headquartered in one state, but decides to license its vehicles, or base plate them, in another state

The DMV's registration division shows that in 1971 there were 3,500 carriers registered with 150,000 units. That compares with 4,500 carriers and 450,000 units for 1975.

"All of this means additional road building revenue for Nebraska without paying interest," Sullivan said

"Quite simply we have a very simple system that doesn't involved a complicated fee schedule, and we have a much more uniform and fair taxing schedule," Sullivan said

"To put it bluntly, a trucking company can base plate with us and have all its paperwork and red tape taken care of a heck of a lot quicker than it can in almost any other state," Sullivan said "It's the old story about building a better mousetrap "

"We can get them licensed and operating on short notice, and in a lot of other states it can take weeks," Sullivan said

Sullivan points to one firm, Transcon Lines of Los Angeles, as an example of "how better business practices can bring in more business for the state "

From Zero To Many

Transcon had no employes in Nebraska in 1972 and paid no license fees because of a reciprocal agreement with Oklahoma

In 1974, Transcon employed an average of 504 employes in Nebraska with a payroll of more than $10 million It also paid state fuel tax exceeding $127,000 and line haul prorate fees of about $70 000

In addition, it paid local pickup and delivery license plate fees of about $6,000, according to records.

Kansas City, Mo (UPI) — The earliest known forerunner of the Father s Day card is an inscribed clay tablet written in Babylon about 2,000 years before Christ

The writer of the message, one Elmesu, according to Hallmark researcher Sally Hopkins, implored the gods to grant his father good health and long life — sentiments closely echoed in greeting cards today

Soybeans Post Limit Declines

Chicago (AP) — Soybean and soybean oil futures tumbled to allowable limits for one session on the Chicago Board of Trade Tuesday, under widespread selling pressure on farm commodity futures

Soybean meal was down about $5 a ton while wheat fell nearly 14 cents, corn around 8 cents and oats the limit of 6 cents a bushel

The limit in soybeans is 20 cents and in oil, 100 points, or 1 cent a pound

An improved demand for red meat futures tended to instill buying of iced broiler futures, which gained nearly 1 cent a pound

Gold futures were down nearly $5 an ounce under strong selling pressure that appeared to originate abroad The U S dollar again was in trouble on foreign markets and it was said by trade sources that gold futures suffered as a result of this weakness Silver futures were down the limit of 20 cents an ounce here in a kind of reflected weakness.

Flyers Defend Title

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — As if it was really necessary, Bernie Parent and the Philadelphia Flyers proved that last year wasn't a fluke.

"When we won last year we were in the clouds," Parent said Tuesday night after his 2-0 shutout over the Buffalo Sabres enabled the Flyers to complete a successful defense of their Stanley Cup, four games to two.

"This year it was different because we knew what we were doing and where we were going. We proved to everyone that last year was no fluke."

Just as he did here against the Sabres, Parent also came through with a clutch shutout in last year's finale against Boston, and for the second year in a row he was voted the Conn Smythe Trophy as the most valuable player in the playoffs.

"I don't even think about Conn Smythe," said Parent. "It's just nice for the team to win the Stanley Cup."

Except for a sip from the Stanley Cup itself, Parent forewent the pleasure of drinking the traditional glass of champagne because "it makes me sick and I want to enjoy this."

For all of Parent's outstanding work, it took a goal by a man who didn't even think he would dress for the game to give Philadelphia the winning goal. Bob Kelly scored it after just 11 seconds of the third period and said later that he had worried Tuesday morning that Coach Fred Shero wouldn't make him eligible for the contest.

"That's only one play," Kelly said of his goal. "It took a lot of games I didn't participate in to get here. "When you score a goal in an 8-0 romp, it's nothing, but to score the goal that wins the Stanley Cup— that's something."

Kelly scored the goal on sheer tenacity after being checked solidly by brawny defenseman Jerry Korab against the boards. The speedy Kelly eluded the grip of the much larger man and came out to the right of goaltender Roger Crozier. As Crozier stepped to the side to face him, Kelly tucked the puck into the far corner for only his third goal of the playoffs.

"The puck was there when I turned, so I tried to stuff it in the corner," Kelly added. "It wasn't planned, I don't score enough goals to plan them."

Bill Clement sealed the victory with 2:47 to go when he took a centering pass from Orest Kindrachuk in the slot and sailed in alone, putting the puck between Crozier's pads. It was his first goal of the playoffs.

Buffalo coach Floyd Smith, after congratulating the winning Flyers in their dressing room, said, "we're just not quite good enough yet. Maybe the next time around."

This fourth shutout of the playoffs didn't come easy for Parent, who was called on to make 32 saves.

The balding Crozier, who turned in a 17-2-1 record during the regular season but was making only his third start in two months, did an outstanding job as the replacement for Gerry Desjardins, stopping all but two of the 31 shots sent at him.

The Sabres, during the first period, built an impenetrable wall around Crozier with their tenacious checking. Philadelphia was able to challenge him with more success in the second period but, on the best chances, Bill Barber hit a post and Reggie Leach lost the post while cruising in alone on Crozier.

Late in the second period, on a Philadelphia power play, Orest Kindrachuk had an excellent opportunity directly in front of Crozier but he couldn't control the rebound of a point shot by Barber.

For Buffalo, which made it to the championship round in only its fifth year in the league, its glaring weakness once again came on the power play. The Sabres were foiled on all six occasions when they enjoyed a man advantage, and for the series, they managed to convert only 3 of 31 opportunities.

The victory was worth $15,000 to each member of the winning Flyers. The Sabres received $10,000 apiece.

Paul VI Earns Class B Title

By CHUCK SINCLAIR
Prep Sports Writer

Allen High School's Eagles could have been nicknamed the Giant-Killers after a 6-5 conquest of Lincoln Pius X in the opening round of the Class B state high school baseball tourney at the Nebraska diamond Tuesday morning.

But any visions the Eagles had of continuing to slay giants and carting home a state championship trophy to a school with only 69 male students, were shattered by mighty Omaha Paul VI in the finals, 9-2, giving the Hornets their first state championship.

Omaha Paul VI had eliminated 11-1 Wayne in their opening-round game by a 4-0 count as Dan Pawloski threw a two-hitter going the distance.

Pawloski was aided in his early Tuesday effort by catcher Rick Merrill's two-run homer and a double.

In the Pius X-Allen contest, the Thunderbolts were struck by lightening, or better yet, sun as they entered the fifth inning with a comfortable 3-0 lead.

Allen's second batter, Steve Osbahr, hit a high fly to leftfielder John Keady who lost the ball in the sun. After regaining sight of the ball, Keady was out of position and unable to make the play.

Osbahr was credited with a double and knocked in the first of six runs to cross the plate for the Eagles in that inning.

A Pius X rally fell one run short sending Allen into the Class B finals against Paul VI.

Allen drew first blood in the title contest when pitcher Loren Book scored on an error by Paul Vi pitcher Gary Pechar.

Book himself had allowed just one hit through the first two innings when the Eagles' bubble burst.

Left fielder Jeff Pechar reached first on an error in the top of the third and advanced to second on a sacrifice.

Two straight doubles, one by Tom Neumann and the other by Merrill scored two runs.

After the dust had cleared, Omaha Paul VI held a 4-1 lead and kept Allen from further scoring until the bottom of the sixth when Osbahr scored on a balk by Pechar.

Pechar was going the distance while the Hornets forced Allen coach Bob Moore to use three different pitchers, Book, Jeff Creamer and Paul Snyder.

Subbing for Book in the third, Creamer had the Omaha club shackled for the next three innings.

But an outburst like the earlier one put the game away when Paul VI pushed five runs across the plate in the top of the last inning.

Pechar finished the game with 10 strikeouts giving up eight hits.

But it was Merrill who drew the bulk of the praise from coach Mike Culver. The stocky catcher extended a hitting streak started during districts to 11 hits in 11 tries before fouling out to Creamer in the top of the fifth.

Merrill hit his second double of the game and fourth extrabase hit of the day in the last inning scoring spree.

"Rick is one heck of a competitor," Culver said of the Kearney State-bound Merrill. "He's got to be the best high school catcher around."

Culver pointed out Merrill was batting .412 going into the state tourney games.

"But we don't put much emphasis on the statistics," he said. "It's not who's doing the hitting or who's striking out, but the result of the win lost column."

If youth is any indication of how that win-loss column will stand next year, Paul VI had but two seniors playing on the 1975 state champions.

THE PADDOCK

Tough Job

Omaha — John Maluvius talks from experience when he describes the pitfalls of assigning weights to horses running in handicap events.

"Anywhere you go, even in Chicago or New York, the handicappers assigning weights are concerned with the stars," said Ak-Sar-Ben's racing secretary and handicapper who spent 27 years in a similar position at Hollywood Park near Los Angeles before coming here.

"Take the Carter Handicap in New York, where Forego was assigned 134 pounds. The idea behind the weights is to even up the race. But really, you start with a reasonable weight for the top horse and then worry about the top ten," he added.

Maluvius explained that he basically concentrates on the higher-weighted horses and the middle-weighted horses.

"You're not worried about the 105 or 106 (pound horses)," he said. "They shouldn't generally be in the race anyway."

"Take our first Saturday race (the $25,000-added Beef State Handicap when the top-weighted horse, Prince Astro with 124 pounds, drew off to a 4½-length verdict), if you really wanted to make it equal, I probably would have had to assign Prince Astro 132-135 pounds," Maluvius said. "But then he probably wouldn't have run and that would have ruined the whole thing."

One of the fallacies of racing is that weight makes all the horses equal. It really doesn't. Any handicapping book will explain that the top-weighted horses win considerably more handicaps than the lower weight handicaps.

Ak-Sar-Ben Follows Trend

A check of the handicaps run at Ak-Sar-Ben this season indicates that Maluvius has done an excellent job of assigning weights.

In the first two races, the top-weighted horse won. Prince Astro took the Beef State and Bold Trap, with 120 pounds, captured the Ambassador's Handicap. In the third handicap, the Ak-Sar-Ben Handicap on May 17, the top-weighted horse I'll Swanee, with 118 pounds, finished second.

The last two handicaps have not run true to Maluvius' weights. The two top-weighted horses in His Majesty's Council Handicap finished way back — Bold Trap with 125 pounds and Pappa Hans with 119 pounds. In Monday's King's Handicap, the top-weight, Brush Cutter, with 117 pounds finished third to Rooter and Pondelli.

"After the races, the next time those horses run together, you have to adjust the weights. You adjust some up and others down," Maluvius said. "It's tough to assign weights to horses. It usually takes a race or two to get a line on the horses. It's tough when, like here, the only places the horses don't come from is Hawaii."

Maluvius, who once worked as assistant racing secretary at Santa Antia Park near Los Angeles, explained that at the western track, the nominations for some races closed on Dec. 1 and the weights would come out on Dec. 20 before the meet even opened after Christmas Day.

"When that happened, you had to do a lot of research to get weights that are accurate," he said.

In Maluvius' case, with his proven track record, it generally pays to follow the horse he assigned top-weight. In the five Ak-Sar-Ben handicaps, he has two wins, a second and a third and that's pretty good handicapping.

Ralston — Lincoln Southeast advanced Operation Sneakup another step here Tuesday night with an 8-1 upset win over Omaha Benson in the first round of the Class A State Baseball Tournament at Orval Smith Field.

The Knights, still below .500 with an 8-9 record, meet Omaha Burke for the State Class A baseball championship here at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday. Burke defeated Ralston, 6-5, in Tuesday's other semifinal game to advance opposite Southeasst.

"This ought to open up a few eyes," Southeast pitcher and co-captain Mark Harrison said after he checked Benson to only two hits in six innings. Junior teammate Rush Reynolds kept the Bunnies' bats equally quiet in the seventh to preserve the victory.

"We may have come into this tournament with the worst record," concedes Harrison, "but we're a whole new team, sneaking up on people. There was no doubt about this game. We were just too up to lose it. We thrive on tournaments. We intend to win this thing."

Although veteran Southeast coach Charlie Gordon indicated he probably wouldn't start Harrison on the mound in the title game, the senior right-hander said he'd like that chance.

"When he took me out after the sixth, he reminded me I had six innings left to pitch and I might get to start again," Harrison related. "I want to go again. I'm not the kind who needs much rest."

Harrison, credited with six of Southeast's eight wins this spring, "really mixed up his pitches," according to Gordon. "He's got a sneaky fast ball. He makes everything work for him. He's one of the best."

Although offense has been the Knights' weakness all season — they still don't have a hitter batting above .300 — they maximized most opportunities against Benson, which finished the season 11-4.

Senior shortstop Mark Haas drilled a 340-foot double to left center field to drive home Craig Leslie in the first inning. Haas then scored himself when Greg Smith walked with the bases loaded.

Benson countered with its only run in the second inning to reduce the deficit to 2-1, but the Knights paraded 11 batters to the plate in a 6-run third-inning outburst to assume complete control.

Mark Haas, brother Stan Haas (a sophomore) and Dan Heskett collected singles for the only hits in the uprising. The Knights parlayed three walks and two Benson errors to account for most of the production.

Benson starting pitcher Wayne Ruff lasted only 2 1/3 innings. Reliever Bob Woodworth also experienced control problems against the small Knights' lineup.

Dave Lewis, Benson's coach, never used ace pitcher Don Byers. He admitted he was keeping him off the mound for possible use in Wednesday's championship game.

"I think if you're good enough to make the finals, you should save your best for the best," Lewis said. "We knew Harrison was a good competitor and we respected him. Of course, we thought we could get the job done. But we played poorly."

Gordon plans to start either Reynolds (0-2) or Bruce Baker (0-1) in the championship game. Harrison, however, is available for six innings and Gordon indicated his ace might see early action.

Harrison enjoys the extra duty. In the finals of the Ralston Tournament, for instance, he pitched 11 innings in the Knights' 2-1 loss to Millard.

He also hurled nine innings in Southeast's 3-2 upset win over Omaha Westside in the semifinals of the district tournament.

"We have more inspiration in tournaments," Harrison claims. "I love it when my teammates look to me for confidence. They keep me going stronger."

In Southeast's lat three tournament games, the Knights have committed only two errors. "Defense is our strong suit," notes Harrison, "but we proved we can score runs, too."

Gordon hopes they keep coming. Seven of the Knights' nine losses this season have been either one or 2-run decisions.

CWS Different Minus USC

Trojans Will Be Missing

The field for the College World Series, starting a week from Friday in Omaha, has been set, but it won't seem the same without the perennial champion Southern California Trojans.

The Trojans' season came to an abrupt halt Saturday at the hands of Cal State at Fullerton, which isn't a household word in college baseball, but it's a team with a 36-12 record that went into regional competition ranked 14th in the Collegiate Baseball News poll.

Coach Rod Dedeaux's team lost Friday night to Fullerton 3-1 and then was beaten by Pepperdine 6-3 on Saturday in the double-elimination tourney.

Southern Cal has been a virtual fixture at Omaha's Rosenblatt Stadium, winning 10 NCAA titles, including the last five in a row.

Oklahoma's Big Eight Conference champions had their backs to the wall after losing 4-3 to Tulsa on Sunday, but the Sooners came back to win a pair of games Monday and earn a repeat trip to the NCAA finals where they'll face Texas on the first night of the tournament.

The eight-team field in the double-elimination event includes No.1-ranked Florida State, with a 49-8 record, against unranked Eastern Michigan; No. 2 rated South Carolina (45-4) against Seton Hall, which was in the finals last year; and No. 5 rated Arizona State (58-11) against Cal-Fullerton.

The Sooners, with all but five of the players that made it to Omaha last season, didn't win a game in the CWS, falling to Miami of Florida 5-1 and Texas 10-4. Coach Enos Semore hopes it will be different this time.

Oklahoma, ranked fourth in the nation, goes into the tourney with a hefty .313 team batting average and seven .300 hitters.

"Most of our guys have been there before," Semore admits. "But that still doesn't change the fact that you have to put it together and play well."

The change was made to permit Dr. Gary Wiren, PGA education director and Omaha native, to conduct a clinic at Hillcrest in connection with the Pro-Am.

More basketball signings in the Big Eight: Oklahoma has inked Kevin Jones, 6-7 forward from Indianapolis. He averaged .598 from the field, scored 472 points, and grabbed 376 rebounds for North Central High School.

Colorado's Sox Walseth has signed a pair of Gary, Ind., cagers who were teammates at Emerson High. They are Earna Mays, 6-8, 205, forward with 17.6, 18.1 and 12.3 scoring averages as a three-year starter, and Emmett Lewis, a 6-3 guard with a 25.2 scoring average as a senior. Mays is said to be a Jim Davis-type center. Davis, of course, still plays in the NBA after becoming CU's all-time leading rebounder.

Report on Houston McTear, the 9-flat sprinter from Florida: He stumbled off the starting line and was beaten at the wire by Reggie Jones of Tennessee in 9.3 at Modesto Saturday. McTear was second in 9.4. "It was the sorriest race I ever ran," McTear said.

Kennedy Rejects ABA Challenge

NEW YORK (UPI) — National Basketball Association commissioner Walter Kennedy Tuesday rejected a challenge from the rival American Basketball Association for a best-of-five, winner-take-all, $1 million series between the leagues' respective champions.

ABA commissioner Dave DeBusschere had issued the challenge on behalf of the ABA and its champion, the Kentucky Colonels, following the Golden State Warriors' victory Sunday over the Washington Bullets for the NBA title.

The ABA's board of trustees had voted to put up half of the $1 million purse with an interested television network supplying the other half.

Morning Briefing

BASEBALL

The Philadelphia Phillies lost the heart of their defense through freak injuries over the weekend when centerfielder Garry Maddox was sidelined with a cracked kneecap and shortstop Larry Bowa suffered a broken thumb.

The Atlanta Braves announced their protest of a game at Montreal, halted by inclement weather on May 15, has been upheld by National League president Chub Feeney.

Feeney ruled the game would be resumed at the point where interrupted and played to completion before the Atlanta at Montreal game July 20.

Phil Seghi, Cleveland Indians vice president and general manager, says he might consider a performance clause for John "Blue Moon" Odom, but he's not going to renegotiate the relief pitcher's contract.

Odom, obtained last week from Oakland for veteran pitchers Jim Perry and Dick Bosman and cash, told Seghi he might jump the club if he doesn't get a pay raise of at least $8,000 to make up for what he considered a sure World Series check from the defending world champion A's.

The Milwaukee Brewers said third baseman Don Money will undergo a hernia operation and will be out of action three to four weeks.

INDIANAPOLIS 500

One official of the Indianapolis 500 has recommended removal of one gas tank from the championship race cars due to the crash which left driver Tom Sneva with burns over 15 per cent of his body.

The fuel which ignited and burned Sneva came from a five-gallon tank that is mounted behind the driver's head.

OTHER SPORTS

The owner of Rancho La Costa filed a $540 million libel suit against Penthouse magazine, saying an article alleging that the community had connections with organized crime figures was untrue.

Rancho La Costa was to have been the site of the Tournament of Champions golf tournament which was cancelled after the article was published. It is not known if the publication led to the cancellation or not.

Coach Bill Van Breda Kolff of the New Orleans Jazz says he will miss Thursday's National Basketball Association college draft if an agreement isn't reached on his new contract.

Chris Evert crushed Rosalba Vido of Italy 6-0, 6-2 and Bjorn Borg topped Belus Prajoux 6-2, 6-4 in the $120,000 Italian Open Tennis Tournament.

Muhammad Ali said he doesn't think he will be able to address Class Day at Harvard University June 11 as originally scheduled because he has to leave for Malaysia and his heavyweight title defense against Joe Bugner.

Jack Nicklaus moved into the lead in the PGA money standings after his tie for third in the Danny Thomas Memphis Classic. Johnny Miller was the leader at $155,233 while Nicklaus now has collected $166,113.

Stuntman Evil Knivel changed his mind Tuesday and said he will jump again. He issued his statement from a London hospital where he is recovering from a crushed vertebra, a broken right hand and a linear fracture of the left pelvis.

University of Texas athletic officials said track Coach Clebourne Price has been publicly reprimanded by the Southwest Conference for giving money to a track team member.

The Narragansett Racing Association announced that it would spearhead a drive to win passage of a local referendum that would allow dog reacing in Pawtucket, R.I.

Champion Guts Ishimatsu of Japan and challenger Tury Pineda of Mexico signed a contract for their World Boxing Council lightweight title bout June 5.

Louisiana State University basektball Coach Dale Brown was arrested for allegedly interfering with a police officer when his assistant coach was stopped for a speeding violation.

The University of Tennessee-Martin, faced with a rapidly increasing budget for athletics, dropped golf and wrestling from its intercollegiate sports program.

The Edmonton Oilers of the World Hockey Association have made a substantial offer to Marcel Dionnne, and the Detroit Red Wings star said he was seriously considering it because it appears he will not be able to achieve his desire to remain in the National Hockey League.

Trainer Frank J. Hendricks and Morris Gardner, a groom, were banned from further racing activity by the Maryland Racing Commission stewards until the full commission can hold a hearing into the discovery of an electric cattle prod in a horse stall at Pimlico.

Anthony "Tony" Despirito, one of the winningest jockeys in horse racing, was found dead in his apartment at East Providence, R.I.

Despirito, 39, became a national sensation in 1952 when, at the age of 16, he shattered the world record of 388 wins in one season, riding to his 390th win at Tropical Park in Miami.

Carew Sparks Twins

by United Press International

Rod Carew, who homered earlier in the game to spark the comeback bid, hit a sacrifice fly in the ninth inning to cap a two-run rally Tuesday night that gave the Minnesota Twins a 6-5 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Eric Soderholm began the ninth with a single against losing reliever John Hiller. Craig Kusick walked and Danny Thompson delivered a single to right which tied the game at 5-5.

Steve Brye pinch hit and dribbled an infield single off the end of his bat to load the bases before Carew delivered his sacrifice fly.

In other American League games, Milwaukee edged Chicago 9-8 and Kansas City shutout New York 3-0. Boston at Texas was rained out.

Bobby Mitchell drove in three runs and Hank Aaron and Charlie Moore two each Tuesday night to lead the Milwaukee Brewers to a victory over the White Sox with a lineup that Manager Del Crandall allowed his starters to choose before the game. The victory ended the Brewers' six-game losing streak.

George Brett and Fran Healy sandwiched singles around Vada Pinson's triple in a two-run sixth inning to give the Royals a victory over the Yankees behind the three-hit pitching of Al Fitzmorris. The triumph was the Royals' sixth in a row.

Ahead 1-0, the Royals tucked away the game in the sixth with three straight hits after two were out. Brett singled up the middle and scored on Pinson's triple. Healy followed with a run scoring single.

In West Coast night action, Cleveland was at California and Baltimore at Oakland.

Rojas Injured Against Yanks

Kansas City (AP) — Cookie Rojas, second baseman for the Kansas City Royals, was injured in Monday night's game with the New York Yankees and carried from the field on a stretcher.

The injury came in the 10th inning when Graig Nettles, Yankee thid baseman, singled and was thrown out trying to stretch it into a double on a fine throw by left fielder Hal McRae.

On the play, Nettles accidentally kneed Rojas in the back of the head as he dived into second base. A spokesman for the Royals said Rojas was unconscious for several moments but came to before he was placed on the stretcher.

Rojas was admitted to a hospital for observation but was released later. His doctor said X rays were negative

Dodgers Blast Mets

By United Press International

Jim Wynn, Dave Lopes and Steve Garvey handled New York pitchers like batting practice hurlers Tuesday night to lead the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 10-4 victory over the New York Mets.

Wynn hit two homers and drove in three runs, Lopes smacked a three-run homer and Garvey batted in two runs to lead a 13-hit attack which enabled Burt Hooton to win his third game of the season.

Wynn hit his first homer of the game in the third inning and his second in the sixth. The two homers gave him 10 for the season and tied him with Johnny Bench of the idle Cincinnati Reds for the National League lead.

The St. Louis Cardinals defeated the San Diego Padres 7-1, the Atlanta Braves beat the Chicago Cubs 7-2, the Pittsburgh Pirates shaded the Houston Astros 6-5, and the San Francisco Giants scored a 1-0 10-inning triumph over the Philadelphia Phillies in other National League games.

Lou Brock hit for the cycle, including a solo homer and a game-winning triple, leading the Cardinals to their win over the Padres. Bob Forsch held the Padres to five hits and contributed a run-scoring single to the Cardinals' four-run sixth inning raising his record to 5-3. Dave Freisleben was the loser.

Marty Perez and Ralph Garr each hit a two-run single in leadiing the Braves to their win over the Cubs. Phil Niekro pitched a seven-hitter for the Braves squaring his record at 4-4.

Bill Robinson singled home Willie Stargell to climax a three-run ninth inning rally which enabled the Pirates to beat the Astros. A single by Stargell and Dave Parker's fielder's choice on which Rob Andrew threw too late to the plate produced the first two runs of the inning. Cesar Cedeno homered

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

San Francisco — Balmy days of May and I've moved, cat and kaboodle, into new digs. From one apartment at Snug Harbor into another. The rent rose like an Otis elevator, but you can't take it with you as the saying goes.

Across the water a black freighter is cutting a bow wave through the Golden Gate toward the Potato Patch. A piece of rough water offshore:

"When the ship goes 'wop'
(With a wiggle between)
"And the steward falls into the soup tureen"

The new apartment has been repainted. Thick new gold carpets run wall-to-wall. There are new lights that can be turned brighter or dimmer. The owner put a judas in the front door. You can peek out and see who's there but they can't see you.

Lazy days of summer. Black cat asleep in the sun. The master of the manse nipping at the cooking sherry. Home is the sailor.

☆ ☆ ☆

For awhile I considered buying one of these condominium jobs. Once I owned a scatter. Well, the banker owned it, but he let me think I was the owner.

Did you ever try to sell a house into which you poured so much toil and tears?

The real estate man who sold it to me sold it for me.

Somehow he had changed hats.

He said: "I don't want to tell you what to do but I'd paint the front at least. First impressions . . ."

☆ ☆ ☆

I said: "Real Estate Man when I bought the house, you said the paint job would last a lifetime."

He said: "How can you measure time? I'd do something about the floors, too."

I painted the house. I had the floors polished until you could look in them to shave.

The real estate man said: "It's not for me to say, but the front yard . . ."

I pulled out the weeds. I planted roses, roses, Cynara.

☆ ☆ ☆

The real estate man said: "The price is not psychologically appealing."

He reduced the price to something that ended in $99.

I went outside and picked up cigarette butts left by people who came around to see the place. Rubbernecks, not buyers.

"I've been giving it a lot of thought," said the real estate man. "Don't hesitate to say so if I'm out of line, but the light fixtures . . ."

I had new light fixtures put in. It looked so good I was ready to buy the place myself.

☆ ☆ ☆

Anyway, I sold the place. Things I never thought about came up. I had to pay closing costs. (What's to close?" I said. "How about some money on the line?")

A termite man came and gave me a paper that said we had no termites.

I had to prove I had a clear title to the place. (I said: "The first man — the one I bought it from — proved a clear title." The real estate man murmured: "It's the custom.")

So when the Snug Harbor people suggested I buy an apartment, I only said: "Are you kidding?" ("They'll never trap the Silver Fox," the children said. "He's gone to earth.")

New Sugar Product Safer For Teeth

(EDITOR'S NOTE: High prices have turned the consumer away from sugar in recent months. But there's a new development that could persuade people to use less sugar, even though it's getting cheaper again. Lisa Higgins is on the staff of Medical World News, a McGraw-Hill publication.)

By LISA HIGGINS

New York — "Look Mom, no cavities," may soon be more than just a promise from a toothpaste manufacturer, thanks to the development of a new sugar product which claims to be 75% safer for teeth. The product, called "safer sugar" looks, tastes, and acts just like ordinary table sugar, except in the development of cavities.

"Safer sugar," according to its inventor Dr. Thomas McNamara, associate professor in the School of Dental Medicine at the State University of New York at Stony Brook, is a combination of table sugar (sucrose) and two other sugars, fructose and maltose. The ratio of the different sugars to one another creates the cavity protective effect, according to Dr. McNamara.

This effect was proven in numerous laboratory tests on hamsters. Dr. McNamara would feed one group a diet containing sucrose, the other group, the "safer sugar" combination. Results of the tests showed the hamsters on the sucrose diet had three to four times as many cavities, or caries as dentists call them.

Once the caries-protective effect was established, "safer sugar" was taste-tested by humans. Participants in the test were unable to identify "safer sugar" from regular sucrose. However, Dr. McNamara was not satisified until he conducted his own test on his employes.

"We made up a jar of "safer sugar" and I took the sugar bowl used for the coffee hour and replaced it with the "safer sugar." Nobody made any comment or noticed any difference in the sugar or the sweetness or anything. That was when I was satisified that we had something that was equal to sugar."

"Safer sugar" as Dr. McNamara proved, could have immediate application in the sugar bowls of America. Any food products which use sucrose such as candy, cake mixes, gum coatings, or package desserts would easily substitute "safer sugar." It could also be used in drug products such as cough syrups, and antacids. The sugar conbination would be priced similarly to sucrose since fructose and maltose and derivatives of certain starches, vegetable and fruit sugars, and corn syrup.

Dr. McNamara received a United States patent for his invention. Since he was working as Associate Director of the Department of Dental Sciences at Warner Lambert Company when he developed his product, he assigned all rights to any commercial development to them.

Tournament Of Champions Will Be Played In 1976

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Tournament Players Division of the PGA Tuesday night rescinded its decision to do away with the Tournament of Champions and announced that the tournament will be played again in 1976.

The policy board of the TPD had announced on May 9 that it was cancelling the 23-year-old tournament which each year brought together all of the winners of regular PGA tour events over the previous 12 months.

That decision, supposedly based on an effort to enhance an expanded World Series of Golf, brought protests from many of the touring pros and forced the matter onto the agenda of a policy board meeting here Tuesday.

TPD Commissioner Deane Beman and the policy board met for eight hours Tuesday and then met with the touring pros to discuss action taken during the day-long meeting.

"The board reconsidered the matter (Tournament of Champions) today and asked me to inform you that the board has rescinded its previous decision and will reschedule the Tournament of Champions in 1976," Beman told the players.

"The board's action was based on the expressed willingness of the sponsor to adjust the format of the Tournament of Champions to accommodate the development of the World Series of Golf."

Beman refused to say what adjustment the sponsors at La Costa, Calif., would be making or to discuss further the board's decision, but he referred to a reported $450 million suit by La Costa against a national magazine as a result of a story alleging that persons with criminal backgrounds were involved in the organiation that puts on the Tournament of Champions.

"The sponsor informed us that they intended to file a lawsuit today against the publication as a result of allegations made in the publication," said Beman. "Our counsel has advised us that in view of the potential litigation, there should be no further discussion of the matter."

Both of Tuesday's meetings were held behind closed doors, the first at an Atlanta hotel and the second at the Atlanta Country Club, scene of the Atlanta Golf Classic which begins Thursday.

Tripleheader Set For Title Bouts

NEW YORK (UPI) — Muhammad Ali will be in Kuala Lumpur, Malayasia, defending his heavyweight title against Joe Bugner, and two other title fights will be staged as preliminaries on a card at Madison Square Garden the night of June 30.

The triple header will have middlewight king Carlos Monzon defending against Tony Licata and lightheavy champion Victor Galindez going against challenger Jorge Ahumada in the Garden ring, followed by the closed circuit showing of Ali Bugner.

The heavyweight match was put together by Don King and Video Techniques, who gave the world Zaire last year, and, as in the African confrontation of Ali and George Foreman, a national government is deeply involved in the financing.

Generally accepted figures have Ali getting $2.2 million, with his British foe slated for $500,000. Ali's price keeps going up. He got $1 million for his match with Chuck Wepner, $1.2 for punching out Ron Lyle last month.

The patron for the fight is Tun Haji Razak bin Hussein, the prime minister of Malaysia, while the on-scene promotion will be under the direction of Tinju Dunia Senderian Berhad (World Boxing Limited), whose chairman is Datuk Anu Manso Basir.

Bugner, now 25, has had the distinction of going the distance, over 12 rounds, with both Ali and Joe Frazier. He has an eight fight streak going, the last five by knockouts, and now shows a 51-6-1 record. He has knocked out 31.

Ali, who has lost but twice in 49 fights, has notched 34 knockouts.

For this one, Ali has proclaimed he will introduce another "new style" in boxing. From the butterfly, to the rope-a-dope, to the mirage, Ali says he will now trot out the "Russian tank" to demolish the handsome Hungarian-born Englishman.

But Ali admitted Tuesday that "I can't get mad at Bugner. He's followed me since he was a kid. We're just like relatives...but I'm gonna put a whippin' on you (pointing to Joe) when the bell rings."

Monzon, possessor of an unbeaten string of 78 fights, has won 85 of 98 bouts. Now 33, the Argentine will be making his first American appearance. He has not lost a bout since October of 1964.

Licata, 23-years-old, is half Chinese. The New Orleans resident has lost but once in 50 fights, to Ramon Mendez this spring in Italy, but he reversed that decision in New Orleans the next month.

Galindez and Ahumada are both from Argentina, where they met four times several years ago. Galindez won three of the four, but Ahumada then came to the United States and built up a string of victories. He appeared to have defeated then titleholder Bob Foster in Alburqueque, N.M., but the fight was ruled a draw. Ahumada then lost to Britain's John Conteh in a match for the World Boxing Council crown.

Galindez is recognized as champion by the WBA.

Americans Emerge As China Heroes

PEKING (AP) — The Chinese love acrobatics and admire endurance, so Terry Porter, Al Lanier and Dick Buerkle emerged as the crowd favorites Tuesday in the rain-marred track and field meet in the National Peking Workers Stadium.

The Americans treated the national team of the People's Republic of China with the same condescension accorded provincial teams in Canton and Shanghai, winning 16 of the 17 opening day events, but threw in some histrionics.

Porter, a lean Texan with mustache and long hair who looks as if he might have jumped right out of a TV western, delighted the 55,000 spectators by soaring 17 feet, ¾-inch in the pole vault.

Clowning and carrying on a sign language repartee with cheering fans, he tried to make the 17-6 mark after erasing all competition, but couldn't clear it.

"Ah," moaned thousands in unison.

"I am no good jumping alone—I need competition," the Wharton, Tex., vaulter said. Upset by the rain, Roland Carter of Houston went out at under 16 feet.

Lanier, from Cincinnati, drew gasps and then ringing applause when he executed a somersault in the long jump. However, officials requested that it not be counted. It is against international rules, anyway.

The crowd had no vote in the matter, so the long jump went to Tommy Haynes of Nashville, Tenn., with a leap of 25-11½—his third victory of the tour.

Buerkle, a Rochester, N.Y., schoolteacher whose head is shaved bald, lapped four of his Chinese rivals—one of them twice—in winning the 10,000 meters in 28 minutes, 41.4 seconds.

The frail-looking Buerkle drew loud cheers every time he passed a Chinese runner. There never was a boo. Buerkle thus proved himself the versatile iron man of the trip. He won the 5,000 at the trip. He won the 5,000 at Canton and the 1,500 at Shanghai.

Two of China's most famous personalities—Chuang Tse-Tung, the former table tennis champion who is minister of sport, and Yiao Wei-Lien, vice chairman of the standing committee of the people's congress—sat in the official box with George Bush, the American liaison officer in Peking.

Rain delayed the start of the meet for 45 minutes but the synthetic track, copied by the Chinese from scraps of American artificial surfaces, stood up well.

"The track was great," said Bob Giegengack of Yale University, the American coach. "The Chinese need considerable work but they show a lot of promise."

With red flags fluttering from the top of the stadium and nationalistic slogans discreetly covered with red swaths of cloth, the host team produced its only victory in the women's discus. Kao Wu-Kai, the Asian champion, won it with a throw of 166-7. The only American, Denise Wood of Haledon, N.J., was fourth at 146-4.

Fred Newhouse of Baton Rouge, La., won his third straight 400-meter race in 45.9 seconds. Don Merrick of Deland, Fla., winner of the 200 in the previous two meets, took the 100 meters in 10.5. Francie Larrieu of Los Angeles was the women's star, winning her third 1,500 meters in 4:11.5, only 1.1 seconds off her American outdoor record.

Other winners were:

Men—Mike Flack, Fargo, N.D., 1,500 meters, 3:48.2; Terry Albritton, Newport Beach, Calif., shot put, 65-7; Tommy Haynes, Nashville, Tenn., long jump 25-11½; Jerry Wilson, Los Angeles, 110-meter hurdles, 13.9; Dick Drescher, Greenbelt, Md., discus, 201-11; 400-meter relay, U.S., 40.5.

Women-Patty Van Wolvelaere, Carlsbad, Calif., 100-meter hurdles, 14.1; Theresa Montgomery, Baton Rouge, La., 100 meters, 11.9; Robin Campbell, Washington D.C., 400 meters, 53.3; Jane Frederick, Goleta, Calif., high jump, 5-9; 400-meter relay, U.S., 45.8.

Sonny Jurgensen

Jurgensen Rejects WFL Offer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sonny Jurgensen rejected a lucrative offer to sign with the World Football League Tuesday and said the retirement forced on him by the Washington Redskins was final.

In a speech to the National Press Club, the 40-year-old quarterback announced he was turning down a bid by the WFL's Philadelphia Bell for his services. Of his future plans, which include possible network television broadcasting, Jurgensen said: "My only definite decision is that I won't play with the WFL this season. I decided, in the best interests of everyone, not to accept."

Jurgensen was the second superstar NFL quarterback to refuse an offer from the young WFL, which experienced serious financial problems in its first year of operation last season.

Joe Namath, who played out his option with the New York Jets, announced last week he was turning thumbs down on a multi-million dollar offer from the WFL's Chicago Wind.

Jurgensen, a veteran of 18 years who led all active passers before Redskin coach George Allen dropped him, acknowledged that the head of the Philadelphia franchise, John Bosacca, was sweetening the offer in the hope of changing his mind.

Jurgensen said that after Bosacca learned that he was going to announce his rejection of the WFL offer at the National Press Club appearance, the Philadelphian made an emergency phone call to an intermediary promising to triple the original offer.

But in his luncheon speech the former Redskin passer said: "Mr. Bosacco made a fair offer and it was very tempting. But I'm retiring here in the best place I know. I understand he's saying that now that Namath has turned them down, the league has more money to offer." "

Bosacco expressed disappointment in Jurgensen's decision but added: "As far as the Bell is concerned, although we may continue to attempt to change Sonny's mind, we shall nonetheless proceed with alternative plans."

Siderowf, Pate Start Campaign

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — U.S. amateur champion Jerry Pate and veteran golfer Dick Siderowf were named Tuesday to launch the 25th Walker Cup campaign against Britain over the famed St. Andrews links.

Pate, 21, a student from Pensacola, Fla., and Siderowf, 37-year-old stockbroker from Westport, Conn., drve off in the vital opening foursomes Wednesday against Britain's Peter Hedges and Richard Eyels.

After a week of practice over the par 72, 6,914 yards seaside layout, the captains of both teams handed in their selections to The Royal and Ancient Club.

"It was difficult to choose from a team with such a great deal of depth," said U.S. Captain Edgar R. Updegraff.

"Personalities are very important in the foursomes."

The U.S. team has been quoted as virtually unbeatable favorites at odds of 1-4 by a local bookie. But Updegraff called the odds "ridiculous."

"We start all square," he said, and reminded newsmen the last time the Walker Cup was played on this course in 1972, the U.S. team slumped to a shocking defeat.

After he heard the British selection, Updegraff said it was "a very interesting draw."

The United States has a whopping 21-2 advantage over Britain in the Walker Cup series, with one drawn match. But the Americans have been taking no chances this time with extensive practice and team discussions on the layout of the always tricky course.

A nagging worry during practice for the U.S. team was a strained thumb injury for Vinny Giles of Richmond, Va.

"This is a typical golfing injury," said Updegraff, of Tucson, Ariz. "It isn't bothering Vinny today and we have no problems.

"I told the team not to work too hard today. They are ready, and I just want them to relax."

Area Dogs Place High

Six Lincoln area dogs placed well up in obedience trials over the weekend, led by Schuyler's Andrea Vrana and her cardigan Welsh Corgi's.

. Vrana's "Ch. Lucky Lane's M'Lady Frolic, C.D.," went best of breed in both the Nebraska Kennel Club Show at Omaha and the Sioux Valley Kennel Club Show in Sioux City, Ia. At the Omaha show, the dog also finished its companion dog excellent degree with a 187-point finish in Open A. It went 193 for third in Open A at the Sioux City show.

Other Omaha finishers included:

"Georgean Court Ashley," cardigan Welsh corgi, owned by Anrea Vrana, finished C.D. with 187 points in Novice B.

"Knight's Kin Klancy," St. Bernard, owned by Lincoln's Robert Knight, third with 193 points in Open B.

"Knight's Wilhelm Von Kris," minature schnauzer, owned by Lincoln's Kathy Knight, third with 189 points in Open A, won its first open leg.

"Little Bit Crickett," Yorkshire terrier, owned by Lincoln's Judy Harvey, fourth with 195 points to finish C.D. in Novice A.

Dog Wins Honor

Sioux Falls, S.D. — Holly Lane's Wild Flower, a boxer owned by Doris Stanley of Lincoln, won winner's bitch and best of opposite class here Monday at a kennel show.

Mussman Wins Shot Put

CLEVELAND (AP) — Mark Lineweaver of Brockport, Pa., State took the early lead in the decathlon as the NCAA Division III Track and Field Championships got underway at Baldwin-Wallace College Tuesday.

Lineweaver, last year's third-place decathlon finisher, amassed 3,686 points after five events. Tony Hale, Fisk University, had 3,557 points and Mike Hout, Capital University, had 3,375 points.

The Brockport athlete won the 100-meter dash in 10.6 and the 400-meter dash in 49.8.

Bob Meyers of Chico State had a long jump of 21 feet, 8¼ inches to take that event. The shot put went to Dan Mussman of Doane, Neb., College who hurled for 42 feet 1¼ inches. Richard Baker of Bates took the high jump by leaping 6-4.

Motocross Meet Set

Team Can-Am, defending the American Motorcycle Association 250cc motocross crown won last year by Can-Am rider Gary Jones, carries its title defense into the Omaha-Council Bluffs area June 1 when round 4 in AMA's five-event 1975 championship series is held at Herman, Neb.

Jimmy Ellis, 1975 Superseries of Motocross Champion, and Mike Runyard, second-ranked AMA open-class rider in 1973, have taken over Can-Am's title defense for the disabled Jones, who is recuperating from an injury suffered at Daytona Beach March 8.

Last year, Jones rode his Can-Am 250cc motorcycle to his third consecutive AMA crown, as Can-Am swept the 1974 250 series with 1-2-3 finishes. Ellis scored a sensational comeback from an early-season injury last year to grab third place in the AMA series.

Flyers Defend Title

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — As if it was really necessary, Bernie Parent and the Philadelphia Flyers proved that last year wasn't a fluke.

"When we won last year we were in the clouds," Parent said Tuesday night after his 2-0 shutout over the Buffalo Sabres enabled the Flyers to complete a successful defense of their Stanley Cup, four games to two.

"This year it was different because we knew what we were doing and where we were going. We proved to everyone that last year was no fluke."

Just as he did here against the Sabres, Parent also came through with a clutch shutout in last year's finale against Boston, and for the second year in a row he was voted the Conn Smythe Trophy as the most valuable player in the playoffs.

"I don't even think about Conn Smythe," said Parent. "It's just nice for the team to win the Stanley Cup."

Except for a sip from the Stanley Cup itself, Parent forewent the pleasure of drinking the traditional glass of champagne because "it makes me sick and I want to enjoy this."

For all of Parent's outstanding work, it took a goal by a man who didn't even think he would dress for the game to give Philadelphia the winning goal. Bob Kelly scored it after just 11 seconds of the third period and said later that he had worried Tuesday morning that Coach Fred Shero wouldn't make him eligible for the contest.

"That's only one play," Kelly said of his goal. "It took a lot of games I didn't participate in to get here. "When you score a goal in an 8-0 romp, it's nothing, but to score the goal that wins the Stanley Cup— that's something."

Kelly scored the goal on sheer tenacity after being checked solidly by brawny defenseman Jerry Korab against the boards. The speedy Kelly eluded the grip of the much larger man and came out to the right of goaltender Roger Crozier. As Crozier stepped to the side to face him, Kelly tucked the puck into the far corner for only his third goal of the playoffs.

"The puck was there when I turned, so I tried to stuff it in the corner," Kelly added. "It wasn't planned, I don't score enough goals to plan them."

Bill Clement sealed the victory with 2:47 to go when he took a centering pass from Orest Kindrachuk in the slot and sailed in alone, putting the puck between Crozier's pads. It was his first goal of the playoffs.

Buffalo coach Floyd Smith, after congratulating the winning Flyers in their dressing room, said, "we're just not quite good enough yet. Maybe the next time around."

This fourth shutout of the playoffs didn't come easy for Parent, who was called on to make 32 saves.

The balding Crozier, who turned in a 17-2-1 record during the regular season but was making only his third start in two months, did an outstanding job as the replacement for Gerry Desjardins, stopping all but two of the 31 shots sent at him.

The Sabres, during the first period, built an impenetrable wall around Crozier with their tenacious checking. Philadelphia was able to challenge him with more success in the second period but, on the best chances, Bill Barber hit a post and Reggie Leach lost the post while cruising in alone on Crozier.

Late in the second period, on a Philadelphia power play, Orest Kindrachuk had an excellent opportunity directly in front of Crozier but he couldn't control the rebound of a point shot by Barber.

For Buffalo, which made it to the championship round in only its fifth year in the league, its glaring weakness once again came on the power play. The Sabres were foiled on all six occasions when they enjoyed a man advantage, and for the series, they managed to convert only 3 of 31 opportunities.

The victory was worth $15,000 to each member of the winning Flyers. The Sabres received $10,000 apiece.

Paul VI Earns Class B Title

By CHUCK SINCLAIR
Prep Sports Writer

Allen High School's Eagles could have been nicknamed the Giant-Killers after a 6-5 conquest of Lincoln Pius X in the opening round of the Class B state high school baseball tourney at the Nebraska diamond Tuesday morning.

But any visions the Eagles had of continuing to slay giants and carting home a state championship trophy to a school with only 69 male students, were shattered by mighty Omaha Paul VI in the finals, 9-2, giving the Hornets their first state championship.

Omaha Paul VI had eliminated 11-1 Wayne in their opening-round game by a 4-0 count as Dan Pawloski threw a two-hitter going the distance.

Pawloski was aided in his early Tuesday effort by catcher Rick Merrill's two-run homer and a double.

In the Pius X-Allen contest, the Thunderbolts were struck by lightening, or better yet, sun as they entered the fifth inning with a comfortable 3-0 lead.

Allen's second batter, Steve Osbahr, hit a high fly to leftfielder John Keady who lost the ball in the sun. After regaining sight of the ball, Keady was out of position and unable to make the play.

Osbahr was credited with a double and knocked in the first of six runs to cross the plate for the Eagles in that inning.

A Pius X rally fell one run short sending Allen into the Class B finals against Paul VI.

Allen drew first blood in the title contest when pitcher Loren Book scored on an error by Paul Vi pitcher Gary Pechar.

Book himself had allowed just one hit through the first two innings when the Eagles' bubble burst.

Left fielder Jeff Pechar reached first on an error in the top of the third and advanced to second on a sacrifice.

Two straight doubles, one by Tom Neumann and the other by Merrill scored two runs

After the dust had cleared, Omaha Paul VI held a 4-1 lead and kept Allen from further scoring until the bottom of the sixth when Osbahr scored on a balk by Pechar

Pechar was going the distance while the Hornets forced Allen coach Bob Moore to use three different pitchers, Book, Jeff Creamer and Paul Snyder.

Subbing for Book in the third, Creamer had the Omaha club shackled for the next three innings.

But an outburst like the earlier one put the game away when Paul VI pushed five runs across the plate in the top of the last inning.

Pechar finished the game with 10 strikeouts giving up eight hits.

But it was Merrill who drew the bulk of the praise from coach Mike Culver. The stocky catcher extended a hitting streak started during districts to 11 hits in 11 tries before fouling out to Creamer in the top of the fifth.

Merrill hit his second double of the game and fourth extra-base hit of the day in the last inning scoring spree.

"Rick is one heck of a competitor," Culver said of the Kearney State-bound Merrill. "He's got to be the best high school catcher around."

Culver pointed out Merrill was batting .412 going into the state tourney games.

"But we don't put much emphasis on the statistics," he said. "It's not who's doing the hitting or who's striking out, but the result of the win lost column."

If youth is any indication of how that win-loss column will stand next year, Paul VI had but two seniors playing on the 1975 state champions.

Tough Job

Omaha — John Maluvius talks from experience when he describes the pitfalls of assigning weights to horses running in handicap events.

"Anywhere you go, even in Chicago or New York, the handicappers assigning weights are concerned with the stars," said Ak-Sar-Ben's racing secretary and handicapper who spent 27 years in a similar position at Hollywood Park near Los Angeles before coming here.

"Take the Carter Handicap in New York, where Forego was assigned 134 pounds. The idea behind the weights is to even up the race. But really, you start with a reasonable weight for the top horse and then worry about the top ten," he added.

Maluvius explained that he basically concentrates on the higher-weighted horses and the middle-weighted horses.

"You're not worried about the 105 or 106 (pound horses)," he said. "They shouldn't generally be in the race anyway."

"Take our first Saturday race (the $25,000-added Beef State Handicap when the top-weighted horse, Prince Astro with 124 pounds, drew off to a 4½-length verdict), if you really wanted to make it equal, I probably would have had to assign Prince Astro 132-135 pounds," Maluvius said. "But then he probably wouldn't have run and that would have ruined the whole thing."

One of the fallacies of racing is that weight makes all the horses equal. It really doesn't. Any handicapping book will explain that the top-weighted horses win considerably more handicaps than the lower weight handicaps.

Ak-Sar-Ben Follows Trend

A check of the handicaps run at Ak-Sar-Ben this season indicates that Maluvius has done an excellent job of assigning weights.

In the first two races, the top-weighted horse won. Prince Astro took the Beef State and Bold Trap, with 120 pounds, captured the Ambassador's Handicap. In the third handicap, the Ak-Sar-Ben Handicap on May 17, the top-weighted horse I'll Swanee, with 118 pounds, finished second.

The last two handicaps have not run true to Maluvius' weights. The two top-weighted horses in His Majesty's Council Handicap finished way back — Bold Trap with 125 pounds and Pappa Hans with 119 pounds. In Monday's King's Handicap, the top-weight, Brush Cutter, with 117 pounds finished third to Rooter and Pondelli.

"After the races, the next time those horses run together, you have to adjust the weights. You adjust some up and others down," Maluvius said. "It's tough to assign weights to horses. It usually takes a race or two to get a line on the horses. It's tough when, like here, the only places the horses don't come from is Hawaii."

Maluvius, who once worked as assistant racing secretary at Santa Antia Park near Los Angeles, explained that at the western track, the nominations for some races closed on Dec. 1 and the weights would come out on Dec. 20 before the meet even opened after Christmas Day.

"When that happened, you had to do a lot of research to get weights that are accurate," he said.

In Maluvius' case, with his proven track record, it generally pays to follow the horse he assigned top-weight. In the five Ak-Sar-Ben handicaps, he has two wins, a second and a third and that's pretty good handicapping.

LSE Stuns Omaha Benson, 8-1

Ralston — Lincoln Southeast advanced Operation Sneakup another step here Tuesday night with an 8-1 upset win over Omaha Benson in the first round of the Class A State Baseball Tournament at Orval Smith Field.

The Knights, still below .500 with an 8-9 record, meet Omaha Burke for the State Class A baseball championship here at 7.30 p.m. Wednesday. Burke defeated Ralston, 6-5, in Tuesday's other semifinal game to advance opposite Southeasst.

"This ought to open up a few eyes," Southeast pitcher and co-captain Mark Harrison said after he checked Benson to only two hits in six innings. Junior teammate Rush Reynolds kept the Bunnies' bats equally quiet in the seventh to preserve the victory.

"We may have come into this tournament with the worst record," concedes Harrison, "but we're a whole new team, sneaking up on people. There was no doubt about this game. We were just too up to lose it. We thrive on tournaments. We intend to win this thing."

Although veteran Southeast coach Charlie Gordon indicated he probably wouldn't start Harrison on the mound in the title game, the senior right-hander said he'd like that chance.

"When he took me out after the sixth, he reminded me I had six innings left to pitch and I might get to start again," Harrison related. "I want to go again. I'm not the kind who needs much rest."

Harrison, credited with six of Southeast's eight wins this spring, "really mixed up his pitches," according to Gordon. "He's got a sneaky fast ball. He makes everything work for him. He's one of the best."

Although offense has been the Knights' weakness all season — they still don't have a hitter batting above .300 — they maximized most opportunities against Benson, which finished the season 11-4.

Senior shortstop Mark Haas drilled a 340-foot double to left center field to drive home Craig Leslie in the first inning. Haas then scored himself when Greg Smith walked with the bases loaded.

Benson countered with its only run in the second inning to reduce the deficit to 2-1, but the Knights paraded 11 batters to the plate in a 6-run third-inning outburst to assume complete control.

Mark Haas, brother Stan Haas (a sophomore) and Dan Heskett collected singles for the only hits in the uprising. The Knights parlayed three walks and two Benson errors to account for most of the production.

Benson starting pitcher Wayne Ruff lasted only 2 1/3 innings. Reliever Bob Woodworth also experienced control problems against the small Knights' lineup.

Dave Lewis, Benson's coach, never used ace pitcher Don Byers. He admitted he was keeping him off the mound for possible use in Wednesday's championship game.

"I think if you're good enough to make the finals, you should save your best for the best," Lewis said. "We knew Harrison was a good competitor and we respected him. Of course, we thought we could get the job done. But we played poorly."

Gordon plans to start either Reynolds (0-2) or Bruce Baker (0-1) in the championship game. Harrison, however, is available for six innings and Gordon indicated his ace might see early action.

Harrison enjoys the extra duty. In the finals of the Ralston Tournament, for instance, he pitched 11 innings in the Knights' 2-1 loss to Millard.

He also hurled nine innings in Southeast's 3-2 upset win over Omaha Westside in the semifinals of the district tournament.

"We have more inspiration in tournaments," Harrison claims. "I love it when my teammates look to me for confidence. They keep me going stronger."

In Southeast's lat three tournament games, the Knights have committed only two errors. "Defense is our strong suit," notes Harrison, "but we proved we can score runs, too."

Gordon hopes they keep coming Seven of the Knights' nine losses this season have been either one or 2-run decisions.

Kennedy Rejects ABA Challenge

NEW YORK (UPI) — National Basketball Association commissioner Walter Kennedy Tuesday rejected a challenge from the rival American Basketball Association for a best-of-five, winner-take-all, $1 million series between the leagues' respective champions.

ABA commissioner Dave DeBusschere had issued the challenge on behalf of the ABA and its champion, the Kentucky Colonels, following the Golden State Warriors' victory Sunday over the Washington Bullets for the NBA title.

The ABA's board of trustees had voted to put up half of the $1 million purse with an interested television network supplying the other half.

Trojans Will Be Missing

The field for the College World Series, starting a week from Friday in Omaha, has been set, but it won't seem the same without the perennial champion Southern California Trojans.

The Trojans' season came to an abrupt halt Saturday at the hands of Cal State at Fullerton, which isn't a household word in college baseball, but it's a team with a 36-12 record that went into regional competition ranked 14th in the Collegiate Baseball News poll.

Coach Rod Dedeaux's team lost Friday night to Fullerton 3-1 and then was beaten by Pepperdine 6-3 on Saturday in the double-elimination tourney.

Southern Cal has been a virtual fixture at Omaha's Rosenblatt Stadium, winning 10 NCAA titles, including the last five in a row.

Oklahoma's Big Eight Conference champions had their backs to the wall after losing 4-3 to Tulsa on Sunday, but the Sooners came back to win a pair of games Monday and earn a repeat trip to the NCAA finals where they'll face Texas on the first night of the tournament.

The eight-team field in the double-elimination event includes No.1-ranked Florida State, with a 49-8 record, against unranked Eastern Michigan; No. 2 rated South Carolina (45-4) against Seton Hall, which was in the finals last year; and No. 5 rated Arizona State (58-11) against Cal-Fullerton.

The Sooners, with all but five of the players that made it to Omaha last season, didn't win a game in the CWS, falling to Miami of Florida 5-1 and Texas 10-4. Coach Enos Semore hopes it will be different this time.

Oklahoma, ranked fourth in the nation, goes into the tourney with a hefty .313 team batting average and seven .300 hitters.

"Most of our guys have been there before," Semore admits. "But that still doesn't change the fact that you have to put it together and play well."

We are planning on going to Mexico this summer for our vacation and are wondering if we need a passport. We might travel to some other Latin American countries also. Can ACTION LINE find out if we need one, and if so where it might be obtained?

—C. L., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: the Federal Information Center in Omaha says there is a passport office at the Lincoln Post Office. The phone number is 471-5123. However, if you go only to Mexico you don't need a passport. A tourist card can be obtained through your travel agency, by writing a Mexican consulate or when you cross the border. A voter's certificate or a birth certificate to prove your citizenship is needed. If you plan to travel to any of the other Latin American countries a full-fledged passport is needed.

However, he says the necessary information for your purposes can be obtained by writing to the North Central Wool Marketer's Corporation. The address is 101 27th Avenue Southeast, Minneapolis, Minn., 55414.

I'm an ardent cyclist, but can still understand the problems drivers have in always seeing a bicycle in heavy traffic. What is the best procedure when approaching an intersection?

L. D., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: There is only one precedure for a bicyclist to use when approaching an intersection, according to Inspector Dean Leitner. He says the cyclist should pull into the lane he intends to use prior to entering the intersection. It's generally accepted for cicyclists to ride next to the right hand curb. However, if you want to turn left at an intersection, you should be in the left turn lane and the same philosophy applies to going straight or turning right.

ACTION LINE: Albert Larsen, owner of Iowa Parts Supply in Des Moines, says he can't understand what the problem's been. However, he doesn't have any record of your order either. Larsen is backordering the part from Roper's and will send you a post card when it arrives with the cost and postage. He says he's sorry for the delay.

18% Fewer Graduates Being Hired This Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eighteen per cent fewer new college graduates are being hired this year, and the job market for them may not pick up until next spring, according to a survey released Tuesday.

The College Placement Council said responses from 709 employers showed that the decline was sharpest for engineers and PhDs.

Opportunities remain strong for top students, minorities and women in high-demand fields, however, the report said.

The decrease was the first over-all general decline in hiring of college graduates since 1969-70 and 1970-71, the council said, although the 18% drop was ot as severe as the 27% plummet during the 1970-71 season.

The council, representing college placement directors and career planners across the country, surveyed business, industry, government and nonprofit and educational institutions, excluding teaching positions.

The only employers hiring more than last year were petroleum, up 4%; local and state governments, up 18%; and nonprofit and educational institutions, up 7%. The council said the volume of hires in those categories was low, however.

Three usually stable employers — public accounting, metals and chemical-drugs — dropped 5%, 21% and 24% respectively, the report said.

New hiring of college grads in the building materials-construction, automotive and mechanical equipment industries dropped about 60%, it said.

New openings for engineers fell 20%, after three successive years of increases, although doctoral engineers experienced a decline of half that rate.

By degree levels, PhDs fell 20% in new hirings, bachelor's graduates declines 18% and master's candidates by 17%.

Openings for liberal arts candidates, including the humanities and social sciences, fell 9% on top of a 45% drop in 1970-71 and virtually no improvement in intervening years.

Business, normally a heavily recruited category, declined 28% at the bachelor's level and new jobs for those holding master's degrees in business administration fell 11%.

Carew Sparks Twins

by United Press International

Rod Carew, who homered earlier in the game to spark the comeback bid, hit a sacrifice fly in the ninth inning to cap a two-run rally Tuesday night that gave the Minnesota Twins a 6-5 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Eric Soderholm began the ninth with a single against losing reliever John Hiller. Craig Kusick walked and Danny Thompson delivered a single to right which tied the game at 5-5.

Steve Brye pinch hit and dribbled an infield single off the end of his bat to load the bases before Carew delivered his sacrifice fly.

In other American League games, Milwaukee edged Chicago 9-8 and Kansas City shutout New York 3-0. Boston at Texas was rained out.

Bobby Mitchell drove in three runs and Hank Aaron and Charlie Moore two each Tuesday night to lead the Milwaukee Brewers to a victory over the White Sox with a lineup that Manager Del Crandall allowed his starters to choose before the game. The victory ended the Brewers' six-game losing streak.

George Brett and Fran Healy sandwiched singles around Vada Pinson's triple in a two-run sixth inning to give the Royals a victory over the Yankees behind the three-hit pitching of Al Fitzmorris. The triumph was the Royals' sixth in a row.

Ahead 1-0, the Royals tucked away the game in the sixth with three straight hits after two were out. Brett singled up the middle and scored on Pinson's triple. Healy followed with a run scoring single.

In West Coast night action, Cleveland was at California and Baltimore at Oakland.

Deputies Seek 2 Men In Rape Of 17-Year-Old

Lancaster County sheriff's deputies Tuesday were searching for two men after a 17-year-old girl was taken from the Regional Center and raped.

Sheriff's reports said the two men took the girl in their automobile Sunday afternoon to a dead-end road near Pawnee Lake.

One of them raped her there, the girl told deputies, then they returned her to Lincoln. She said she walked around the city before a friend brought her to authorities early Monday morning.

Deputies said one man was bald, had a harelip and wore a blue shirt and blue jeans. The other had black hair, dark complexion and was about 50 years old.

Chile Replaces Fragile Escudo

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Chile's military government, beset by world record inflation and 10 devaluations this year of the fragile escudo, announced a new currency Tuesday.

Pablo Barahona, president of Chile's central bank, declared that as of Sept. 1, the country will convert to the peso.

Exactly 15 years ago, the country went from the peso to the escudo after constant devaluations sank the Chilean money to a level of 1,000 pesos to the U.S. dollar.

Full, Conditional Pardons Given Evaders, Deserters

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford has granted outright pardons or conditional pardons to 80 more draft evaders and deserters in line with recommendations by his clemency board, a White House spokesman announced Tuesday.

It was Ford's first clemency action since the first 65 pardons were signed last Dec. 31.

The White House did not say how many of the 80 were given outright pardons and how many were assigned periods of public service work. In the first group, 20 were given outright pardons and the others were conditioned on up to one year of public service.

So far, the White House said the board headed by former New York Sen. Charles E. Goodell has sent to Ford recommendations on only 900 of the 19,642 who signed up.

However, the board action has picked up with more recommendations sent to the White House this month. The board faces a September deadline.

The board deals with only men who have been convicted of draft evasion or punished for desertion. The 19,642 were among 100,000 eligible. The deadline for signing was April 1.

The military processed 5,005 unpunished deserters of 10,000 eligibles and the Justice Department processed 697 of 4,400 unconvicted draft evaders.

Burglars Hit Sen. Kennedy's Summer Home

Hyannis, Mass. (UPI) — Two separate break-ins at the Squaw Island summer home of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., are being investigated, Barnstable police disclosed Tuesday.

The latest burglary, in which a $600 color television was taken, was discovered by a caretaker when he went to the home to make a regular check. He said he found sliding glass doors facing the ocean open and upon checking the home found the television set gone.

The caretaker also told police that when he checked the house in April he found other items missing.

Tournament Of Champions Will Be Played In 1976

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Tournament Players Division of the PGA Tuesday night rescinded its decision to do away with the Tournament of Champions and announced that the tournament will be played again in 1976.

The policy board of the TPD had announced on May 9 that it was cancelling the 23-year-old tournament which each year brought together all of the winners of regular PGA tour events over the previous 12 months.

That decision, supposedly based on an effort to enhance an expanded World Series of Golf, brought protests from many of the touring pros and forced the matter onto the agenda of a policy board meeting here Tuesday.

TPD Commissioner Deane Beman and the policy board met for eight hours Tuesday and then met with the touring pros to discuss action taken during the day-long meeting.

"The board reconsidered the matter (Tournament of Champions) today and asked me to inform you that the board has rescinded its previous decision and will reschedule the Tournament of Champions in 1976," Beman told the players.

"The board's action was based on the expressed willingness of the sponsor to adjust the format of the Tournament of Champions to accommodate the development of the World Series of Golf."

Beman refused to say what adjustment the sponsors at La Costa, Calif., would be making or to discuss further the board's decision, but he referred to a reported $450 million suit by La Costa against a national magazine as a result of a story alleging that persons with criminal backgrounds were involved in the organiation that puts on the Tournament of Champions.

"The sponsor informed us that they intended to file a lawsuit today against the publication as a result of allegations made in the publication," said Beman. "Our counsel has advised us that in view of the potential litigation, there should be no further discussion of the matter."

Both of Tuesday's meetings were held behind closed doors, the first at an Atlanta hotel and the second at the Atlanta Country Club, scene of the Atlanta Golf Classic which begins Thursday.

Tripleheader Set For Title Bouts

NEW YORK (UPI) — Muhammad Ali will be in Kuala Lumpur, Malayasia, defending his heavyweight title against Joe Bugner, and two other title fights will be staged as preliminaries on a card at Madison Square Garden the night of June 30.

The triple header will have middlewight king Carlos Monzon defending against Tony Licata and lightheavy champion Victor Galindez going against challenger Jorge Ahumada in the Garden ring, followed by the closed circuit showing of Ali Bugner.

The heavyweight match was put together by Don King and Video Techniques, who gave the world Zaire last year, and, as in the African confrontation of Ali and George Foreman, a national government is deeply involved in the financing.

Generally accepted figures have Ali getting $2.2 million, with his British foe slated for $500,000. Ali's price keeps going up. He got $1 million for his match with Chuck Wepner, $1.2 for punching out Ron Lyle last month.

The patron for the fight is Tun Haji Razak bin Hussein, the prime minister of Malaysia, while the on-scene promotion will be under the direction of Tinju Dunia Senderian Berhad (World Boxing Limited), whose chairman is Datuk Anu Manso Basir.

Bugner, now 25, has had the distinction of going the distance, over 12 rounds, with both Ali and Joe Frazier. He has an eight fight streak going, the last five by knockouts, and now shows a 51-6-1 record. He has knocked out 31.

Ali, who has lost but twice in 49 fights, has notched 34 knockouts.

For this one, Ali has proclaimed he will introduce another "new style" in boxing. From the butterfly, to the rope-a-dope, to the mirage, Ali says he will now trot out the "Russian tank" to demolish the handsome Hungarian-born Englishman.

But Ali admitted Tuesday that "I can't get mad at Bugner. He's followed me since he was a kid. We're just like relatives...but I'm gonna put a whippin' on you (pointing to Joe) when the bell rings."

Monzon, possessor of an unbeaten string of 78 fights, has won 85 of 98 bouts. Now 33, the Argentine will be making his first American appearance. He has not lost a bout since October of 1964.

Licata, 23-years-old, is half Chinese. The New Orleans resident has lost but once in 50 fights, to Ramon Mendez this spring in Italy, but he reversed that decision in New Orleans the next month.

Galindez and Ahumada are both from Argentina, where they met four times several years ago. Galindez won three of the four, but Ahumada then came to the United States and built up a string of victories. He appeared to have defeated then title-holder Bob Foster in Alburqueque, N.M., but the fight was ruled a draw. Ahumada then lost to Britain's John Conteh in a match for the World Boxing Council crown.

Galindez is recognized as champion by the WBA.

Americans Emerge As China Heroes

PEKING (AP) — The Chinese love acrobatics and admire endurance, so Terry Porter, Al Lanier and Dick Buerkle emerged as the crowd favorites Tuesday in the rain-marred track and field meet in the National Peking Workers Stadium.

The Americans treated the national team of the People's Republic of China with the same condescension accorded provincial teams in Canton and Shanghai, winning 16 of the 17 opening day events, but threw in some histrionics.

Porter, a lean Texan with mustache and long hair who looks as if he might have jumped right out of a TV western, delighted the 55,000 spectators by soaring 17 feet, ¾-inch in the pole vault.

Clowning and carrying on a sign language repartee with cheering fans, he tried to make the 17-6 mark after erasing all competition, but couldn't clear it.

"Ah," moaned thousands in unison.

"I am no good jumping alone—I need competition," the Wharton, Tex., vaulter said. Upset by the rain, Roland Carter of Houston went out at under 16 feet.

Lanier, from Cincinnati, drew gasps and then ringing applause when he executed a somersault in the long jump. However, officials requested that it not be counted. It is against international rules, anyway.

The crowd had no vote in the matter, so the long jump went to Tommy Haynes of Nashville, Tenn., with a leap of 25-11½—his third victory of the tour.

Buerkle, a Rochester, N.Y., schoolteacher whose head is shaved bald, lapped four of his Chinese rivals—one of them twice—in winning the 10,000 meters in 28 minutes, 41.4 seconds.

The frail-looking Buerkle drew loud cheers every time he passed a Chinese runner. There never was a boo. Buerkle thus proved himself the versatile iron man of the trip. He won the 5,000 at Canton and the 1,500 at Shanghai.

Two of China's most famous personalities—Chuang Tse-Tung, the former table tennis champion who is minister of sport, and Yiao Wei-Lien, vice chairman of the standing committee of the people's congress—sat in the official box with George Bush, the American liaison officer in Peking.

Rain delayed the start of the meet for 45 minutes but the synthetic track, copied by the Chinese from scraps of American artificial surfaces, stood up well.

"The track was great," said Bob Giegengack of Yale University, the American coach. "The Chinese need considerable work but they show a lot of promise."

With red flags fluttering from the top of the stadium and nationalistic slogans discreetly covered with red swaths of cloth, the host team produced its only victory in the women's discus. Kao Wu-Kai, the Asian champion, won it with a throw of 166-7. The only American, Denise Wood of Haledon, N.J., was fourth at 146-4.

Fred Newhouse of Baton Rouge, La., won his third straight 400-meter race in 45.9 seconds. Don Merrick of Deland, Fla., winner of the 200 in the previous two meets, took the 100 meters in 10.5. Francie Larrieu of Los Angeles was the women's star, winning her third 1,500 meters in 4:11.5, only 1.1 seconds off her American outdoor record.

Other winners were:

Men—Mike Flack, Fargo, N.D., 1,500 meters, 3:48.2; Terry Albritton, Newport Beach, Calif., shot put, 65-7; Tommy Haynes, Nashville, Tenn., long jump 25-11½; Jerry Wilson, Los Angeles, 110-meter hurdles, 13.9; Dick Drescher, Greenbelt, Md., discus, 201-11; 400-meter relay, U.S., 40.5.

Women-Patty Van Wolvelaere, Carlsbad, Calif., 100-meter hurdles, 14.1; Theresa Montgomery, Baton Rouge, La., 100 meters, 11.9; Robin Campbell, Washington D.C., 400 meters, 53.3; Jane Frederick, Goleta, Calif., high jump, 5-9; 400-meter relay, U.S., 45.8.

Sonny Jurgensen

Jurgensen Rejects WFL Offer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sonny Jurgensen rejected a lucrative offer to sign with the World Football League Tuesday and said the retirement forced on him by the Washington Redskins was final.

In a speech to the National Press Club, the 40-year-old quarterback announced he was turning down a bid by the WFL's Philadelphia Bell for his services. Of his future plans, which include possible network television broadcasting, Jurgensen said: "My only definite decision is that I won't play with the WFL this season. I decided, in the best interests of everyone, not to accept."

Jurgensen was the second superstar NFL quarterback to refuse an offer from the young WFL, which experienced serious financial problems in its first year of operation last season.

Joe Namath, who played out his option with the New York Jets, announced last week he was turning thumbs down on a multi-million dollar offer from the WFL's Chicago Wind.

Jurgensen, a veteran of 18 years who led all active passers before Redskin coach George Allen dropped him, acknowledged that the head of the Philadelphia franchise, John Bosacca, was sweetening the offer in the hope of changing his mind.

Jurgensen said that after Bosacca learned that he was going to announce his rejection of the WFL offer at the National Press Club appearance, the Philadelphian made an emergency phone call to an intermediary promising to triple the original offer.

But in his luncheon speech the former Redskin passer said: "Mr. Bosacco made a fair offer and it was very tempting. But I'm retiring here in the best place I know. I understand he's saying that now that Namath has turned them down, the league has more money to offer." "

Bosacco expressed disappointment in Jurgensen's decision but added: "As far as the Bell is concerned, although we may continue to attempt to change Sonny's mind, we shall nonetheless proceed with alternative plans."

Siderowf, Pate Start Campaign

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — U.S. amateur champion Jerry Pate and veteran golfer Dick Siderowf were named Tuesday to launch the 25th Walker Cup campaign against Britain over the famed St. Andrews links.

Pate, 21, a student from Pensacola, Fla., and Siderowf, 37-year-old stockbroker from Westport, Conn., drve off in the vital opening foursomes Wednesday against Britain's Peter Hedges and Richard Eyels.

After a week of practice over the par 72, 6,914 yards seaside layout, the captains of both teams handed in their selections to The Royal and Ancient Club.

"It was difficult to choose from a team with such a great deal of depth," said U.S. Captain Edgar R. Updegraff.

"Personalities are very important in the foursomes."

The U.S. team has been quoted as virtually unbeatable favorites at odds of 1-4 by a local bookie. But Updegraff called the odds "ridiculous."

"We start all square," he said, and reminded newsmen the last time the Walker Cup was played on this course in 1972, the U.S. team slumped to a shocking defeat.

After he heard the British selection, Updegraff said it was "a very interesting draw."

The United States has a whopping 21-2 advantage over Britain in the Walker Cup series, with one drawn match. But the Americans have been taking no chances this time with extensive practice and team discussions on the layout of the always tricky course.

A nagging worry during practice for the U.S. team was a strained thumb injury for Vinny Giles of Richmond, Va.

"This is a typical golfing injury," said Updegraff, of Tucson, Ariz. "It isn't bothering Vinny today and we have no problems.

"I told the team not to work too hard today. They are ready, and I just want them to relax."

Area Dogs Place High

Six Lincoln area dogs placed well up in obedience trials over the weekend, led by Schuyler's Andrea Vrana and her cardigan Welsh Corgi's.

Vrana's "Ch. Lucky Lane's M'Lady Frolic, C.D.," went best of breed in both the Nebraska Kennel Club Show at Omaha and the Sioux Valley Kennel Club Show in Sioux City, Ia. At the Omaha show, the dog also finished its companion dog excellent degree with a 187-point finish in Open A. It went 193 for third in Open A at the Sioux City show.

Other Omaha finishers included:

"Georgean Court Ashley," cardigan Welsh corgi, owned by Anrea Vrana, finished C.D. with 187 points in Novice B.

"Knight's Kin Klancy," St. Bernard, owned by Lincoln's Robert Knight, third with 193 points in Open B.

"Knight's Wilhelm Von Kris," minature schnauzer, owned by Lincoln's Kathy Knight, third with 189 points in Open A, won its first open leg.

"Little Bit Crickett," Yorkshire terrier, owned by Lincoln's Judy Harvey, fourth with 195 points to finish C.D. in Novice A.

Dog Wins Honor

Mussman Wins Shot Put

CLEVELAND (AP) — Mark Lineweaver of Brockport, Pa., State took the early lead in the decathlon as the NCAA Division III Track and Field Championships got underway at Baldwin-Wallace College Tuesday.

Lineweaver, last year's third-place decathlon finisher, amassed 3,686 points after five events. Tony Hale, Fisk University, had 3,557 points and Mike Hout, Capital University, had 3,375 points.

The Brockport athlete won the 100-meter dash in 10.6 and the 400-meter dash in 49.8.

Bob Meyers of Chico State had a long jump of 21 feet, 8¼ inches to take that event. The shot put went to Dan Mussman of Doane, Neb., College who hurled for 42 feet 1¼ inches. Richard Baker of Bates took the high jump by leaping 6-4.

Motocross Meet Set

Team Can-Am, defending the American Motorcycle Association 250cc motocross crown won last year by Can-Am rider Gary Jones, carries its title defense into the Omaha-Council Bluffs area June 1 when round 4 in AMA's five-event 1975 championship series is held at Herman, Neb.

Jimmy Ellis, 1975 Superseries of Motocross Champion, and Mike Runyard, second-ranked AMA open-class rider in 1973, have taken over Can-Am's title defense for the disabled Jones, who is recuperating from an injury suffered at Daytona Beach March 8.

Last year, Jones rode his Can-Am 250cc motorcycle to his third consecutive AMA crown, as Can-Am swept the 1974 250 series with 1-2-3 finishes. Ellis scored a sensational comeback from an early-season injury last year to grab third place in the AMA series.

ACTION LINE

DIAL 477-2121

Or Write P.O. Box 81689, Lincoln, NE 68501

We are planning on going to Mexico this summer for our vacation and are wondering if we need a passport. We might travel to some other Latin American countries also. Can ACTION LINE find out if we need one, and if so where it might be obtained?

—C. L., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: the Federal Information Center in Omaha says there is a passport office at the Lincoln Post Office. The phone number is 471-5123. However, if you go only to Mexico you don't need a passport. A tourist card can be obtained through your travel agency, by writing a Mexican consulate or when you cross the border. A voter's certificate or a birth certificate to prove your citizenship is needed. If you plan to travel to any of the other Latin American countries a full-fledged passport is needed.

I was wondering where I could sell sheep wool. Also what are the going rates for wool right now?

—M. T., Weston

ACTION LINE: Maynard Jensen of Aurora is the president of the Nebraska Wool Grower's Assn. and sells his wool at a local produce store to be shipped out of state by rail. However, he says the necessary information for your purposes can be obtained by writing to the North Central Wool Marketer's Corporation. The address is 101 27th Avenue Southeast, Minneapolis, Minn., 55414.

I'm an ardent cyclist, but can still understand the problems drivers have in always seeing a bicycle in heavy traffic. What is the best procedure when approaching an intersection?

L. D., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: There is only one precedure for a bicyclist to use when approaching an intersection, according to Inspector Dean Leitner. He says the cyclist should pull into the lane he intends to use prior to entering the intersection. It's generally accepted for cicyclists to ride next to the right hand curb. However, if you want to turn left at an intersection, you should be in the left turn lane and the same philosophy applies to going straight or turning right.

I sent a box of pills back to Dartell Laboratories in Des Moines. I insured the pacakge so I know the company received it. I've heard nothing from them. Can ACTION LINE check into this?

T. P., Pierce

ACTION LINE: We were unable to reach the owner of the firm, but his son took your name and address and said he would give it to his father. He said they would take care of your problem.

The electric clock on our Roper Electric Range broke and we've been trying to replace it for more than a year. We wrote the company and they have no record of the order. They told us to order it from a regional distributor which we have done with no success. Will ACTION LINE help us?

—A. P., Gladstone

ACTION LINE: Albert Larsen, owner of Iowa Parts Supply in Des Moines, says he can't understand what the problem's been. However, he doesn't have any record of your order either. Larsen is backordering the part from Roper's and will send you a post card when it arrives with the cost and postage. He says he's sorry for the delay.

18% Fewer Graduates Being Hired This Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eighteen per cent fewer new college graduates are being hired this year, and the job market for them may not pick up until next spring, according to a survey released Tuesday.

The College Placement Council said responses from 709 employers showed that the decline was sharpest for engineers and PhDs.

Opportunities remain strong for top students, minorities and women in high-demand fields, however, the report said.

The decrease was the first over-all general decline in hiring of college graduates since 1969-70 and 1970-71, the council said, although the 18% drop was ot as severe as the 27% plummet during the 1970-71 season.

season.

The council, representing college placement directors and career planners across the country, surveyed business, industry, government and nonprofit and educational institutions, excluding teaching positions.

The only employers hiring more than last year were petroleum, up 4%; local and state governments, up 18%; and nonprofit and educational institutions, up 7%. The council said the volume of hires in those categories was low, however.

Three usually stable employers — public accounting, metals and chemical-drugs — dropped 5%, 21% and 24% respectively, the report said.

New hiring of college grads in the building materials-construction, automotive and mechanical equipment industries dropped about 60%, it said.

New openings for engineers fell 20%, after three successive years of increases, although doctoral engineers experienced a decline of half that rate.

By degree levels, PhDs fell 20% in new hirings, bachelor's graduates declines 18% and master's candidates by 17%.

Openings for liberal arts candidates, including the humanities and social sciences, fell 9% on top of a 45% drop in 1970-71 and virtually no improvement in intervening years.

The Legislature 1975

Seven Bills Will Have Lasting Effect

By DON WALTON

Star Staff Writer

Seven enactments of the 1975 Unicameral appear the most likely to have a lasting effect on Nebraskans.

They center on such disparate issues as interest rates, taxation, land use and water management.

The landmark decisions of the 89-day legislature session:

—a boost in the usury rate from 9% to 11%, which has the effect of increasing maximum interest rates which may be charged on home mortgages.

—major revision of Nebraska's tax laws, placing a greater future emphasis on income taxes over sales taxes and boosting the tax rate on most corporations.

—state pressure on local governments to develop land use plans.

—management of ground water resources in critical areas of the state.

—a green light for new state prison construction, with replacement institutions for the Men's Reformatory to be located in Lincoln and Douglas County.

—return of technical community colleges to local control, with up to 2½ mills of local property tax support and $11.6 million in state financial assistance.

—institution of a new state aid program for local public transportation services, with initial funding of $1,250,000.

What would have been another landmark decision — a bill pledging the state to provide funding for 40% of local school operating expenses — was successfully vetoed by Gov. J. James Exon.

Among other major enactments were measures providing school teachers with tenure, allowing cities and power districts to jointly contract for construction and operation of electric generation and transmission facilities and launching a reform program in the treatment of alcoholics and intoxicated persons.

Other bills rewrote Nebraska's rape laws to provide the victim with more legal protection, revised the state's troubled special education programs, required district election of Omaha School Board members, boosted payments for aid to dependent children and hiked the food tax credit.

Here is a list of the session's achievements, some of which could yet be vetoed by the governor:

Taxation

—increased food tax credit from $13 to $16 per person.

—increase excise tax on beer by one cent a gallon, and on liquor by 25 cents a gallon, to finance new treatment and rehabilitation program for alcohol-dependent persons.

—increase corporation income tax rate for income exceeding $25,000.

—authorize Board of Equalization to meet during the year to adjust sales and income tax rates.

—establish a 12% ceiling on the 1975 individual income tax rate.

—remove corporation tax revenue from the equation which requires the state to balance its sales and income tax collections.

Highways

—authorize issuance of $20 million in highway construction bonds; authorize refinancing of the 1969 bond issue of $20 million.

—tighten controls on outdoor advertising along Interstate Highway and federal aid primary roads.

—continue 55 mile per hour speed limit on Nebraska highways, but provide that motorist could not be fined more than $10 (with no court costs and no loss of driving points) for traveling up to 65 mph on Interstate Highway.

—reduce from one year to six months the license revocation period for drivers who accumulate 12 points or more in two years.

—allow issuance of employment driving permit for motorists with revoked or suspended drivers licenses.

—require motorcycle riders to wear helmets.

Health

—extend group health insurance coverage for families to include infants from day of birth.

—require licensing of all radioactive material by a radiation control agency.

—prohibit the sale of food products which do not meet local inspection standards.

—authorize state banks to transact business through the use of electronic satellite facilities.

—require use of cash or a negotiable instrument drawn on a banking institution within the same federal reserve district for purchase of slaughter livestock.

Chile Replaces Fragile Escudo

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Chile's military government, beset by world record inflation and 10 devaluations this year of the fragile escudo, announced a new currency Tuesday.

Pablo Barahona, president of Chile's central bank, declared that as of Sept. 1, the country will convert to the peso.

Exactly 15 years ago, the country went from the peso to the escudo after constant devaluations sank the Chilean money to a level of 1,000 pesos to the U.S. dollar.

Deputies Seek 2 Men In Rape Of 17-Year-Old

Lancaster County sheriff's deputies Tuesday were searching for two men after a 17-year-old girl was taken from the Regional Center and raped.

Sheriff's reports said the two men took the girl in their automobile Sunday afternoon to a dead-end road near Pawnee Lake.

One of them raped her there," the girl told deputies, then they returned her to Lincoln. She said she walked around the city before a friend brought her to authorities early Monday morning.

Deputies said one man was bald, had a harelip and wore a blue shirt and blue jeans. The other had black hair, dark complexion and was about 50 years old.

McCord To Be Out

Allenwood, Pa. (UPI) — James W. McCord Jr., convicted Watergate burglar, will be released on parole Thursday from the federal Allenwood Prison farm where he has been serving an abbreviated sentence.

Full, Conditional Pardons Given Evaders, Deserters

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford has granted outright pardons or conditional pardons to 80 more draft evaders and deserters in line with recommendations by his clemency board, a White House spokesman announced Tuesday.

It was Ford's first clemency action since the first 65 pardons were signed last Dec. 31.

The White House did not say how many of the 80 were given outright pardons and how many were assigned periods of public service work. In the first group, 20 were given outright pardons and the others were conditioned on up to one year of public service.

So far, the White House said the board headed by former New York Sen. Charles E. Goodell has sent to Ford recommendations on only 900 of the 19,642 who signed up.

However, the board action has picked up with more recommendations sent to the White House this month. The board faces a September deadline.

The board deals with only men who have been convicted of draft evasion or punished for desertion. The 19,642 were among 100,000 eligible. The deadline for signing was April 1.

The military processed 5,005 unpunished deserters of 10,000 eligibles and the Justice Department processed 697 of 4,400 unconvicted draft evaders.

Burglars Hit Sen. Kennedy's Summer Home

Hyannis, Mass. (UPI) — Two separate break-ins at the Squaw Island summer home of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., are being investigated, Barnstable police disclosed Tuesday.

The latest burglary, in which a $600 color television was taken, was discovered by a caretaker when he went to the home to make a regular check. He said he found sliding glass doors facing the ocean open and upon checking the home found the television set gone.

The caretaker also told police that when he checked the house in April he found other items missing.

Crash In Britain Leaves 32 Dead

Hebden, England (AP) — A tourist bus crashed down a ravine near this northern England country town, killing at least 32 persons and injuring 14 in what was believed to be Britain's worst road accident, police said.

The bus, carrying a party of middle-aged and elderly women from Teesside, an industrial region in northeastern England, was on a scenic tour of the rugged Yorkshire Dales district.

Police said the vehicle apparently went out of control on a steep mile-long hill, smashed through a bridge parapet at the bottom and plunged 20 feet into a trout stream. It landed upside down.

Most of the passengers were trapped in the tangled wreckage.

In July 1925, a bus crashed at the same bridge, killing nine persons.

Dripping Faucet Costly To Poor

That water dripping from a faucet once each second may not seem like much. But if it goes on for a month, approximately 200 gallons will have gone down the drain.

And if you're a low-income person worried about paying utility bills, the little things are something you have to watch, according to Ruth Egner, chairperson of the Lincoln Organization for Utility Problems (LOUP).

Egner spoke at a Lincoln Action Program-sponsored consumer workshop Tuesday night. The workshop also featured discussions of the food stamp program and ways to stretch a food budget.

LOUP intercedes with utilities for low-income people who face a loss of service because they cannot pay their bills, Egner said.

Since October 1974, LOUP has conducted nearly 100 such negotiations with electrical utilities, she said. Egner said that in 34 of those cases, LOUP put up money from its revolving fund to guarantee payment of the bills.

According to Egner, the organization started in December 1970 after the LAP Board was informed that 24 families would have their utilities shut off over Christmas if they did not pay their bills.

Since then, the program has been helping "low-income, non-veteran, non-welfare families — people who have no other financial resources to turn to," she said.

Egner said that from 1971 to 1974 approximately 40% of those given money to help with their bills were able to pay it back. This year, inflation and the economy have dropped repayment to less than 10%, she said.

"LOUP is getting kind of broke. We'll probably have to do some more fund-raising," she said.

710-Pound Man, Wife Honeymoon

Niagara Falls, Ont. (AP) — Billy McGuire, a 710-pound wrestler from Hendersonville, S.C., and his 98-pound wife, Danielle, of Montreal, began their honeymoon here.

They were married in Las Vegas.

Billy and his twin brother, who the Guinness book of records says are the heaviest twins in the world, will be a tag-team wrestling match here with a second set of twins, the Kelly Brothers.

The McGuire twins each sat on two chairs spread apart when they ate lunch at a restaurant. Each ate about six pounds of pasta, a salad and a large slice of cheesecake.

The twins said when they stay in hotels and motels during their wrestling tours in North America, they often are required to pay a deposit in case they break their beds.

Billy, 28, is the heavier of the twins — 10 more pounds than his brother.

The Legislature 1975

Seven Bills Will Have Lasting Effect

By DON WALTON

Star Staff Writer

Seven enactments of the 1975 Unicameral appear the most likely to have a lasting effect on Nebraskans.

They center on such disparate issues as interest rates, taxation, land use and water management.

The landmark decisions of the 89-day legislature session:

—a boost in the usury rate from 9% to 11%, which has the effect of increasing maximum interest rates which may be charged on home mortgages.

—major revision of Nebraska's tax laws, placing a greater future emphasis on income taxes over sales taxes and boosting the tax rate on most corporations.

—state pressure on local governments to develop land use plans.

—management of ground water resources in critical areas of the state.

—a green light for new state prison construction, with replacement institutions for the Men's Reformatory to be located in Lincoln and Douglas County.

—return of technical community colleges to local control, with up to 2½ mills of local property tax support and $11.6 million in state financial assistance.

—institution of a new state aid program for local public transportation services, with initial funding of $1,250,000.

What would have been another landmark decision — a bill pledging the state to provide funding for 40% of local school operating expenses — was successfully vetoed by Gov. J. James Exon.

Among other major enactments were measures providing school teachers with tenure, allowing cities and power districts to jointly contract for construction and operation of electric generation and transmission facilities and launching a reform program in the treatment of alcoholics and intoxicated persons.

Other bills rewrote Nebraska's rape laws to provide the victim with more legal protection, revised the state's troubled special education programs, required district election of Omaha School Board members, boosted payments for aid to dependent children and hiked the food tax credit.

Here is a list of the session's achievements, some of which could yet be vetoed by the governor:

Taxation

—increased food tax credit from $13 to $16 per person.

—increase excise tax on beer by one cent a gallon, and on liquor by 25 cents a gallon, to finance new treatment and rehabilitation program for alcohol-dependent persons.

—increase corporation income tax rate for income exceeding $25,000.

—authorize Board of Equalization to meet during the year to adjust sales and income tax rates.

—establish a 12% ceiling on the 1975 individual income tax rate.

—remove corporation tax revenue from the equation which requires the state to balance its sales and income tax collections.

Highways

—authorize issuance of $20 million in highway construction bonds; authorize refinancing of the 1969 bond issue of $20 million.

—tighten controls on outdoor advertising along Interstate Highway and federal aid primary roads.

—continue 55 mile per hour speed limit on Nebraska highways, but provide that motorist could not be fined more than $10 (with no court costs and no loss of driving points) for traveling up to 65 mph on Interstate Highway.

—reduce from one year to six months the license revocation period for drivers who accumulate 12 points or more in two years.

—allow issuance of employment driving permit for motorists with revoked or suspended drivers licenses.

—require motorcycle riders to wear helmets.

Health

—extend group health insurance coverage for families to include infants from day of birth.

—require licensing of all radioactive material by a radiation control agency.

—prohibit the sale of food products which do not meet local inspection standards.

—regulate ambulances and ambulance attendants.

—provide for treatment and counseling of drug offenders at community mental health facilities.

—impose safety requirements on the manufacture and sale of toys.

—authorize construction of an $8.1 million out-patient facility at the University of Nebraska Medical Center in Omaha.

—provide for state resident physician education and dental education programs.

—recruit and train Vietnamese doctors.

Public Power

—authorize municipalities and public power districts to jointly contract for electric generation and transmission facilities and services.

Law Enforcement

—revise and improve juvenile court proceedings, with emphasis on juvenile rights.

—provide protection for neglected children.

—redefine the crime of rape as sexual assault, with certain guarantees of privacy for the victim.

WHEN IT BEGAN . . . Speaker Jules Burbach (right) escorted Gov. Exon into the chamber.

—provide guidelines for determining obscenity.

—allow persons convicted of a felony or contempt to leave jail for specified employment or family needs.

—provide public defender counsel for indigent misdemeanor defendants.

—authorize Department of Correctional Services to locate and develop a chemical dependency unit for correctional inmates.

—reorganize the Department of Correctional Services

—authorize development of a community-based pilot project in Omaha to divert offenders from the Penal Complex —direct development of jail health and safety standards.

—provide for construction of two medium-minimum security institutions to replace the Men's Reformatory, and planning for new maximum security facilities to modernize or replace the Penitentiary.

—adopt uniform rules of evidence for Nebraska.

—provide reform and revision of "good time" provisions for correctional inmates.

Financing

—increase state's usury rate from 9% to 11%, thus increasing maximum rate for home mortgages.

—provide state building and loan associations with same privileges granted to federal associations.

—authorize state banks to transact business through the use of electronic satellite facilities.

—require use of cash or a negotiable instrument drawn on a banking institution within the same federal reserve district for purchase of slaughter livestock

Education

—extend tenure to public school teachers and administrators, requiring just cause to terminate a contract

—revise state aid program for special education services for handicapped children.

—require district election of Omaha School Board members

—allow transportation of private school children along regular public school bus routes.

—return technical community colleges to local control, with local property tax authorization of 2½ mills.

—provide technical community colleges with $11.6 million in state aid.

Agriculture

—repeal unconstitutional dairy price fixing law.

—authorize planning for a $10 million plant sciences complex at the University of Nebraska's East Campus in Lincoln.

—provide for ground water management in critical areas of the state —provide for registration of manufacturers and distributors of commercial fertilizers.

—establish a soybean promotion and development program, financed with up to one cent per bushel from producers.

—require corporations to report ownership of agricultural land

Labor

—provide licensing procedures for electricians

Social Services

—increase maximum payments for aid to dependent children from $175 to $210 a month for a parent and one child, and from $35 to $42 monthly for each additional child.

—provide for enforcement of child support payment decrees.

—provide procedures for claiming paternity.

—declare unborn children eligible for payments for aid to dependent children.

Constitutional Amendments

—to authorize legislature sessions to begin the second Monday in December.

—to allow the Legislature to override gubernatorial line item veto reductions individually, rather than restoring all veto reducations in a single motion.

—to eliminate final reading of bills in full and aloud.

—to remove the lieutenant governor as presiding officer of the Legislature —to authorize political subdivisions to issue bonds to finance redevelopment projects

Crash In Britain Leaves 32 Dead

Hebden England (AP) — A tourist bus crashed down a ravine near this northern England country town, killing at least 32 persons and injuring 14 in what was believed to be Britain's worst road accident, police said

The bus, carrying a party of middle-aged and elderly women from Teesside, an industrial region in northeastern England, was on a scenic tour of the rugged Yorkshire Dales district

Police said the vehicle apparently went out of control on a steep mile-long hill, smashed through a bridge parapet at the bottom and plunged 20 feet into a trout stream It landed upside down

Most of the passengers were trapped in the tangled wreckage

In July 1925 a bus crashed at the same bridge, killing nine persons

Dripping Faucet Costly To Poor

That water dripping from a faucet once each second may not seem like much But if it goes on for a month approximately 200 gallons will have gone down the drain

And if you're a low-income person worried about paying utility bills, the little things are something you have to watch, according to Ruth Egner, chairperson of the Lincoln Organization for Utility Problems (LOUP)

Egner spoke at a Lincoln Action Program-sponsored consumer workshop Tuesday night The workshop also featured discussions of the food stamp program and ways to stretch a food budget

LOUP intercedes with utilities for low-income people who face a loss of service because they cannot pay their bills, Egner said

Since October 1974, LOUP has conducted nearly 100 such negotiations with electrical utilities, she said Egner said that in 34 of those cases, LOUP put up money from its revolving fund to guarantee payment of the bills

According to Egner, the organization started in December 1970 after the LAP Board was informed that 24 families would have their utilities shut off over Christmas if they did not pay their bills

Since then the program has been helping low-income non-veteran, non-welfare families — people who have no other financial resources to turn to, she said

Egner said that from 1971 to 1974 approximately 40% of those given money to help with their bills were able to pay it back. This year, inflation and the economy have dropped repayment to less than 10% she said

'LOUP is getting kind of broke We'll probably have to do some more fund-raising," she said

710-Pound Man, Wife Honeymoon

Niagara Falls, Ont (AP) — Billy McGuire, a 710-pound wrestler from Hendersonville, S C, and his 98-pound wife, Danielle, of Montreal, began their honeymoon here

They were married in Las Vegas

Billy and his twin brother, who the Guinness book of records says are the heaviest twins in the world, will be a tag-team wrestling match here with a second set of twins, the Kelly Brothers

The McGuire twins each sat on two chairs spread apart when they ate lunch at a restaurant Each ate about six pounds of pasta a salad and a large slice of cheesecake

The twins said when they stay in hotels and motels during their wrestling tours in North America they often are required to pay a deposit in case they break their beds

Billy 28 is the heavier of the twins — 10 more pounds than his brother

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast for Wednesday

I remember an Aquarian woman who constantly wrote letters to God. But she never mailed them. That, very often is the way it is with Aquarius, a touch of the spiritual and metaphysical. In general, Aquarius is a puzzle. Tell me about your Aquarian puzzler.

ARIES March 21-April 19): Apparent setback becomes a victory. Element of timing is on your side. Expansion plays into your hand. Don't feel limited. One who appeared a liability will help get what is required, including money.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Study Aries measage for valid hint. Break through restrictions. Gemini, Sagittarius Persons figure prominently. Check messages, calls. Lines of communication could be "disturbed." Be ready for news which tells of travel plans.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You find that some details actually are helpful, even if delays result. Money, debts, payments and collections are featured. Be sure of serial numbers, checks, receipts, Avoid tossing out papers without careful observation.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be ready for change, travel, variety. A past agreement, contract causes a review of what you thought was a "sure thing." Gemini, Virgo and Sagittarius could be in picture. You will have to fulfill commitment.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Low-key approach brings most constructive results. Diplomacy is great asset — know it and act accordingly. Family member carries message of importance. Refuse to become involved in disputes. Aura of confusion is but temporary.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Obtain valuable hint from Leo message. Realize that all is not what it appears on surface. A restless associate has idea that required refinement. Another Virgo and a Pisces figure prominently. You may do a lot of laughing — mainly at your own foibles. That's good!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Practical issues dominate. One who attempts shortcuts may be doing so at your expense. Know it and protect your interests. Older persons have plenty to offer — if you want to benefit from experience.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Finish rather than initiate project. Study ways to close deal. Means don't permit good prospects to slip from grasp. Friend, involved, in controversy, confides. Don't cast first stone. Be understanding and willing to lend helpful hand.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): New, more independent attitude is necessary. One who threatens financial reprisals is a paper tiger. Know it and respond accordingly. You have more on your side than might be imagined. Leo, Aquarius figure prominently.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Weight of past obligation is felt — more so than usual, Cycle is such that you land on your feet, you gain new ally and your legal status is favorably clarified. Cautious examination of various areas is necessary — but don't brood!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Active, restless persons around you could create confusion. Sort out what you need — get rid of the superfluous. Accent now is on digging beneath surface values. Find what is quality — dispose what is tinsel. You'll comprehend!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Friendship is tested. Don't "debate" on empty stomach. Body chemistry now is more important than usual. Emotions tend to dominate logic. Give yourself a chance for second thoughts. Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio persons figure in picture.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are inventive, independent, sensuous, active, getting into new project this year and July will be a most important month. Leo, Aquarius persons play significant roles in your life. You tend to be domineering and you usually get what you want — but you don't necessarily want what is best for you.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4 If the number is less than 6, add 3 The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
